PRICE SEVEN CENTS

WEEK-END MOTOR ACCIDENTS

Christmas afternoon at 1:45 a Ford sedan, driven by Michael P. Meskell of 16 M. V. Parkway, Arlington, while going north on Main street was in collision with a Lincoln touring car which was driven by Harold Fay of Woburn street, Wilmington, who was entering Main street from Washington street. Both machines were badly damaged and Meskell was thrown against the windshield of his car, sustaining cuts about the head and arms. He was taken into the office of Dr. Daniel C. Dennett by V. H. Jacobson of 105 Eastern avenue, Woburn and Martin Flaherty of 79 Garfield avenue, Woburn, who were in a passing machine. Later Meskell was taken by Patrolman John Murray to the Winchester Hospital and attended by Dr. Richard W. Sheehy.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Christmas evening, James Allen of 10 Fowle street, Woburn, reported to the police that his Chevrolet coach was in collision earlier in the evening at the junction of Mystic Valley Parkway and Highland avenue with a Nash sedan. Allen neglected to get the name of the driver of the Nash but gave his registration to the authorities. No one was injured.

The worst accident of the week-end took place Sunday afternoon at 3:25 when an Oakland sedan, driven by Edward Kane of 23 Jacques street, Somerville, was in collision with a Chevrolet sedan, operated by Grant F. Cotton of 37 Woodside road, the crash taking place at Symmes Corner. Kane told the police that he was driving out of Grove street when his machine was struck in the rear by a car registered to Valentino Marchi of Westwood street, Burlington, who was heading south on Main street, the impact pushing Kane's car into the path of Cotton's machine. According to Kane, Marchi did not stop after the accident, and the authorities got in touch with the Burlington Police. As a result Marchi appeared at local headquarters and denied that his machine struck that of Kane. Sgt. John H. Noonan and Patrolman John Hogan examined his Chrysler sedan and found no marks upon it. Dorothy Kane of 23 Jacques street, Somerville, riding with Kane, claimed injuries, as did R. W. Ray of 39 Woodside road, who was riding with Cotton. Both the Oakland and Chevrolet were damaged.

REED-DRESSER

At a small home wedding Monday evening at Phillips Beach, Miss Priscilla Katherine Dresser, the daughter of Mrs. Elmer A. Dresser of 88 Bradley avenue and the late Mr. Dresser, was married to Mr. Burgess Parker Reed, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Parker Reed of 3 Sheffield west.

The Rev. Milo Pearson, D.D., of the Congregational Church in Salem, was the officiating clergyman, and a reception also in Mrs. Dresser's home followed.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of cream satin, with tulle veil and carried gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her mother gave her in marriage, and her sister and only attendant, Miss Katherine Dresser, was gowned in citron satin and carried red roses. Mr. William Reed was his brother's best man and ushers at the ceremony included Charles Reed, another brother of the groom, John Dill of Salem and William Clark of this town.

Miss Dresser was graduated from Wheaton College, with the class of 1929. Mr. Reed attended the Choate School at Wallingford, Conn., and was graduated from Harvard in 1931. He is a member of the Speakers Club.

After a brief wedding trip, Mr. Reed and his bride will be at home at 28 Irving street, Cambridge.

WAS FATHER OF MR. JOHN BELLEW

Francis W. Bellew, who died Sunday morning at his home on Highland street in Woburn was the father of Mr. John J. Bellew of this town.

The deceased was widely known in Woburn where for 33 years he was in the employ of the city, serving in the capacity of City Messenger up to the time of his death. He was born in Montreal in 1847, but had made Woburn his home for the past 65 years. He was a member of Woburn Lodge of Elks, serving as treasurer for a period of 10 years.

Besides Mr. Bellew, he is survived by two daughters, Miss Mary J. Bellew and Mrs. Isabel Fox, both of Woburn.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning from the late residence with requiem high mass in St. Charles Church. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

WAS FATHER OF JOHN F. FITZGERALD

James F. Fitzgerald, who died last week Wednesday evening at his home on Wade avenue in Woburn was the father of Mr. John F. Fitzgerald of Winchester.

Born in Somerville, 67 years ago, the deceased made his home in Woburn for 50 years, enjoying a wide circle of friends. He was a veteran employee of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, which organization he served for nearly 35 years.

He is survived by his wife, Mary, and by a daughter, Miss Margaret E. Fitzgerald, assistant City Clerk of Woburn; in addition to John F. Fitzgerald of Winchester.

High mass of requiem was celebrated Saturday morning in St. Charles Church and interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

The Fire Department was called at 7:43 last evening to put out a grass fire on Olive street.

MARIBEL VINSON WINS AGAIN

Crowned Queen of Nation's Skaters After Great Performance

For the fifth year in succession, Miss Maribel Vinson of this town, daughter of former State Senator and Mrs. Thomas M. Vinson of High street, won the women's national singles figure skating championship after a brilliant all around exhibition at Madison Square, N. Y. last Sunday and Monday. Her victory carries with it the right to represent the United States at the Olympic winter sports games at Lake Placid in February.

Miss Vinson's victory was conclusive, if not without stiff opposition. The five judges were unanimously of the opinion that she was the best of the women's entrants who included Margaret Bennett of Minneapolis, holder of the National junior title; Louise Weigel of Buffalo, junior runner-up; Mrs. Frederick Secord of New York, Suzanne Davis of Boston, Audrey Peppe of New York and Dr. Hulda Berger, also of New York.

The Winchester girl built up a commanding lead in the routine school figures and as this performance counted two-thirds of the total score the stubborn opposition offered by Miss Bennett in the free skating proved of no avail.

Miss Vinson gave a brilliant exhibition in the fancy figures and was all but perfect in her school figure skating. In speaking of the defending champion one New York writer said: "Miss Vinson went through her repertoire of fancy figures without an error, swinging through the difficult back spiral, the one foot spin, the half loop jump and spin made famous by Jackson Haines with the confidence born from winning championships year after year."

In the pairs championship competition Miss Vinson and George E. B. Hill of Boston were runners-up to Beatrice Laughran and Sherin C. Badger of New York, but will also represent Uncle Sam in this event.

Roger F. Turner of Boston won the men's singles crown, despite a fall taken while he was performing the school figures Sunday.

WINCHESTER S. P. C. A. AUXILIARY NOTES

The appeal recently made through the Star by the Winchester S. P. C. A. Auxiliary, for fruit, vegetables and grain for the Horses' Christmas met a response from both grown-ups and children which was most gratifying to the committee.

The generosity of this response demonstrated plainly that with many of the good folk of Winchester the Christmas spirit is large enough to include both man and beast in its good will.

The Auxiliary is grateful to all those who assisted in making this gift to the horses so generous—parents, boys and girls, our merchants, and the Kelley & Hawes Express Co.

In behalf of those who cannot speak for themselves, Dr. Rowley expresses his appreciation in the following letter:

My dear Mrs. Taylor:

I want to thank all who did such a fine thing in sending into us so many carrots, and apples and oats and some sugar. It not only saved us the purchasing of just that amount but it added to our pleasure to know that so many of the kind hearts in Winchester were interested in our work and sufficiently interested to take the trouble they took.

Will you express to those to whom we owe the gifts our heartiest appreciation.

Sincerely yours,
Francis H. Rowley,
President Mass. S. P. C. A.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL

Christmas Celebration

Christmas week at the Winchester Hospital was filled with much gaiety and happiness for both patients and nurses. The nurses enjoyed every moment of their Christmas party on Dec. 21. Santa Claus made a second trip to attend another lively party for the workers on Dec. 22.

On Christmas Eve the nurses went in to Beacon Hill to see the candle lighting. They were lucky to be early and see the glories of the candles before the storm and rain started that evening. Later in the evening they gathered at Seiler's for hot chowder before returning home. The expense of the bus that took them in and of the evening's refreshments were met from part of the several generous checks that were given to the Superintendent to use for Christmas expenditures.

At 6 o'clock Christmas morning the nurses started through the hospital singing Christmas carols accompanied by Miss Moberg on the violin. This singing lasted for half an hour. Their Gleec Club leader, Mr. Barklay, led the nurses' singing, coming from Milton at that early hour to join the nurses.

At half past six, Rev. Benjamin P. Browne of the Baptist Church conducted a simple and very beautiful Christmas service for the faculty and nurses. The short talk, prayer and benediction were very impressive.

The hospital wards were decorated with Christmas trees and small evergreen trees in pots, a gift from Mr. Harlan P. Kelsey, brought added cheer.

The trees for the men's and women's wards were decorated and presented by the Girl Scout Troops 1 and 4 and the key tree for the Children's ward was a present from the Girl Scout Troop of Brownies.

The George Washington School children sang carols on Dec. 23 at the hospital and also sent scrap books, favors and boxes of candy to be used on the patients' trays Christmas Day. On Christmas Eve the First Congregational Church carol singers sang for the patients.

A box of oranges and grapefruit from another friend of the hospital was much appreciated.

Many patients had guests for dinner on Christmas Day. These guests ate their dinners from trays at the bedside of their friends. In one instance, the husband and wife, both patients as the result of an accident had their dinner together.

Although there were many who were patients at the hospital on Christmas Day, it was a day full of joy and happiness and good cheer indeed, a Merry Christmas for all.

MISS SAWYER ENGAGED

At a luncheon bridge given yesterday in their home on Cabot street, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bray Sawyer announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Barrett Sawyer to Mr. Roger Sherman, son of Mrs. Roland H. Sherman and the late Mr. Sherman of Everett avenue.

Miss Sawyer is a graduate of the Cambridge Haskell School and is a senior at Smith College.

Mr. Sherman graduated from Governor Dummer Academy and from Norwich University in the class of 1928. He is now in business with the North Packing & Provision Company of Boston. The wedding will take place in September.

Dancing will follow the show, and at 9 o'clock a buffet luncheon will be served. Many tickets have been sold and a large gathering is assured. Every one is invited and a good time is promised all who attend.

MORE RELIEF WORK WANTED FOR BOTH MEN AND WOMEN

Your Unemployment Relief Committee is giving useful employment to one hundred and two men. Our funds will not permit addition to this number. The program is based upon one hundred persons. Work upon private grounds and in private houses should supplement this.

Can you make opportunity for work in or about your home? This should be in addition to that which you would ordinarily do through Winchester contractors.

Telephone requests for help of any kind, men or women, may be made to Relief Headquarters, Winchester 0793-M, and workers will be sent to you.

WINCHESTER UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF COMMITTEE

(Contributed by The Winchester Star)

WINCHESTER UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF NOTES

The Unemployment Relief Plan contemplated raising funds and providing work for 100 persons. As this is written 103 men are at work in various parts of the town, paid with funds subscribed by nearly 1400 Winchester residents.

Approximately one mile of new sidewalks have been built. The foundations of these walks have been thoroughly built and will be ready at any time for granolithic finish. The undesirable dirt which is removed to make way for proper material for foundation is transferred to Leonard Field or elsewhere for necessary filling and extension of park area. It is anticipated that the Town will in the spring, after these walks are settled make such correction of the surface as may be made necessary by spring rains, so as to make the walks more permanent and protected from wash and at the same time afford better sidewalks for the use of pedestrians.

A large amount of paint has been applied to the cemetery fence and other painting has been in prospect for the benefit of the Water and Sewer Department and the Park Department. This affords opportunity for work for a group of men who are not as well fitted for the handling of tools employed in sidewalk building.

As a result of the Unemployment Relief Fund work, Leonard Field is taking on the dimensions necessary for a first-class baseball field, with added space for tennis courts. This has long been advocated by the Park Department and has been commended in principle by the Finance Committee, but not recommended for reasons of general economy. The net result, however, is a highly desirable addition to the usefulness of Leonard Field and becomes therefore a permanent town asset.

The Finance Committee reports that the subscriptions are not yet over the top. After Jan. 1 they will come forward with proposals for a modest addition. A process of "raking after" must be executed to secure the additional funds to properly execute and complete our program. To employ 100 men for the full six months will take $45,000 and as more than 100 are now employed, and as some financing must be done to take care of men who through illness or for other reasons are unable to perform manual labor, it is imperative that the original plan be executed. Some little allowance must also be made for subscribers whose circumstances are such that they will not be able to meet their full subscription. Therefore, a margin of overplus subscriptions will be required to secure the net sum which is essential.

It is to be observed that delegates from some of our largest cities are in Washington asking for appropriations for these cities. It is noteworthy that the villages, towns and small cities appear to be handling their problems much more efficiently than the great cities.

BLACKINGTON WILL BE GUEST NIGHT SPEAKER

"Romance of Newsgathering" to be Subject on Jan. 8

Alton Hall Blackington, for ten years staff photographer for the Boston Herald and special interviewer of prominent, literary and political figures of today, will give an illustrated lecture under the auspices of the Fortnightly in the Town Hall, Friday night, Jan. 8 at 8 o'clock. His subject will be "The Romance of Newsgathering." The meeting will be open to the public. Fortnightly members will be admitted on the membership ticket and one guest ticket will be allowed each member of the Fortnightly.

Mr. Blackington will bring to his audience thrilling tales of headline happenings; whatever he finds in the way of a "human interest" yarn, whether it be a great achievement, a famous personality, a comedy, a tragedy, as he gathers the news of the day. Slides and motion pictures, many of which are in color, presenting the varied events that dominate the front pages of the newspapers, will be shown during the lecture. Mr. Blackington will also include in his program new and intimate stories and pictures and humorous anecdotes of men and women who appear in the news.

The Star wishes to acknowledge the receipt of handsome 1932 calendars from Kingman P. Cass, Teillon & Hollingsworth, Avard L. Walker, Artercraft Engraving and the Folsom Engraving Co. We thank you and extend our best wishes for the New Year.

WINCHESTER GIRLS ELIMINATED AT LONGWOOD

Winchester entrants did not fare so well as usual in the annual national junior girls' indoor tennis tournament at Longwood this week, there being no local player remaining in the singles competition when the quarter finals were reached Wednesday.

Lucy Fowle, Phillipa Kelley, Sylvia Hatch and Kay Parrot of Winchester were successful in their first round matches, defeating respectively Hazel Wightman of Brookline, Louise Atwood of Providence, Eleanor Clafin of Brookline and Ruth Kibbee of Brookline.

Local girls participated in the two feature matches of the first round, and though defeated Grace Cutter and Martha Boyden were by no means disgraced. Ruth Adelson of Dorchester had to come from behind to defeat Martha, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, and the battle was a close one all the way. The Dorchester player's winning margin was however, not so slender as that by which Sally Jones of Brookline defeated Grace Cutter, younger sister of the famous Mary. Grace dropped the first set, 6-4, but rallied to win the second by the same figures. She was eventually defeated in a long ducece match, 9-7.

After a stiffly contested first set which she lost 8-6 Mary Boyden was defeated by Barbara Eaton of Boston. Joanna Palfrey of "the Palfreys" beat Elizabeth Packer in straight sets and Mary Ann Lippett of Providence was over Caroline Kellogg in straight sets but with the loss of seven games. Frances Poirier defaulted her match to Sally Atwood of Providence as did Betty Proctor hers to Helen Jones of Boston. Phyllis Ames was extended to three sets to win from Barbara Chidley, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2.

In the second round play Tuesday, Sally Jones of Brookline defeated Lucy Fowle, after a hard fight, 8-6, 6-3; Virginia Arnold of Brighton winning from Phillipa Kelley in straight love sets. Sylvia Hatch was eliminated by Marion Wood of Brookline 6-1, 6-2 and illness forced Kay Parrot to default to Phyllis Ames of Wayland.

In the first round doubles matches, Phillipa Kelley and Ruth Kibbee of Brookline drew a tough assignment in facing Virginia Arnold of Brighton and Joanna Palfrey of Brookline, being defeated in straight love sets. Eleanor Clafin and Barbara Eaton of Chestnut Hill defeated the Boyden sisters, Mary and Martha, in a stubbornly contested three set match, 6-2, 7-9, 6-4.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The children's party on Monday afternoon, Dec. 28, was a great success. The grace and beauty of the dance numbers presented by Grace De Carlton, director of the Dance Department of the National Associated Studios of Music, and her pupils delighted both children and adults. The program by Bessie Mae Kelley, the only woman in the United States who draws animated cartoons for the motion pictures, was clever and unusual, and provided excellent entertainment for the youngsters. Miss Kelley explained the process of making the cartoons and illustrated with sketches of the little animals who appear in Aesop's Fables cartoons. While making her other sketches, she recited humorous stories and poems which pleased the children immensely. She made cartoons of two of the small boys in the audience to the great delight of the other children. At the end of the program, ice cream was served by the Social Committee, Mrs. Grace Aseltine, chairman.

On Monday afternoon, Jan. 4 at 2:30 in Fortnightly Hall, the Literature Committee will present Lafcadio Hearn's Oriental Stories and Sketches. Miss Mary L. Hodge will present the book "Kwaidan," and Mrs. Mabelle Long, the book "Karma." Mrs. Winifred B. Nicholas will give readings from his Oriental Stories.

POLICE TRYING OUT RADIO

A radio receiving set was placed in police headquarters this week as an experiment to test the practicability of radio in combating crime. The set is one capable of receiving the broadcasts from the Arlington Police Headquarters which is a licensed sending station.

Chief Rogers hopes to be able to equip his police cars with radio and to enter a proposed hook-up with local police departments. If such a hook-up is effected the receiving sets will be locked with Arlington and will be able to get only the broadcasts from that station.

The present set is working well, according to the local authorities who are able to keep posted instantly with all the police news put on the teletype at Arlington.

A WARNING!

The Star was asked last evening by one well acquainted with conditions to warn skaters to keep off Mystic Lake until we have had more cold weather. The lake is partially frozen and the danger of going from thick to very thin ice or open water is great. The lake is very deep and has been the scene of several drownings. Play safe for a few days yet!

The library trustees have requested the Selectmen to place a light on the sidewalk in front of the new library where the walk joins the sidewalk. They have also asked that the driveway directly in front of the library entrance be replaced by a curbing to conform with the rest of the curbing. The trustees believe the present layout is a menace to any one alighting from a vehicle in the darkness.

HORN POND BROOK WORK

To the Editor of the Star:

I am frequently asked how we are getting along on the Horn Pond Brook work and my reply is "First rate—go up and look it over."

If you are interested and will drive up Main street to Salem street, going to the end of that street, you will see a considerable stretch of work completed. Then drive along Main street to Canal street, stop on the bridge over the stream and look down, you will see the answer to the question. It will not be necessary to get out of your automobile to get a very good idea of the work so far completed.

FROM THE POSTMASTER

One more Christmas has come and gone, and once again we want to thank the people of Winchester for their uniform patience and good nature during our busy season. We did our best to serve you and we think our efforts were appreciated.

The volume of business was fully as heavy as in past years. Monday, Dec. 20, we sold 50,000 two cent stamps, and our bank deposit for that day was $1549. The public co-operated with us to a greater extent than ever before by separating local cards and letters from out of town, tying them in bundles or packages and depositing them in the "local" slot. It was this co-operation more than anything else that enabled us to get out the letter and card mail as rapidly as we did, contributing largely to our early clean-up. All local mail deposited in the office by Thursday noon was delivered on that day. All parcel post received up to noon was delivered the same day. All out-going parcel post was sent out the same day as deposited in the office. It is a matter of pride that not a piece of out-going parcel post was left in the office over night.

During Christmas week we had two carriers on each route, and we had two trucks for parcel post with six extra men. All parcel post received up to 2 o'clock Thursday was delivered before that night.

Some one mailed a lot of small red envelopes about 3x4 inches, these envelopes had white decorations at the lower left front. The stamps on 50 per cent of these envelopes would fly off the minute the envelopes were handled. Early in the week we spent much of our time replacing the stamps but later we had to abandon the practice, consequently we must notify 25 or 30 addressees to send us a two cent stamp in order that they may get their Christmas cards.

Postmaster

WINCHESTER BOY PROMINENT AT SPRINGFIELD

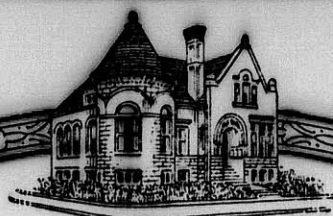

Every one in Winchester knows that Henry T. Knowlton, "Hennie" to sports followers generally, has made a great record on the gridiron as a member of the varsity football team at Springfield College. The Winchester boy won his numerals and captured his freshman team and crowned two years of successful varsity play by being elected captain of the college eleven a year ago. As captain and halfback "Hennie" contributed greatly to the success of the gymnasts during the season just past.

In addition to his football playing Knowlton has been a member of the track squad for three years and has participated in inter-class basketball, water-polo and swimming. He has been a member and president of the varsity club, president of the campus baseball league and a member of the Student Congress. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Knowlton of Salem street and before matriculating at Springfield was an all around athletic star at Winchester High, being one of the best backs in the school's history.

ENTERTAINED AT TEA

Mrs. F. R. Henderson and Mrs. W. Levi Thompson entertained the Legislature Committee and officers of the Winchester Fortnightly at tea on Wednesday afternoon in the beautiful home of the Hendersons on Ridge street.

The afternoon was much enjoyed as the mountains were distinctly visible and the view from the windows of the setting sun was beautiful.

SEVERAL FIRES OVER WEEK-END

The Fire Department was called at 7:10 Christmas evening to put out a chimney fire at the home of Mr. Charles A. Lane on Glen road. At 12:26 p. m. Saturday there was a second chimney fire at the home of Mr. Peter Doherty on Shepard court. Sunday's first alarm came in at 9:01 a. m. for a grass fire on Sargent road. A second grass fire called the department to Seneca road at 10:35 a. m. and in answering this alarm Combination 2 broke its jack-shaft key and had to be towed back to quarters by the Fire Alarm car with Everett W. Kimball at the wheel.

Sunday's next two alarms were for automobile fires, the first at 4:43 p. m. being in a Pierce Arrow on Highland avenue at Walcott road. At 6:32 a Buick coach owned by Charles Meek burst into flames in front of his home on Webster street.

At 9:40 Monday morning Fire Headquarters was notified by telephone that the living room at the home of Mr. Frank Black on Everett road was full of smoke. Upon arrival the men found a stick of wood wedged in the chimney causing the trouble.

WAS FORMER RESIDENT OF WINCHESTER

Charles Edwin Morey, 73, a retired dealer in paper manufacturers' supplies and formerly of Winchester, died Sunday, Dec. 27, of heart disease at his residence on Vaughan street, in Portland, Me.

Mr. Morey operated a large stock farm at Mechanic Falls for 20 years and was widely known as a stock fancier. He retired from business 10 years ago and had spent most of his time since then at his farm. He had resided in Portland only five years.

A native of Boston, Mr. Morey had lived in Lexington and Brookline, before moving to Winchester. He was a member of the Portland Club. Surviving are his wife, two sons, Edwin of Nashua, N. H., and Richard T. of Winchester and a brother, Walter G. of Ipswich.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the late residence. Interment was at Portland.

The police were notified at 8 o'clock Sunday evening that a family on Woodside road was being annoyed by an unknown man. Patrolman Archie O'Connell was unable to find anyone in the neighborhood, but later a second telephone call announced that the man had returned and had broken a rear window and a pane of glass in the back door. Patrolman O'Connell and John Boyle went to the house and once again thoroughly searched the entire neighborhood, again without results. Later, at the request of the householder Patrolman O'Connell went to the house and remained on guard all night.

Police Headquarters was notified shortly after midnight Tuesday morning that a woman was screaming on the Shore Road. Sgt. Edward W. O'Connell and Patrolman Daniel Kelly hastened to the scene, believing that some one might have broken through the ice on Black Ball. They found, however, a domestic altercation in progress and their services not needed.

Patrick Kennedy of upper Main street received an unwelcome Christmas present when about midnight last Friday some one threw a brick through the kitchen window of his home. Mr. Kennedy reported the matter to the police and very probably regretted exceedingly his inability to exchange gifts with his anonymous donor.

J. MURRAY MARSHALL, WELL REMEMBERED HERE

Through the current issue of the "Brown Alumni Monthly" the news of the death of J. Murray Marshall, a former well known and prominent resident, has been received. He made his home here from 1880 until 1903, residing on Hillside avenue. The Brown Alumni Monthly prints the following:

John Murray Marshall, lawyer, died in the Good Samaritan Hospital, Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 21, 1931, after a long illness. He never fully recovered from a motor car accident in which he and his wife were injured in Paris some years ago. He was born in Lockport, N. Y., June 11, 1859, the son of Benjamin DeForest and Catherine R. (Woods) Marshall. He came to Brown from the Worcester, Mass., High School, won his A.B. with the class, and his A.M. in 1884. He entered Harvard Law School in Sept. 1882, and left in 1883. He continued the study of law in Worcester and Boston and became a member of the Massachusetts Bar in October 1885. He practiced in Boston from 1885 to 1903, in which year he removed to Pasadena, Calif., and formed a partnership with Judge John D. Pope for the general practice of law in Los Angeles under the name of Pope & Marshall. From 1890 to 1893 he had served as assistant United States Attorney for Massachusetts. He was married Nov. 4, 1886, to Margaret Rowland Clapp, who died about three years ago after having suffered severely from the effects of the automobile accident in Paris. Marshall himself became sick after his wife died, but he kept keen in mind and cheerful in spirit until the end. "A delightful companion and of intimate wit," a friend has written of him, "he had a wide circle of friends here (Los Angeles) and in Pasadena, where he was an esteemed member of the Twilight Club and of the Valley Hunt Club. Farewell to John Murray Marshall is hard to say." He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The Washington Conference

One of the high points in the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union Conference, recently held in Washington, was the hour when the National officers were ushered into the office of the President of the United States. Behind them came the long line of young people—each with a great bundle of Youth's Roll Call signatures, the first 53 wearing the name of a state or territory. Mrs. Ella A. Boole, the National president, in a few well chosen words, told President Hoover that these young people bore the fulfillment of the promise to secure one million signatures to a declaration for total abstinence and law observance. She then introduced the National secretary of the Young People's Branch, who presented to the President the signed record of signatures—1,045,082, representing every state in the United States, Alaska, District of Columbia, Hawaii, Philippines and Porto Rico.

With deep emotion President Hoover expressed his appreciation and shook hands and spoke to every one of the young people as the long line passed before him.

Afterward the group gathered on the lawn and the President stood in their midst to be photographed.

The public presentation of Youth's Roll Call was a part of the mass meeting held in Foundry M. E. Church. The young people were enthusiastically cheered by the large audience. As they placed the Roll Call signatures on the front of the pulpit, Miss Jewell, National secretary, in her address said in part, "These signatures are the reply to the Challenge of Law Observance." She strove to illustrate the great number of signatures by saying, "I feel if these young people were gathered together they would form the sixth largest city in the United States; would fill the Capital City, Washington, twice over and have enough left for a smaller city of 73,000. If the young people were placed in parade formation, four abreast, they would extend from Washington to New York City, and 74 miles up the Hudson River."

The number of young people who have pledged to help prohibition to succeed is greater than the number of students in all the colleges and universities of the United States.

WINCHESTER WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Republican Club will be held Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 6 at Association Hall at 2:30 p. m. The speaker of the afternoon will be Judge Emma Fall Schofield whose subject is "Politics and Patriotism." Judge Schofield is one of the three women judges appointed by Governor Allen just before he left office. Both her father and mother were lawyers and she is now a practicing attorney. Her talk should prove very interesting as she is especially adapted to talk on this subject.

Mrs. Isabelle Winship is the soloist of the afternoon and her singing is always greatly enjoyed by everyone.

TRAFFIC REGULATIONS

ORDERED: That the action of the Board taken at its meeting of December 21st, 1931, whereby is ordered certain amendments of the Traffic Regulations be rescinded.

ORDERED: That section 1 of Article 1 of the Traffic Regulations adopted by the Selectmen December 8, 1919 be and is hereby amended by striking out clause (c), clause (q) and clause (s);

That section 4 of Article 5 of said regulations be and is hereby amended by striking out said section and inserting in place thereof the following:

"Section 4. No person shall leave a vehicle standing in any public street in the business section for more than one hour between the hours of 7 A. M. and 6 P. M. except hackney carriages at their licensed stands";

That said Article 5 be and is hereby amended by adding thereto the following new section:

"Section 8. Unlighted parking is permitted in the business section with the exception of Washington Street from Mystic Valley Parkway to Main Street and Main Street from Lake Street to Clark Street"; and

That Section 2 of Article 7 of said regulations be and is hereby amended by striking out said section and inserting in place thereof the following:

"The term 'business section' as used herein shall be held to mean and to include Church Street, from School Street to the Railroad Crossing; Vine Street, from Church Street to Elmwood Avenue; Mount Vernon Street, from the Railroad Crossing to Washington Street; Washington Street, from Mount Vernon Street to Main Street; Main Street, from Washington Street to Clark Street; Common Street; Winchester Place; Thompson Street; Converse Place and Waterfield Road."

It is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in the "Winchester Star."

By order of the Board of Selectmen,
GEORGE S. F. BARTLETT,

MYOPIA CLUB ORIGINATED IN WINCHESTER

William D. Sanborn, One of Founders Formerly Lived Where Chambers Now Stand

The following reprint from the Boston Post will be interesting to old residents who recall the objections raised by West Side farmers to the activities of the Myopia hunters with especial reference to the hounds running through their farms.

William D. Sanborn, who is mentioned as one of the founders of the club, was also active in the formation of the Winchester Country Club with its links on Woodside road. He also was among the group who first built tennis courts in Winchester, some of the town courts now on Palmer street being built upon the original foundations laid by Mr. Sanborn.

The original site of the Myopia Club, we are told, was on Myopia Hill near where the residence of Mr. S. F. Pettis now stands.

Following is the Boston Post article in full:

"While young blood is topping the timber Age looks on with a sigh; Not with feelings of envy, But regrets for the days gone by."

Let us hope that each new generation. To the best of traditions stands fast. And that the Young Blood of the present Won't forget the Young Blood of the past."

F. J. A. There is sadness, but there is strength, and indomitable purpose too, in that verse with which Frederick J. Alley, who lives on the border of the famous Willow Dale race course in Hamilton, beautiful proving ground for beautiful thoroughbred horses, prefaces his book just issued, "Myopia Races and Riders."

In Myopia Colors Sturdily bound in the colors of the Myopia Hunt Club which Myopia members have worn on many of the stiffest hunting countries of the United States and Europe, Mr. Alley's new history of the sport of the running horse in New England is a valuable and distinct contribution to men who thrill at the sight of a tossing head, a flaring "pink" lined nostril.

Mr. Alley frankly admits that in the gathering of accurate data on the results of the earliest horse races conducted by members of the Myopia Club, as it was then called, he encountered stiff obstacles, and had to resort much to the memories of those whose prowess over the turf and the timber 40 and more years ago his book retells.

In 1879 a group of sportsmen incorporated the Myopia Club in Winchester, and its name, so Alexander Henry Higginson declared in his "Hunts of the United States and Canada," and as Mr. Alley agrees, as drawn from the fact that many of the members wore spectacles.

Started 52 Years Ago They were bespectacled gentlemen, it has been pointed out, but not short-sighted, for from their Myopia Club sprang eventually the Myopia Hunt Club, with kennels and stables in Hamilton; the Country Club in Brookline, 1882, first of its kind with the lovely Clyde Park race course; the Willow Dale course on Bradley W. Palmer's huge estate in Hamilton in 1911; the Eastern Horse Club in 1925; the Norfolk Hunt Club race course in Medfield in 1927 and John R. Macomber's peerless private race course and training stables, Race-land, in Framingham the same year.

Mr. Alley starts his highly interesting history with the bespectacled sportsmen who graduated from baseball in Winchester 52 years ago to fox hunting in Winchester and Hamilton soon after, and he then traces with as full record as could be gathered the natural growth of meets of the fox and drag hounds, of the beagle hounds and of the running races and steeplechases.

Through the pages with the roar of galloping hooves pass the names of famous men, some now dead, others who still remember when the sport of kings became a kingly sport again in Massachusetts.

Past and Present The first officers of the Myopia Club Gordon K. Abbott, Gordon Prince—there is a Gordon Prince now with a stout seat on the timber toppers—Charles Albert Prince, Frederick Dabney—there is a Frederick Dabney now who wears the racing colors—Robert S. Jones, William D. Sanborn and Alfred S. Dabney.

And from their hands the goodly records of Massachusetts racing come to the present crop of riders, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Edwin S. Webster, Jr., Frederick Grinnell, Alvin F. Sortwell, Sumner Pingree, Crompton Smith, whose father, Harry Worcester Smith, made tales for many a banquet gathering.

There is too much in the book to be passed upon more than skimmingly here. It remains to be said that the author of this new contribution to local equine lore is an old member of the Myopia Hunt Club, and since the Willow Dale racing started 20 years ago, has served as clerk of the course. An old master hand with hounds and terriers, the running horse drew him on and hence his book. One hundred and eighty-nine pages give a full and fascinating story of Myopia's sport. The Sherrill Press of Boston, designed and printed Mr. Alley's book.

The STAR wishes its subscribers, advertisers and friends a Happy New Year.

The Star offers its congratulations to Maribel Vinson, and wonders what sort of home coming a girl who has five times won the national singles skating championship of the United States would experience in a town or city that enjoys paying well deserved tribute to successful athletic stars. Maybe Winchester has come to take Maribel's championships as a mere matter of course and nothing to get worked up about, but sometimes it seems strange that the town should pay so little attention to the fact that it has among its residents one of the foremost women skaters of the world.

Speaking of skating reminds us of the fact that the police have placed life preservers and ladders in two places at the Parkhurst development on the Aberjona River between Swanton street and the Railroad Culvert and also at the new park at Lake and Main streets. These are grim reminders of the fact that thin ice is at best treacherous, and we have had as yet little freezing weather to produce safe ice on the deeper lakes and ponds of the town. The police yesterday told the Star that Wedge Pond is unsafe in places and that Black Ball is unsafe. Parents will do well to warn their youngsters to keep away from these ponds and also from the Aberjona River where it has been widened and improved by Mr. Parkhurst. This last is never likely to be a safe place to skate because of the current. Little Winter Pond, Long Pond and the pond on the former Snyder estate on Highland avenue are safe, and as the water is shallow there is little risk to be run in skating there. It is natural that the police warnings about thin ice will be disregarded, and it is to be hoped that no serious consequences will result. It is a particularly selfish and foolish piece of business to venture upon unsafe ice. Not only does one risk his own life in so doing, but he places in jeopardy the lives of others who may attempt a rescue. A few more cold days will give us plenty of thick ice on which to enjoy ourselves without danger.

Appropos of the ladders and life preservers referred to in our editorial on skating, it might not be a bad idea to remind those with a bent for mischief of the malicious sort that removing or in any way tampering with the above is punishable by a fine of $50. The police are not likely to show any leniency in the matter, and public opinion will be strongly behind them.

The Star recommends to those who appreciate the unusual a trip to the home of Mr. Giuseppe Rania at 5 Emerson court where there is on exhibition this year as for many years in the past a most interesting and unique model of the manger at Bethlehem. Mr. Rania has been adding something to his crib each year and has a particularly complete collection of models, depicting the events surrounding the Saviour's birth. There are the shepherds, the Magi, the flight from Herod's soldiers, and many other things of interest painstakingly worked out to surround the tiny Christ Child. Mr. Rania welcomes visitors and we believe you will find his model interesting. He has added much to the model's attractiveness this year, making it doubly worth the trip to see.

MR. LARAWAY SEEKS INFORMATION

To the Editor of the Star:

Will some one who thinks he knows tell the taxpayers in the vicinity what the little dinky bridge over the muddy brook some distance from Clark street is for, other than to make it easier to trespass over private property on the way to the ladders over the Wildwood Cemetery fence, and to destroy property in the neighborhood.

CALUMET

CALUMET NOTES

Calumet goes to Somerville Monday evening for a match in the Mystic Valley League with Central. The locals are in a winning mood and are out to continue their climb in the circuit standing. Towanda at Calumet Jan. 11 and Calumet at Middlesex Jan. 18 are the next two league dates.

The regular afternoon bowling session for the ladies will be held Tuesday afternoon commencing at 2:15 with another scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 12. Friday evening, Jan. 15, the postponed dinner bridge will be held at the club under the direction of Mrs. Kingman P. Cass. As an added attraction there will be a one-act play after the dinner with club members providing the talent. Don't miss it.

Jan. 26 bids far to be a busy day at the club with the ladies hitting 'em on the alleys during the afternoon and Malden playing in a Mystic Valley engagement with Calumet in the evening.

The big event of the month, however, with the New Year's party a thing of the past, is the "Maine Guide Night" we told you about last week. This promises to be one of Calumet's best parties in years and advance interest indicates a record attendance. Get in your reservations at once for the number that can be accommodated is limited and the entertainment committee doesn't want to disappoint any one.

With Fred Burns, "Charlie" Nelson, "Allie" Ayers and Henry Johnson, guides from the far famed Moosehead Lake country as guests there will be plenty of tales from the north woods, and as a special feature the guides will prepare and serve a real venison dinner, offering the savory meat in several popular ways.

There will be moving pictures, entitled "Sloshing Down the St. John's River," and as an added attraction W. J. L. Roop, one of Calumet's own, has kindly consented to exhibit his unusually complete collection of guns and fire arms in the card room. Every man who loves the out-of-doors will want to be "in on this party." Get your application for tickets in to Fred Scholl now!

MENS' CLUB OF THE CHURCH OF THE EPIPHANY

The next meeting is Monday night March 4, dinner promptly at 6:30. The ladies and friends of the congregation are invited at the suggestion of the guest of the evening to join the members at 8 o'clock and enjoy the lecture with them.

The title of the lecture is "The Ancient Civilization of Central America and the land of the Aztecs" by Dr. Charles H. Tozier of this town famous physician, traveler and scientist who needs no introduction to his fellow townsmen. These pictures are the result of several trips into the jungles and mountains of this region. A great many of them are taken in a natural color and have not been shown in public before.

The ancient monuments of the Mayas of Guatemala together with the pyramids and altars of the Aztecs will be prominently displayed, as well as pictures of the more modern civilization in these countries.

The flowers and natural history specimens of this region are remarkable for their beauty and will prove a very interesting addition to the lecture.

It is hoped that many members of the congregation will take advantage of this treat.

The president of the club, Dr. Olmsted was the guest and speaker of the Glasgow Men's Club of the Stoneham Congregational Church last Monday evening. The occasion was the installation of officers which takes the form of an initiation and is meant to make an impression that will last during their term of office. This was done in such an efficient manner that it left no doubt about the results.

Members of the Epiphany Men's Club who are unable to return dinner cards will please call either Winchester 1931 or 0196-J and help the dinner committee.

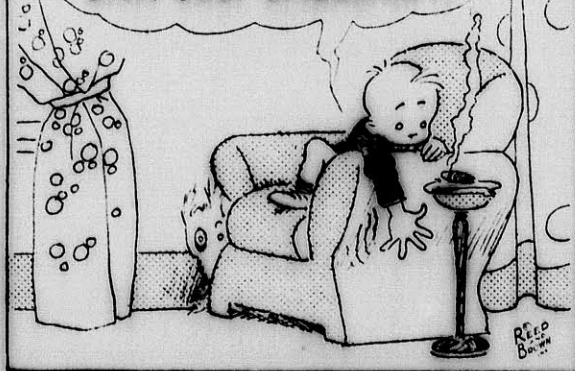

The other committees will be on hand to greet the early arrivals.

AN EFFECTIVE ORGANIZATION

Dec. 30, 1931

Dear Mr. Editor:

In view of all the talk about juvenile delinquency that we hear today, I should like to ask you if it would be possible for you to include an editorial in your paper in regard to the Boys' Club of Boston which is an organization that is doing effective work the other way, in keeping boys off the street, out of mischief and in wholesome activities.

The Boys' Club of Boston is the largest boys' club in the world, more than 12,000 members being enrolled. It has Roxbury and Charlestown club houses, swimming pools, gymnasiums, bowling alleys, game rooms, vocational classes, medical service and physical training. It is non-sectarian and its membership age limits are seven years minimum and 21 maximum. Justices of both Roxbury and Charlestown district courts have commended warmly upon the splendid influence of the club in their respective districts.

The object of the club is to give "under-privileged" boys the right start in life by surrounding them with wholesome environment and to afford them an opportunity for educational, social, moral, and physical advancement. The leading of the boys to good citizenship is even exemplified in the telephone numbers which are Charlestown 1775, 1776, and 1777. It took Harris G. LeRoy, executive director, more than a year to get that first number Charlestown 1775 for the club.

Boston has $705,000,000 invested in boys according to the following reasoning: There are approximately 141,000 boys under 21 years of age in the city of Boston. Aside from the human aspect, these boys have a very definite value. At least $500 has been spent to feed, house, and clothe the average boy each year since birth. The average age of these 141,000 boys is 10 years. The average investment is $5000 per boy. Thus, the total investment in boys is $705,000,000. This sum is comparable to the assessed value of all buildings in Boston, including homes, apartments, hotels, offices, factories, and places of business which is about $908,375,500.

For the protection of its buildings from damage and destruction, Boston appropriates $4,357,508 for its Fire Department alone. For the protection from damage and destruction of its $705,000,000 invested in boys Boston has 26 agencies which specialize in the leisure-time care of boys and which it supports at an expenditure of $346,568 a year. Over 12 times as much is spent for buildings as for boys, or for every dollar spent for protection of investments in buildings, about eight cents is spent on investments in boys.

Boston recognizes the principle of protecting private investments in buildings and considers the necessary expenditure of $5.45 per capita sound business policy. The same policy has just as practical an application to its investment in boys, upon which but 43c per capita is being spent.

If you could comment on these facts editorially, it would emphasize this great humanitarian work that is being accomplished in Greater Boston in the Boys' Club of Boston.

The Charlestown Club is located at 15 Green street. The Roxbury District Club House is located at 80 Dudley street.

The officers of the clubs include George Bramwell Baker, president; Howard Connelley, vice-president; Rudolph Weld, vice-president; T. Jefferson Coolidge, treasurer; Frank Stillman Mason, secretary. Harris George LeRoy, executive director.

Yours very truly,

H. E. Rhodes

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS

Francis X. Bushman, crowned king of motion pictures at the World's Fair in San Francisco, comes to the Somerville Theater for the week of Jan. 4, in the new comedy, "Thin Ice." Probably there is no star in pictures who has ever appeared in as many screen productions as the handsome, genial Francis X. He wrote the stories and directed the pictures of which he was the star, 417 in all. He was the Mes-sala in one of the greatest films ever made, "Ben Hur." Probably the best known face in the world, for the silent pictures had no limitations as to language and country, he was greatly beloved, and has been very much loved. A bachelor, he is not a confirmed one, and if the right lady—he feels that he may find her here, who knows what may happen. He is no stranger to the spoken play, having appeared in over 150 stage productions. He should give a smooth performance of "Thin Ice," which he has played for long runs in Chicago and other western cities. The play is a good one and enlists the full cast of the Somerville Players in support of Mr. Bushman.

Fritzi Scheff, the beautiful, dynamic star, full of pep, and in as good voice and as ambitious as ever, is having a big week in Victor Herbert's melodious opera, "Mlle. Modiste."

CHITEL—NADELMAN

Announcement is made of the marriage Nov. 10 at Nashua, N. H. of Miss Janice Nadelman, daughter of Mr. Harry Nadelman of Somerville, to Benjamin Chitel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Chitel of Washington street.

Mr. Chitel and his bride are making their home in Winchester. The bride is a graduate of Fisher's Commercial College and the bridegroom of Winchester High School. Mr. Chitel is widely known as a musician playing engagements with many orchestras in Greater Boston.

LIONS' CLUB NOTES

The regular meeting of the Lions' Club was held this week as usual on Monday at the Calumet Club. There was no speaker nor entertainment, the meeting being devoted to the transaction of club business.

It was voted to devote the first meeting of each month to such business sessions and to omit all entertainment on these dates.

GRACE AND CHARM

By Frances Mandel

THE SELECTION OF BEAUTY PREPARATIONS

I was asked recently why so many younger women's skin age before its time; why it is that their skin loses its youthful glow and natural freshness. This same question is asked daily by so many women, both young and middle aged, as they look in their mirrors. The answer lies in the selection of their beauty preparations; in their using the wrong cosmetics.

In the first place, many women foolishly buy ordinary beauty preparations which are absolutely of no aid to their complexion, while others continually buy cosmetics just because they have a nice odor, but which seldom do anything to help their skin. Every beauty preparation or cosmetic should be judged separately for the result it gives in helping a woman's individual skin needs.

Whenever considering the purchase of cosmetics, be sure that you buy only the best; only those which have been tested and proven for their satisfactory results to your particular needs.

If your skin is aging prematurely, you can be certain that you have been using the wrong cosmetics. It is not too late however. You can restore the natural smoothness and charm to your complexion by beginning immediately to use only those cosmetics which are compatible with your skin. Follow this rule and your skin and complexion will retain that clear, fresh, velvety-smooth and youthful appearance always.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

WINCHESTER'S SHARE OVER $60,000

The County Commissioners have notified the Selectmen that Winchester's share of the expense of erecting the new Middlesex County Sanatorium at Waltham for persons afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis will be probably slightly less than $61,039.23.

The Commissioners arrived at these figures by the valuation used in assessing State and County Taxes, but the actual assessment will not be forwarded the town until Jan. 10. It will be due about March 25 and must be paid in a lump sum, but the town can issue notes to cover the amount and pay them over an extended period.

One Point of View

It's good to have money and the things that money can buy, but it's good, too, to check up once in a while and make sure you haven't lost the things money can't buy.

Winding Up the Ingersoll

Robert Ingersoll was famous for the library of infidel books which he possessed. One day a reporter called on Mr. Ingersoll for an interview, and among other questions, asked: "Would you mind telling me how much your library cost you, Mr. Ingersoll?" Looking over at the shelves, he answered: "Well, my boy, these books cost me, anyhow, the governorship of Illinois, and perhaps the Presidency of the United States!"—Contact.

ETHIOPIA JOINS THE CONSTITUTIONAL PARADE

Ethiopia, one of the last absolute monarchies in the world, is to have a written Constitution. A voluntary decree of Emperor Haile Selassie, ruler of this isolated African mountain kingdom, recently ordered the institution of a two-chamber Parliament and a fundamental code of laws. Emperor Selassie will remain the head of the State, but will govern Ethiopia in conformity with the Constitution.

Constitutions, or guarantees of fundamental laws and principles, are nothing new in the light of history, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The United States is often regarded as the originator of the device, but the Greeks had a series of City-State Constitutions, 158 in number, three centuries before the birth of Christ. Emperor Justinian used the word for a code of Roman laws compiled during his reign.

All But England
Today, practically every country in the civilized world has a Constitution of some sort, although nine-tenths of them are less than 50 years old. All the important countries of the world except England have written Constitutions. In effect England has a "Constitution," because the courts and Parliament recognize a general series of fundamental laws, often referred to as "Constitutional Law," which in effect are similar to the written Constitutions of other lands. The colonies and self-governing Dominions of the British Commonwealth nearly all have written Constitutions.

Constitutions followed many changes in government after the World War. Soviet Russia adopted a Constitution on Marxian principles, n 1918, which has been a model for other states of the Soviet Union.

Other countries, whose people received Constitutions, or radical changes in existing Constitutions, since the World War include: Afghanistan, Albania, Estonia, China, Finland, Lithuania, Egypt, Latvia, Germany, Irish Free State, Free City of Danzig, Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Greece, Turkey, Iceland, Iraq, Yugoslavia and Spain.

A Double Layer of Constitutions
In a few countries national Constitutions are underlaid with state or divisional Constitutions. The United States, Germany, Brazil, Argentina, Switzerland, Mexico and the Soviet Union are the chief "federalistic" republics with two complete Constitution structures. Bolivia once was so divided but in 1886 the sovereignty of the states was abolished and they became mere departments under the Bolivia Constitution.

Most of the Constitutions of the Western World, and many of the newer ones of Europe, are modeled directly on that of the United States. Chile is an outstanding exception, in that its Constitution calls for a "responsible cabinet" whose members sit in the Chilean Congress and must resign when there is a formal vote of "lack of confidence."

EXPEDITION VISITS CITY RAZED BY GENGHIS KHAN AND TAMERLANE

Herat, metropolis of western Afghanistan, is the next major stop of the Trans-Asia Expedition led by Georges-Marie Haardt, with which the National Geographic Society is co-operating.

To locate the city of Herat on the world map, draw a line due eastward from Knoxville, Tenn. The line will almost bisect Herat, 70 miles from the Afghan border.

No one knows how long Herat has been dominating the broad plain in which it is situated, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. Remains of building strewn over the plain nearby were ancient to the ancients. Alexander the Great is credited with the building of the Herat walls during one of his formidable conquests of the East. Of that is a fact, Herat is at least 2200 years old.

A sort of hub for caravan routes leading to many parts of Central Asia, and one of the so-called doorways to India by land, Herat has been a tempting "plum" for both rulers of near-by countries and imperial strategists of the Eastern Hemisphere bent upon annexing portions of southern Asia to their domains.

Mile Square Wall Has 150 Towers
As a result its 25-foot walls, surmounted with 150 towers, have withstood many sieges but it also has often fallen before attack. In the 13th century Genghis Khan and his horde of Mongols swept down upon the city, leaving only a half hundred of its hundreds of thousands of inhabitants alive; and these survived only because they feigned death. One hundred and fifty years later Tamerlane, no less merciless, nearly duplicated the annihilation.

and Afghanistan resulted in the city's passing to Afghanistan.

Modern City Rising Outside Wall

Despite frequent revolts and attacks, Herat continues to rank with the great cities of Central Asia. Frequent rebuilding of the city within the walls has brought little change to its people and daily life. No railroad approaches Herat nearer than 80 miles; the telegraph key has never clicked within its walls. Unsightly, ancient graveyards outside the walls have been put in order, new defense works have been built, and a new extension of the city with broad streets flanked with modern shops is rising outside of the north wall; but the original moat, 45 feet wide and 16 feet deep, still is there today as it was centuries ago.

Inside the walls Herat lives in low mud and sun-dried brick buildings as did their ancestors. The streets are mere passageways. They are playgrounds of children and stages for debate by bewhiskered, turbaned men. Some of the streets are covered to keep out the sun. One chronicler was not far wrong when he compared them with rabbit warrens.

After winding through nearly a mile of covered streets, the traveler is temporarily blinded by the blazing sun that sweeps the market place, one of the few open spaces within the walls. Here brilliantly colored fruits and vegetables from the Herat plain lend the only visible bit of color to the old city, for taken as a whole, Herat is a tawny mass of buildings rising above tawny soil. Even the inhabitants are tawny complexioned, especially after one of the famous Herat winds that stir the dust of the plain. Perhaps the Great Mosque, once embellished with gilding, carvings and mosaics, presented a brighter aspect, but the building now is in ruins. It was 465 feet long and 275 feet wide. It contained 444 pillars, 208 cupolas and 130 windows.

CARTAGENA, SPAIN'S HAMPTON ROADS

Cartagena, Mediterranean port where King Alfonso left Spanish soil, is the principal naval base of Spain. With its fine sheltered harbor and arsenal, Cartagena is to Spain what Hampton Roads, on the east coast, or San Diego, on the west coast, is to the United States, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. In addition to maneuvers of the Spanish fleet Cartagena enjoys commercial activity, although it is not of great interest to travelers, except as an animated and prosperous port.

One of Spain's Oldest Cities
Founded in B. C. 221 by the Carthaginians, Cartagena is one of the oldest cities in Spain. Because it resembled the African Carthage the Carthaginians named the place Carthago Nova, and under their rule it was made the principal stronghold in Spain, the neighborhood being worked for its gold and silver. Under the Romans, later, Cartagena became the largest and richest city in Spain.

Today Cartagena has 103,000 population, busy shipyards, lead smelting and desilvering works, and an active trade with the mountain towns of the interior, with which it is connected by railroad and paved highway.

While the Castillo de la Concepcion, a little hill in the center of town, is sprinkled with Roman ruins, and modern Spanish engineers have brought electric lights, tramways, hospitals and good streets, the Moors left the greatest impress upon the city. Like those of many other cities of southern Spain the streets of Cartagena are narrow, winding, and darkened by overhanging balconies. Thick walls keep out the blazing sun of summer, and the dry, cold winds of winter months.

Location Is Strategic

Cartagena is strategically located, both as a naval base and as a commercial port, about midway between the Straits of Gibraltar and the French border. It commands the steamer lanes to Marseille and is separated by only 100 miles of sea from the African coast of Algeria. A short sail up the coast lies Valencia, and an equal distance down the coast is Malaga. Cartagena itself is in the little-known province of Murcia, whose capital is the inland city of the same name.

Navigators have no trouble in distinguishing the port of Cartagena. An almost unbroken range of mountains follows the east and south coast of Spain, but at Cartagena a distinct break is visible far at sea. Approaching closer a narrow channel is observed between two towering cones of volcanic rock, each crowded with fortifications.

From the approaching steamer the scenery outside the town appears lush and rugged. Not a tree, not a bush, not even a hardy cactus clings to the barren hillsides. The rocks, both near and at a distance, have the reddish-yellow look of peat ashes.

Mistral in the Winter

The wide harbor, the best on the east and south coasts of Spain, is skirted by the Muelle de Alfonso XII, a fine quay, bounded on the north by the old city walls. Palm groves and bright flower beds relieve the monotony of the encircling hills. As in many other Mediterranean ports the passenger railway station is some distance back of the town, although freight lines conveniently run up to the piers. Cartagena's cathedral, recently restored, dates from the 13th century.

Cartagena's principal thorn-in-the-side is the well-known Mediterranean wind, the mistral. Cold, biting, dry, it often howls through the narrow streets in winter months, tears the bay into whitecapped uproar, and sounds in the houses like the walls of human misery.

At other times the city often sizzles in dead calm. The harbor is like a mirror and the flags and pennants of the warships hang limp and lifeless from masts and yards.

Industries in the Suburbs

Cartagena's principal industries lie in the suburbs. On the east side of the bay great lead-smelting and ore working plants send black clouds of smoke into the sky. Five miles away, at La Union the old Carthaginian and Roman lead and silver mines are still being worked. The naval arsenal dates from 1874, and its docks and workshops present a scene of constant animation. In addition to the naval dockyards there are four private establishments, and many chandlers' shops. Hundreds of small sailing craft and more than a thousand steam vessels arrive at and clear the port of Cartagena each year.

In the present political changes in Spain, Cartagena plays a paradoxical, strange role. It was in Cartagena in 1873 that a rebellion against the first Spanish republic was launched, leading to the restoration of the Bourbons, and to the ascension to the throne of the father of the present king.

"With" or "From"

"To differ with" or "differ from" depends on the thought that is conveyed. In the case of a disagreement "I differ with you" would be correct. A person "differs from" another in some physical or other attributes.

Are You To Blame For The Depression?

WHAT does industrial depression mean? Merely that there is no sales market for the product of human hands, or of machinery operated by human hands.

When there is no market, there is no industry. When there is no industry there are no wages. When there are no wages there is no buying power and, eventually—as we all know—it spreads to the retail merchant, the professional man, and everyone, high and low in the scale of earning power, suffers proportionately.

Sometimes—often—the man who once had a good salary or income is worse off than the daily wage-earner, for he cannot change his mode of living in a day or unshoulder the burdens of property-owner, or employer or merchant. No matter who you are, you CAN be hit eventually.

All over Winchester today there are people whose earnings and buying power are just as good as ever, but even THEY are doing their bit to ADD to the economic conditions. They are not buying what they would normally buy. Some of them are using "depression" as a lame excuse to avoid or delay paying their just debts—debts they can meet today as well as they could three years ago.

A great deal has been said and written about the plight of the wage-earner—and it IS serious. But why is the wage-earner in dire straits? Because SOMEONE—many someones—is not buying the things he used to make. What, therefore, of the industry owner and the retail merchant who sells his goods?

There are many merchants today all over the world who are financially worse off than the poor man they are asked to aid. Banks are literally groaning with hoarded money that could and should, in part, at least, be put into circulation. One reason why rates of bank interest have been reduced in many places is the fact that not enough money is being spent to revive retail business, which in turn would revive industry and enterprises, in which capital is invested or on which loans are made. It is a "vicious circle" in which ALL are eventually whirled.

And what is the moral of all this? It is—

CHORAL SOCIETY IN FIRST CONCERT

Winchester Chorus Opens Third Season With John Percyval as Guest Artist

President George W. Stidstone announced this week that the date for the first concert of the Winchester Choral Society's third season has been chosen and is to be Tuesday evening, Jan. 26. The concert will, as usual, be given in the town hall and will include music which the society has had in rehearsal since early fall under the direction of J. Albert Wilson.

Mr. Wilson has chosen his program with his usual care and the selections offered will be both interesting and musically worth while. John Percyval, baritone, who is widely and favorably known in Winchester, will be the society's guest artist.

In voting to continue this season, the society's directors were guided by the belief that so fine a musical organization as the chorus has proven itself in its two brief seasons should not be permitted to die, even in a depression year. While the support thus far accorded the society has been gratifying the directors are very desirous of adding to their list of associate members in order to balance the yearly budget in June.

Associate memberships are four dollars and include two tickets to each of the society's two concerts in Winchester which is a financial concession the directors are glad to make associate members in order to secure their subscriptions in advance.

As usual in past seasons the choicest seats will be reserved for associate members and their tickets will be mailed to them by the society's secretary. Associate members who have seat preferences are asked to call Win. 0703 or Win. 1288-J, and so far as possible the seats they want will be allotted them. Tickets at $1.25 and $1 will be available for those who are not associate members, and a more definite announcement to this end will be made next week.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF COMMITTEE NEWS

One hundred and three persons are being employed by the proceeds of the fund subscribed by approximately 1400 Winchester residents. More than a mile of sidewalk is approaching completion. Ample additional work is in sight for this number of men. At this writing nine persons are being used on private property. Each day sees applicants for work given temporary employment.

Two thousand one hundred and forty units of clothing have up to date been distributed. It has been previously explained that a unit is a suit of clothes, pair of shoes, a sweater, a dress, etc. The demand in certain lines greatly exceeds the supply. Most needed are rubbers and arctics of all sizes, both for men, women and children. Special donations of funds for this purpose will be welcomed and will be used to great advantage. A good pair of rubbers is equivalent to new shoes on shoes and ensures dry feet in bad weather. An additional supply of coats for women, dresses of sizes approximating 48, are desired. Sweaters with sleeves for men are also needed. They may be delivered to the old library at any time between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., or clothing will be called for by telephoning Unemployment Headquarters, Win. 0793-M.

A great amount of unremitting labor is being performed by various committees. Miss Jewett, chairman of the Visiting Committee; Town Engineer Hinds, chairman of Employment Committee; Mrs. J. F. Dwinell, chairman of the Clothing Committee, are putting in long hours, together with the members of their committees on their respective duties. Mr. Frank E. Crawford, treasurer, and Mr. Charles E. Young, assistant treasurer, are putting in long days of intensive work. Mr. Richardson, chairman of the Board of Selectmen; Mr. Rogers, Chief of Police; Mr. Joslyn, chairman of Finance Committee; Mr. Fitzgerald, chairman of Fuel Committee, are also unremitting in devotion to their duties.

The Highway Department will shortly increase its force and employ 40 to 50 additional men. This work, taken in conjunction with the 103 persons employed by the committee, will give excellent protection to those most needing employment and will accomplish the relief which the general dislocation of industry has temporarily imposed upon the orderly exchange of work which normally exists.

WILLIAM E. WOOD

Services will be Saturday at 2:30 in the First Baptist Church of Arlington Center for William E. Wood, who until his retirement was president of the William T. Wood Ice Tool Company of Arlington. Mr. Wood, born in Arlington 80 years ago, died Tuesday at Idlewild, Nashua, N. H., where he recently made his home. He resided for years at 25 Lombard road, Arlington. The ice tool company was founded by his father and grandfather, and was later merged with the Gifford Company of Hudson, N. Y., to become known as the Gifford Wood Company.

Mr. Wood was a deacon of the First Baptist Church in Arlington at his death and for 50 years until his retirement in 1921 was organist of the church.

He leaves a widow, Susan Freeman Wood; two daughters, Mrs. James Nowell and Mrs. Dunbar Carpenter of Winchester, and five sons, Freeman Wood of Westfield and A. Thorne Wood of Hudson, N. Y.; Ellis Wood of Arlington, Harold B. Wood of Arlington, publisher of the Arlington Advocate, and Oliver Wood of Winthrop.

ROTARY CLUB

We are pleased to report 100 per cent attendance on Jan. 7, our first meeting of the new year.

Forty members of The Rotary Club of Woburn met with us in joint session at this time, besides several guests which they brought along with them. Other visitors and guests swelled the total attendance to 96. In short it was one of our most successful meetings.

Perhaps this large attendance was due to the fact that there was a mystery linked with this event, and of course most of us love a mystery. We had known in advance that we were to dine on venison, but the question was—Why shot the deer? The answer to this riddle was very effectively hushed, but after dinner President "Church" burst out with the information that Winn Brown of the Woburn Club fired the deadly shot, and accordingly we expressed our appreciation to him with vehemence.

But there were other features connected with this dinner aside from the eating, and of these the most unusual was that we were privileged to entertain five guides from the Moosehead Lake region of Maine, namely "Jim" Bartlett, Ralph Bartlett, Fred Burns, Henry Johnson and Charles Nelson. These men brought the tang of the woods into our midst and each of them regaled us with humorous stories of his own experiences.

We distinctly disavow the intention of saying a word to discredit Winn Brown's prowess with firearms, but if the guides stories are to be relied upon, all that is necessary to bag a deer is to go down into the woods, pitch camp, allow the deer to steal in to the camp under cover of darkness, and then unloose a barrage of tin cans, etc. Obviously Winn did not descend to this variety of sportsmanship.

There are still a few members of the club who are delinquent in the matter of dues. The club has to face heavy disbursements at this season. Members in arrears will confer a timely favor by giving this matter their immediate attention.

Reports from the chairman of the Community Service Committee are to the effect that the demands of the unemployment situation are being handled effectively. This is one of the seasons major activities, and it is a matter of satisfaction to realize that we are meeting the challenge.

Percentage of attendance Dec. 31—99.90 per cent.

WINCHESTER BASKETBALL TEAM AT BELMONT

After a strenuous day of practice following the victory of the Winchester High School basketball team will open its Massachusetts League schedule this afternoon, playing Belmont High at Belmont, commencing at 3 o'clock.

The locals have broken even in their two games to date, losing to a strong alumni team and nosing out Woburn High by a single point just before the Christmas recess. In the alumni game the graduates carried too much man power for the school boys and ran up an overwhelming early game lead which their fresh players enabled them to hold. Against Woburn Winchester got the jump and just managed to stave off a great late game spurt by the invaders.

Coach Lindeman stated yesterday that his club is commencing to show some improvement but he is far from sanguine of the team's chances at Belmont which has always been a good basketball town.

The popular local mentor thought he had a tough assignment when he tackled football here, but he found basketball conditions even worse, with but a single experienced man in Dexter Mobbs available for his quintet.

The two platoon, band-box gym and the fact that Winchester boys play no basketball until they reach high school make it all but impossible to produce winning teams here, and local followers of the game must possess themselves with patience until local conditions approximate those in other schools against which the Red and Black competes.

Mobbs will be the only letter man on the floor when Winchester meets Belmont today and he will start at one of the guard positions, the other being filled by Frank Procopio. "Hal" Knowlton, who has shown a good eye for the hoop in the two games previously played, will be at one of the forward berths with Sheldon Hamilton, hero of the Woburn game, at the other. "Fred" Phibbrick will play center. Charles Dolan, forward, and Fred Noble, guard, are substitutes who will likely see action before the final whistle.

ENTERTAINED FOR NAVAL MAN

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Hodgson and Mrs. Hodgson's sister, Mrs. Annie I. Mitchell, of the Winchester Hospital staff, entertained New Year's eve at their home on Forest street in honor of Mrs. Mitchell's son, Mr. George Mitchell, a naval radio man who was in Winchester on furlough. Between 35 and 40 guests were present to assist Mr. Mitchell in welcoming the New Year.

On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Robinson entertained for Mr. Mitchell and at the conclusion of their party he returned to duty.

WARNING

The recent rains and mild spell have rendered the larger ponds of the town unsafe for skating and parents are advised by the police to forbid their children going on them until we shall have had several days of good freezing weather.

Mrs. Clarence H. Gustin of 375 Cambridge street is ill at the Winchester Hospital.

THE MAN WHO STAYED AT HOME CHOSEN FOR LEGION PLAY

The American Legion Players of Post 97 have again chosen a war play for their annual performance, which this year takes place on Friday and Saturday nights, Jan. 29 and 30, in the Town Hall. Contrary to last winter's show "Journey's End" which was a drama of trench warfare, this play, "The Man Who Stayed at Home" is a spy story with its entire action on the English sea coast.

Written in the early days of the great conflict when Europe was in a turmoil of preparation for the front and rumors were rampant, it is a play of mystery from the opening scene to the drop of the final curtain. Location is fittingly near training grounds for troops, surrounded on the ocean side with submarines and other naval craft, conjuring up a variety of situations with many tense moments.

The action embraces one entire day and evening at a typical English boarding house, treating of the hopes and fears of civilians over the war, woven into a series of thrilling episodes involving soldiers and spies. Perhaps no other stage depiction of "The Home Sector" has been quite so successful enjoying long runs in England and on the Continent, later being introduced to America in the early days of the war.

Gerald Hills as "Christopher Brent" plays the part of one who thoroughly enjoys the home hearth, but who the audience feels knows more about this war than given credit for Jane Townley-Tilson, as "Molly Preston" is the daughter of a well-to-do manufacturer. She is youthfully inquisitive and intensely patriotic, disturbed at times as the plot develops. Her father "Preston" a retired business man, taken by Nathan Thumim, has decided ideas on the progress of the war and those who for one reason and another stay at home. He does not hesitate to venture opinions and on occasion stirs up more or less trouble.

Mrs. Leigh, former acquaintance of Brent in South Africa is played by Ethel Goodwin. Her arrival at the boarding house is not thoroughly explained to the "satisfaction of all" but her conduct at least in the early part of the play is above suspicion. W. H. Dermot Townley-Tilson, remembered as the "Raleigh" of last year's performance, again plays the part of a young volunteer in the service and is known as "Pennicuk" of the 39th County of London. During training he is on guard duty in the vicinity and in position to witness much that goes on, as is G. W. Johnston who takes the part of Corporal of the Guard.

Frauline Schroeder, on the other hand, played by Mary Cameron, though a German governess, has become naturalized and is generally conceded by the boarders to be patriotic above reproach. Still the thought lingers in our minds that she was born a German and so might still be a trifle sympathetic with the enemy. Likewise Fritz, the German man-of-all-work about the boarding house, played by Raymond Hayward, still affects his German accent, though in England several years.

"Mrs. Sanderson," the genial landlady, played by Mrs. Pearl T. Miller, keeps all the boarders in good humor, appearing on the stage frequently. You would enjoy her nice pies. Her son "Carl" of the British Admiralty, played by Kinnaman Cass, comes down from London, often bringing latest news from Headquarters; at least as much as he is allowed to divulge for he is entrusted with Government secrets.

Anne Grosvenor is "Miss Myrtle," a peaceful and unsuspicious spinster, who wants no violent arguments over the war. Quite opposite to Miss Myrtle's temperament is "Daphne Kidlington" in the person of Ione Dana, whose purpose is to make a public show of all suspected pacifists. Frank Fowle of Malden, whose professional work is well known in Winchester theatricals, is coaching the production, with Harry Goodwin as stage manager assisted by Mary F. Cass and Nita Smith.

Tickets are now on sale under the direction of Theodore R. Godwin of 6 Mystic Valley Parkway, business manager of the show and are priced at 75c, $1 and $1.50 for both nights, with all seats reserved. Chairman Godwin is being assisted in the sale of tickets by the following committee: Richard Parkhurst, 30 Grove street; Kenneth S. Hall, 12 Symmes road; Theodore W. Lawson, 418 Washington street; Manlio G. Moffette, 145 Washington street; William E. Ramsdell, 6 Summit avenue; Lucius Smith, 38 Park avenue; John H. Terry, Jr., 12 Euclid avenue; Andrew Anderson, 18 Kenwin road; Edward F. Boyle, 15 Russell road; Clifford S. Towner, 16 Everett road; Gerald K. Richardson, 31 Forest circle; Salvatore D. DeTeso, 12 Olive street.

Tickets are also on sale at Hevey's Drug Store, the Star Office and Winchester News Company.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

The Winchester Branch of the M. C. W. G. will hold the first business meeting of the New Year on next Thursday evening, Jan. 14 at 8 p. m. Members interested in the Christmas charities which the Charitable Committee has done should attend and hear their report. Also the Regent will report on quarterly meeting of the State Guild which was held Dec. 5.

The reports are always very interesting for they bring out clearly the large scope of work carried on by the several Guilds collectively, as well as individually.

LONG A WINCHESTER RESIDENT Mrs. Martin Crawford Passed Away This Morning

Mrs. Annie Crawford, widow of the late Martin Crawford, passed away at her home, 38 Swanton street, this morning. She was 86 years of age and a native of County Galloway, Ireland, and had made her home in this town for 65 years. She had been in excellent health, her death being caused by a shock suffered early in the night.

Mrs. Crawford was the mother of Mr. Patrick H. Croughwell, well known to Winchester residents as employee of the town sanitary department and an active participant in town affairs through the columns of the Star and on the floor of town meeting.

An interesting history attends the difference in spelling of the family name. Years ago, shortly after Mr. Crawford settled here, his name, then Croughwell, was listed by the assessors as Crawford. The listing was accepted and so stood. Later his son Patrick, in conducting legal matters, was advised that he should use the original name, which he has since done.

Mrs. Crawford was widely known and highly respected by old-time residents. She is survived by four sons—Patrick, Henry (Croughwell) and Charles of this town, John of Chicago and Edward of Evanston, Ill., and by one daughter, Miss Lora Crawford of this town. She also leaves three granddaughters, Mary, Helen and Edna Croughwell of this town. Solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated at St. Mary's Church on Monday morning at 9 o'clock. The burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

CHAMPIONS TO SKATE AT COUNTRY CLUB

Maribel Vinson and Other Stars to Exhibit Skill in Winchester

Mr. James W. Russell, Jr., of the skating committee of the Winchester Country Club announced yesterday that several of Uncle Sam's best Olympic skating prospects are to give an exhibition of their skill at the Country Club on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 16, commencing at 2 o'clock.

Local interest will naturally center about the appearance of Maribel Vinson, the Winchester girl who has for five successive years won the Ladies' National Singles Championship. Miss Vinson is one of the finest skaters of her sex in the world and is sure to receive a great reception when she steps onto the ice in her home town.

With Miss Vinson will be Roger F. Turner of Milton, National Singles champion; Miss Margaret Bennett of the ladies' singles competition; Miss Suzanne Davis of Boston, George E. B. Hill, winner with Miss Vinson of second place in the national pairs; James L. Madden, runner up to Turner in the Nationals; Miss Grace Madden, Miss Polly Blodgett and others.

DR. TOZIER AT EPIPHANY MEN'S CLUB

An entertainment of unusual character was provided the Men's Club of the Parish of the Epiphany last Monday evening by Dr. Charles H. Tozier who described himself as a "hard-shelled Baptist." To this lecture the ladies of the parish were invited. The lecture covered both the old and modern civilization of Central America and Mexico and was illustrated by beautiful photographs in color. These pictures comprised views of the City of Mexico, interiors of cathedrals and palaces, market scenes, primitive life of natives in the jungle, pyramids and monuments left by the Aztecs, plant life, birds, insects, etc. all described by the Doctor in a witty, informal manner.

At the close of his lecture, the Doctor kindly added some of his so-called "dream pictures," including mountains of the Northwest, gorgeous tropical gardens, and exquisite flowers pictured right here in the home town. It was an entertainment long to be remembered by those who were so fortunate as to be present.

PSYCHOLOGY IN THE SERVICE OF THE SOUL

Dr. Chidley to Preach Series at First Congregational Church, Beginning Sunday

At the First Congregational Church next Sunday morning, Dr. Chidley will begin a series of sermons on psychology and religion under the general title of "Psychology in the Service of the Soul."

There is a great deal of confusion in the minds of people as to the value of spiritual healing, psychotherapy and disease. Needless to say, some of the treatments are good and some are bad. Dr. Chidley will try, in this series of sermons, to clarify the issues involved and to suggest wherein psychology and religion may co-operate not only for us to gain a better understanding of ourselves, but can be made of practical service in the living of our daily lives. The dates and subjects are given below:

- Jan. 10, "Thoughts in the Cellar of Ourselves"
- Jan. 17, "The Value of Confession"
- Jan. 24, "St. Francis, D.D."
- Jan. 31, "Autobiography as a Means of Grace"
- Feb. 7, "Faith and Purity"
- Feb. 14, "Lutheranism, Sunday"
- Feb. 21, "George Washington and Us"

Hopkins of Newton and formerly as Miss Genevieve Hickey, teacher of elocution in St. Mary's Parochial School.

BONNELL MOTORS IN NEW HOME

Bonnell Motors, Winchester distributors for Ford automobiles, are now occupying their fine new quarters at 632 Main street in the former Metropolitan Garage.

Extensive alterations and the complete renovation of the garage by Contractor Norman Osborne has adapted the building to the needs of the local company and made it one of the finest automobile plants in town. Mr. Ralph Bonnell, as the head of Bonnell Motors, extends a cordial invitation to all motorists to visit his company in its new home.

UNITED STATES POSTOFFICE

During the month of December the local postoffice sold over 215,000 two cent stamps in addition to thousands of one cent and one and a half cent stamps. The volume of business and the cash received from sales was the largest for any month in the history of the office. This does not look like depression especially as numerous other offices report a substantial increase over last year. And by the way, that word "depression" should be deleted from the English language.

POLICE MADE MORE ARRESTS IN 1931

Figures in the report submitted to the Selectmen for 1931 by Police Chief William H. Rogers show an increase of 48 in the total arrests over 1930 with 387 being taken into custody this last year. Of the 147 arrested for violations of the motor vehicle laws, 31 were arrested for drunken driving, a gain of 13 over the figures for 1930. Arrests for drunkenness totaled 115, or 22 more than during the year previous. It is of interest that all of the 24 cars stolen in Winchester during the year were recovered and in addition the local police recovered 17 cars stolen in other towns and cities.

The report of Fire Chief David H. DeCourcy lists the total number of fires for 1931 at 259 or 15 less than the year previous. The men laid 29,300 feet of hose in 1931, traveled 1001 miles and raised 13,049 feet of ladders. Eighteen calls for causes other than fires were answered during the year which also marked the introduction of intensive ladder drill at local headquarters under the direction of Fireman A. W. MacKenzie and J. L. Nowell, graduates of the Arlington Fire Department School.

THE DISABLED VETERANS' WELFARE GROUP OF WINCHESTER

Recognizing the many demands on every lady's time and purse this fall the Group endeavored to meet its obligations by taxing as little as possible either of these. In consequence the gifts at Christmas time were not as numerous, nor as expensive as in former years. The men in the hospital realize this condition and are very grateful for all that is done for them.

A box was sent to the Rutland Heights Hospital containing three beautiful afghans made by Mrs. Chas. E. Corey and her group of tireless workers. Cigarettes, playing cards and ten pairs of hand knit socks the yarn being a gift from the Winchester Chapter of the Red Cross. There is sufficient yarn to make as many more which will be sent as soon as finished. The list of gifts for the Bedford Hospital consisted of four Afghans made by Mrs. Corey and two new Morris chairs, fumed oak and leather cushions for the Infirmary Ward and basket of evergreens and flowers. Packages for 14 men who have no family connections from whom to receive Christmas remembrance. These packages contained a variety of articles such as scarfs, gloves, military brushes, neckties and handkerchiefs, also cigarettes, playing cards and wash cloths with cake of soap.

Small gifts to a few of the old patients who have left the hospital were gratefully acknowledged.

Donations from members and friends included candy and cigarettes in generous quantities, and the Group is especially grateful to those friends who helped by contributing gifts of money at this time.

An unexpected gift very much appreciated by the men came from Mr. Edward Filene and we are grateful to him. It has given us an idea which may develop into something of importance so far as helping the non-compensated men at Christmas time another year.

Greetings have come to the Group from men long since returned to their homes and it is naturally pleasing to know that they still remember with gratitude the acts and friendships of past years, some of these men having been discharged as long ago as seven and eight years.

Many cards have been received, especially the appreciation and gratitude of men still in the hospital with wishes for the health and happiness of all Group members and their families for the New Year.

FIRE DROVE WINCHESTER FAMILY TO STREET

A fire, discovered at the home of Everett S. Delorey on Baldwin street, forced him and his family into the street at 3:20 a. m. Monday morning. While Mr. Delorey was getting the children safely from the house Mrs. Delorey telephoned the Fire Department, Box 34 being sounded from the Central Station.

After a cold run through the freezing night the men found that the fire had originated in a closet on the first floor of the house. The closet was burned out and a quantity of clothing destroyed, but the firemen were successful in confining the blaze to the first floor of the dwelling.

Fire Chief David H. DeCourcy estimated the damage at about $200. Mr. Delorey was burned about the hands attempting to put out the blaze. He and his family were cared for by neighbors.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"Over the Hill," starring James Hall and Sally Eilers, the couple who made such a hit in "Bad Girl," will head the program that opens a run of seven days at the big Granada Theater in Malden on Saturday. As a silent picture "Over the Hill" broke all attendance records and with the improved facilities of sound the film becomes an even greater attraction. Mac Marsh, film favorite of a decade ago, returns to the screen in the mother role. As the head of a family, Mac Marsh pictures the struggles of a mother to keep her children on the right path and meet the expenses of a growing family. Mac Marsh is said to give a portrayal that touches the heart. James Dunn and Sally Eilers are the young lovers.

Joe E. Brown in another of his feature comedy hits entitled "Local Boy Makes Good" will be the second attraction on the Granada bill for Saturday. "Local Boy Makes Good" is not the slapstick variety of comedy with which Joe Brown has been identified.

Ruth Chatterton in "Once A Lady" heads the double bill that ends its run at the Granada on Friday. "The Men In Her Life" starring Lois Moran and Charles Bickford is the second attraction on the current bill. In this picture Lois Moran gets away from the nice girl parts and plays a sophisticated society girl.

FORMER WINCHESTER BOY TO MAKE STAGE DEBUT

Curtis Hunnewell of South Braintree, formerly of this town, is to make his stage debut when he appears as a specialty dancer at the Colonial Theatre, Boston, in "Marina" an operetta, written by Mrs. Larz Anderson, which opens Jan. 11 for one week.

While in Winchester, Mr. Hunnewell made his home with his aunt, Mrs. Frank J. Nagle of Washington street and is well known here.

Miss Katherine Parrott, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Winchester Hospital last week is reported as much improved. Miss Parrott, one of the town's promising young tennis players, was obliged to default her matches in the junior indoor tournament at Longwood because of her illness.

GRACE AND CHARM

By Frances Mandel

DOUBLE CHINS

Of course you have all seen double chins. Undoubtedly some of you are in possession of one of them. They do not add to one's beauty. As it is the desire of every woman to look her best at all times, it is to her advantage to spend a few minutes, morning and night, to prevent its appearance. Perhaps you are among those who are unfortunate in having a double chin. If you are, you can eradicate it by the same solution. Spend a few minutes every day, massaging the chin with a good tissue cream or muscle oil, using an upward motion, which will in a surprisingly short time develop the facial muscles and hold them in place. You will also find a chin-strap very beneficial, the same which is applied at night before retiring.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

HOLIDAY QUIET IN WINCHESTER

While 1932 received a rousing welcome in Winchester at scores of private parties and at large gatherings in both the Calumet and Country Clubs, there was little of an unfortunate nature to mar the celebrations.

The police blotter was very free from major disturbances and there were unusually few arrests. In response to a telephone call at 4:10 New Year's morning, Patrolman James F. Noonan was sent to remove two large signs which some reveller had placed in the middle of Main street at Sheridan circle, and at 4:37 Patrolman Noonan made a trip to Winter Pond, a neighboring householder having been alarmed at a group of boys who were setting fires.

Arriving at the pond, Officer Noonan found three boys, who had previously attended a midnight show in Woburn, enjoying themselves skating. They had built a fire at the edge of the pond for light and warmth.

At 8:11 New Year's morning the Fire Department went into action when Box 574 was sounded for a fire, set by sparks from the chimney, on the roof of the Country Club. The Arlington Department also answered and the fire was taken care of with but slight damage.

Mrs. Mary L. Halvorson called the Fire Department at 11:45 New Year's morning, requesting the firemen to come to her home at 67 Dunster lane and see if a fire discovered in the cellar of the house had been completely extinguished.

Upon their arrival the men found that a barrel of rubbish had been smoldering in the cellar, but had been put out by Mr. Halvorson. The family had been away and upon their return home found the house full of smoke.

The cellar beams were charred and much of the woodwork on the first floor of the house, scorched. The fire had evidently smothered itself because of the fact that the tightly closed house afford no draft. Had there been a window open the house would likely have been destroyed.

At 1 o'clock New Year's afternoon Motorcycle Officer John Murray noticed a Ford truck, bearing 1931 plates approaching the center. Stopping the driver, he asked for an explanation and was told that the operator hadn't gotten around to getting his 1932 plates and had been told by "a Charlestown policeman" that he could run on his old plates for a day or so.

Officer Murray took him to Headquarters where he gave his name as Arthur Reor, and his address as 381 Main street, Charlestown. The truck was removed to the Central Garage to await the arrival of proper plates.

Miss Betty Barnard of Wedgemere avenue has returned to Rogers Hall, after having spent the Christmas vacation at home.

MR. TUCK GIVEN BLACKTHORN BY CURLEY

Whitfield L. Tuck, known in political circles as "the original Bryan man" is the possessor of a heavy Irish blackthorn, the New Year's gift of Mayor James M. Curley of Boston.

In presenting the stick to the veteran Winchester politician, Mayor Curley remarked that Mr. Tuck might never have cause to use the gift to defend himself, but might handle it as a baton to lead the Roosevelt forces to victory next year. Mr. Tuck is a strong Roosevelt man and was among the first Democrats of the State to wear the New York Governor's button.

Mayor Curley characterized him as "for a generation the most unflinching Democrat of Massachusetts, despite his 20 odd years of Bryanism."

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

"The Ruling Voice" which starts Sunday for four days at the University Theatre, presents the dynamic Walter Huston as the czar of a grafting organization which corners the milk supply of a great city. His daughter returns from abroad, where she has been educated in ignorance of the source of her father's wealth. Misfortunes that come to her through it awaken him when too late to remedy the sins he has committed against the children of the poor. A love story of tender beauty runs through the dark sequences of this true story of modern menace. Among those featured are Loretta Young, Doris Kenyon, David Manners, Dudley Digges, John Halliday and Gilbert Emery.

A reckless border bandit, a cavalry sergeant grimly determined to capture him, an alluring Mexican dancer and a courageous widow provide plenty of thrills, action and romance in "The Cisco Kid," the companion feature. Warner Baxter, Edmund Lowe, Conchita Montenegro and Nora Lane have leading roles in this offering.

An unshaven and disheveled Ronald Colman, without his striped trousers, his Oxonian speech or his Chesterfieldian manners, is the not inconsiderable promise in "The Unholy Garden," the new Samuel Goldwyn picture which comes Thursday for the last three days of the week. In this adventure melodrama, Colman is seen as Barry Hunt, a gentleman adventurer, a rogue who has seen better days and honest ways. With a motley crew of other outcasts, he is hiding from the police in a Sahara desert outpost camp. One of the number, a wretched old French man, is believed to have hidden his plunder somewhere upon the premises, and to worm this information from him is the individual and collective effort of the group. Spying, intrigue and flying desert rides are essential ingredients of the yarn.

"Heartbreak," the companion feature, is a romantic drama based on Llewellyn Hughes stirring story of an honorable deserter. Charles Farrell, Madge Evans and Hardie Albright head the cast.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

"Surrender," with Warner Baxter and Lelia Hyams, and "Nice Women," starring Sidney Fox, will make up the double feature bill that opens at the Mystic Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "Surrender" is a war picture that never gets within miles of the front. Warner Baxter is cast as a handsome French officer who is a prisoner in a German punishment camp. When the commander of the camp discovers that Baxter is an electrical engineer, he is assigned to wire for electric lights an old castle close by the detention camp. While working at the castle he meets a beautiful German girl who lives there with a solitary old man, the father of her fiancé. Naturally, she regards the Frenchman as an enemy and scorns him, but following subsequent meetings, she mellows her attitude and finally discovers that she is in love with him. Baxter and Miss Hyams make a romantic couple.

In addition to Sidney Fox, "Nice Women" presents Frances Dee, Allan Mowbray and Russell Gleason in important roles. "Nice Women" has smart dialogue and a capable cast. "The Ruling Voice" with Walter Huston, Loretta Young and Doris Kenyon as the leads, heads the bill that ends its run at the Mystic on Friday. John Barrymore in "The Mad Genius" is the second feature on the current bill.

Mrs. Brophy came to Winchester several years ago from her native city of Lowell. She was widely known there and during her residence in Winchester made many friends who will learn of her passing with regret.

SUSAN CAROLINE BRAZER

On Monday morning Mrs. Susan Caroline Brazer passed away in the 90th year of her age after an illness of more than five months. She was born in Boston, Oct. 2, 1842, the daughter of James B. and Caroline J. Nason. Not long after her marriage she came to Winchester where she lived for many years. There are still some residents of this town who recall the keen pleasure which her naturally sweet soprano voice gave in the early days when she sang at social gatherings and in the choir of the Congregational Church more than 50 years ago. For 20 years she taught music in the public schools. Her natural aptitude for this work was such that not only was she completely successful but she endeavored herself to every child who came under her instruction. Throughout her life her unusual personality had a remarkable attraction for children. Many of her old pupils who have now reached middle age love to recall the weekly visits of their singing teacher as among the very happy days of their childhood. And Mrs. Bailey's concerts in which they took part were events never to be forgotten.

Naturally affectionate in her disposition and with an interest in people that was always unaffected and sincere she had a host of friends who felt it a privilege to be counted as such. Wherever she was she radiated joy and sunshine. Few would realize that trouble and sorrow had touched her life rather more deeply than it does that of most people.

After an absence of several years from Winchester and when her invalid husband, Frank Brazer, for whom she tenderly cared had passed on, it was fitting that Mrs. Brazer, lacking any immediate family, should return to spend the eventide of her life in Winchester where she had so many friends and interests. On June 3, 1919, she entered the Home for Aged People where her presence has always been a joy to the family as well as to her many friends, old and new, who loved to visit her there. Often she expressed her gratitude and appreciation for all that the Home meant to her in her declining years.

"Lovely and soothing Death" never had a more willing companion. Patiently, longingly she waited for the "strong Deliverer" and when her summons came was only too glad to leave the winter cold and snow of this life for the spring and violets of the next. Just before dawn, eager to meet the sun of a better day this generous, lovable soul, this loyal, kindly woman went to receive the fullest welcome of other friends in the land of joy and peace. This world was better because she lived in it. May we not think that the next will be more radiant because of her smile.

A very beautiful farewell service for Mrs. Susan Caroline Brazer was held in the Unitarian Church Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. George Hale Reed and the Rev. Charles P. Wellman, a young friend of former days, officiating. Appropriate musical selections were rendered by Mrs. Anna Winn Lochman and Mrs. Helen Edlefson Barr.

A meeting of the Fortnightly Literature Group was held in Fortnightly Hall on Monday, Jan. 4 at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Mae Kennedy, chairman, was in charge of the meeting.

The subject for the afternoon was "Oriental Stories and Sketches" of Lafcadio Hearn. Two very interesting papers were read; one by Mrs. Mabelle M. Long reviewed the book "Karma." This book Hearn has built around that one word, which so greatly influences Oriental life, as was shown through the many well chosen passages which Mrs. Long quoted. The other paper by Miss Mary L. Hodge reviewed the book "Kwaidan." This book interpreted the Oriental mind to our Western intelligence by giving to us some of the folk lore of the Japanese. Miss Hodge read two of the most interesting of the folk tales to the delight of her audience.

Another event of the afternoon which proved most entertaining was the reading by Mrs. Winifred B. Nicholas of two of the stories of Lafcadio Hearn; "The Romance of the Milky Way" and "Kimiko." The group then discussed the development of Hearn's style and their personal reaction to it.

Mr. Frederick S. Snyder of this town, as president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, has been chosen as one of six who will be in charge of allocating the $3,000,000 fund which is to be raised in Boston for unemployment relief. Mr. Snyder, in addition to his duties in Boston, is also serving as chairman of Winchester's unemployment committee, the members of which are doing yeoman service to better local conditions.

CALUMET

CALUMET NOTES

Five Maine Guides from that hunter's paradise, the Moosehead Region, drove into Winchester Tuesday evening and established themselves at the Calumet Club so as to be in complete readiness for the big Maine Guide Night which the club is sponsoring tomorrow evening.

As the time approaches there can be no questioning the statement that this will be one of Calumet's best parties in years. The guides are all fine fellows and laden with just the sort of stories and anecdotes relished by men who love the out-of-doors and revel in the good fellowship of the campfire.

As he entered the club one of the guides was mistaken by several Calumeters for "Vin" Clarke, so greatly did he resemble the popular Selectman. Met by Steward Fred Scholl and Chairman "Ed" Merrill of the entertainment committee, the guides identified themselves as Fred Burns, Charlie Nelson, Henry Johnson and "Jim" and Ralph Bartlett, the last named pair coming in place of Allie Ayers who was unable to make the trip.

The quintet reported heavy snow in Maine and came early as they anticipated trouble in getting through. They encountered two feet of snow in Portland, but were able to reach Winchester in a day. They brought all the necessary cooking equipment to prepare the luscious venison dishes for which the Moosehead camps are famous.

With an eye to making the guides comfortable Steward Scholl secured army coats and blankets from the Woburn Armory, and the visitors from Maine needed little persuading to make the club their headquarters. After a pleasant evening, spinning yarns the guides turned in to rest up for a strenuous day of sight-seeing in Boston on Wednesday.

In connection with their trip to the metropolis the guides were advised by "Ed" Merrill to leave their guns at the club and to refrain from blazing any trails about the city presided over by Mayor Curley.

Thursday noon the quintet experienced the hospitality of the Winchester and Woburn Rotarians, being guests of these neighboring clubs at luncheon; and the woodsmen expect to keep busy right up to the time of the big time Saturday night.

They are looking forward to the latter, and it might be timely to state that only 200 can be accommodated at the party. Tickets are, and have been going fast. Better get yours tonight from Fred Scholl.

In addition to the venison supper which the guides are to prepare Saturday evening there are to be movies, and a really unusual exhibition of guns of all kind, made possible through the courtesy of W. J. L. Roop, one of Calumet's members. An expert from Boston is to be on hand to give an exhibition of fly casting, and there are several other features which "Ed" Merrill and his committee are keeping a secret. All in all the affair is going to be some party, and no Calumeter should miss it.

The club's big New Year party lived up to all its advance notices. The time-worn "a good time was had by all" including many guests, good music, a fine dinner and entertainment—what more could 1932 ask in the way of a welcome?

To begin with, the hall was most attractive with multi-colored balloons against a gleaming white ceiling. Individual tables were arranged in sizes to accommodate the size of individual parties. Music for the dancing was furnished by Don Haffernahl's Orchestra, a favorite with Calumet dancers.

Harold Bostwick acted as master of ceremonies, and kept things moving at a rapid pace from the opening to the closing of the party. Chief of the entertainers was Miss Virginia Jordan, popular cabaret star, who offered a coterie of snappy songs in an inimitable manner. She was assisted by a professional violinist and two eccentric dancers from Boston play houses.

At midnight there was an expectant hush, preceding a gasp of delight as two spot lights played upon the stage, lighting up a beautiful gold curtain upon which appeared the words, "Happy New Year, 1932." The 1932 was done in silver spangles, and in the spot lights gleamed like diamonds.

With all sorts of favors and noisemakers the revellers bid a boisterous welcome to the incoming year, after which every one sat down to a most satisfying dinner with creamed chicken in patte shells as the piece de resistance and the menu running the whole gamut from fruit cup to ice cream, cakes and coffee. The fact that the club's popular steward, Fred Scholl, was responsible for the menu and its preparation will be enough to tell Calumeters who weren't lucky enough to be present. After the dinner dancing continued until 2 o'clock New Year's morning. Mrs. Harold Bostwick headed the committee in charge of the party.

Knew Man

A Baltimore policeman picked up a small girl crying lustily for "mamma." Other than that her name was "Marie" he could learn nothing about her. She was taken to police headquarters. Finally some one thought to ask her where she bought her candy when at home. She gave the name of a candy store owner without hesitation. The rest was easy. Her name was Marie Biser, aged four. She had strayed from her mother in a downtown store. —Capper's Weekly.

WINCHESTER'S NEED

To the Editor of the Star:

In the Star of last week, on the editorial page, there are two articles which are deserving of more than casual reading. One is under the heading, "An Effective Organization" and calls attention to that remarkable Boys' Club of Boston and the far reaching influence it has on its young members. The introduction reads:

"In view of all the talk about juvenile delinquency that we hear today, I should like to ask you if it would be possible for you to include an editorial in your paper in regard to the Boys' Club of Boston which is an organization that is doing effective work the other way, in keeping boys off the streets, out of mischief, and in wholesome activities."

It speaks well for Winchester that so many of our people are interested in this club in Boston and are regular contributors to it; but, I wonder, how many of them know of the pitiful need which exists for just such an organization in Winchester?

About a year ago a former Winchester High School boy brought me a petition signed by about 35 fine, ambitious young men interested in athletics, asking me to help find some place where they could meet for games and amusements.

Most of these young people live on the lower side of Washington street, and some of them in cramped and crowded homes where gatherings with friends of their own age and interests is out of the question.

The young man presented the case something like this: "There simply is nothing we can do and no place for us to go. If we hang around pool rooms we are kicked out; if we go into the barber shops we are not wanted; if we gather in doorways or on street corners the cop tells us to move on. Many of the boys are high school graduates and excelled in athletics in school and the interest created there in sports is still with them. During the warm months we manage pretty well to keep busy out of doors, but during the winter the case is hopeless."

We investigated every possibility I could think of—from vacant store buildings to barns, but found nothing suitable that we could finance. At the present time we are investigating quarters which, if nothing better turns up, may be secured for a modest rental during the rest of the year. But the boys have no money and only a few of the parents can afford to contribute. Knowing how difficult it is for many whose "assets," be they few or many, are "frozen" to such an extent that they cannot even pry loose enough for their own obligations, and knowing how much our able and generous givers have done and are doing, we have not the courage to go to them and ask for more. But you who read this and who can do one more good deed, will you not look into this opportunity, this privilege to help these fine, ambitious young people to find a place where they may spend their leisure time in wholesome amusements, and not let their idle hours start them on the wrong road?

The time of publication limits this to an attempt merely to call attention to the situation. In the next issue of the Star I hope some definite plan may be offered. Meanwhile if you have any suggestions, or are interested and able to help in any way will you kindly send your name either to the Star or to the undersigned?

The other article to which I referred is the editorial calling attention to the splendid conquests of our Winchester Queen of the Ice, Miss Maribel Vinson. What other town in the U. S. A. would let such an accomplishment in beautiful and wholesome sport by one of its own young people go by unnoticed without as much as a "Well done!" and a friendly pat on the back?

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Once again the Girls Scouts of Massachusetts will hold their annual All-Scout Conference which will be organized and managed entirely by the Scouts themselves. Scouts compose the executive council, Scouts will make all the important addresses, and Girl Scouts will preside over the round-table conferences and discussions of their own movement.

This year the conference will be held in Lynn, at a place not yet chosen, and will take place on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 13 and 14. It will begin Saturday morning at 8 o'clock with the registration of delegates, followed by the morning program, the subject of which is "Service." Captains and Commissioners are invited to attend this meeting and also the afternoon discussion groups, as previously they found them extremely enlightening.

Saturday evening there will be a varied program which will be open to the public. The conference will close on Sunday with a strictly non-sectarian devotional service. The chairman of this year's conference is Barbara Cherry of Roslindale, and the other officers are as follows: Vice Chairman, Betty Hodgeson of Wellesley; committee chairmen, Registration, Virginia Ewart of Newton; Publicity, Virginia Besse of Winchester; Housing, Dorothy Swain of Lynn; and Transportation, Marcia Smart of Lynn. Winifred Turner, chairman of the conference last year, is acting as advisor to this year's group.

The January meeting of the Winchester Girl Scouts' Captains was held at the home of Captain Hughes. Captain Hughes and Captain Carruthers acting as hostesses. Many interesting and thrilling activities were reported by each Captain, including the Christmas festivities, vacation plans and trips. Troop 1 reported a splendid hike to our cabin where the Scouts cooked their luncheon, played games, and had a general good Scout time. They all expressed their appreciation of the cabin. Whatever did we do without it. It is being rapidly completed in furnishings. Some of the newest donations being a clock from Troop 1; water tumblers and kitchen utensils from Troop 2; the much needed forks, knives and spoons to come from Troop 3; and Troop 8, cups, saucers, and plates, to match the set donated by Mrs. Walter Wadsworth.

Troop 2 reported a trip to the Angel Memorial Hospital in Boston. The girls were keenly interested in the variety of animals cared for, especially the monkeys; and the splendid equipment for handling all cases. The girls have been studying nature, and animal life in their troop. They were quite happy over seeing a dog which had been found in Winchester a few years ago, and was now the watch dog in there.

Troop 4 reported a trip to Faneuil Hall market where they learned the cuts of meat. They also visited the hall upstairs, and learned a bit of its history, and why it was called Faneuil Hall. Afterwards visiting the Navy Yard.

Winter camp training courses, conferences, court of awards, registrations, and future meetings were discussed at length.

All in all this meeting was extremely busy, helpful and interesting. The Council will meet on Wednesday, Jan. 13, at the home of Mrs. Theodore Dissell.

BAPTIST BOWLERS

Interest is growing rapidly when 11 ladies and 16 men turned out last Tuesday night to bowl at the Main street alleys. If the improvement among the young folks continues they will make some of the older folks hustle to keep up. Miss Elizabeth Clark is chairman of the single ladies and Mrs. Ernest Butterworth is chairman of the married ladies teams, any one who wishes to bowl please communicate with either of these ladies. Bowling is a very popular sport as well as a good exercise. These alleys have been renovated and cleaned. No loafers are permitted and are a big improvement over other years.

"Chimes" and "Carillon"

Chimes are technically a set of stationary bells, three to twelve in number, tuned to major scale intervals. If there are more bells and they are tuned to chromatic intervals, it is a carillon. Both may be played by hand, by hand-directed mechanism or automatically.

Great English Thinker

James Joule (1818-1889) was an Englishman who was prominent in establishing the doctrine of conservation of energy. He proved experimentally the identity of heat energy and the mechanical equivalent of heat. He also discovered the law of heating of a conductor by an electric current.

WINCHESTER WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Republican Club was held Wednesday, Jan. 6 at 2:30 p. m. at Association Hall. Following the salute to the flag the secretary's report was read and the membership chairman, Mrs. Scates reported five new members. Mrs. Isabelle Winship, soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Witham at the piano sang a group of delightful songs which were greatly enjoyed.

Our president, Mrs. Louis Snyder, then introduced the speaker of the afternoon Judge Emma Fall Schofield whose subject was "Politics and Patriotism." She spoke of how we have been citizens since 1920 and have been given the opportunity to express our opinions by ballot, that right thinking people must not be indifferent to affairs of government in their towns and cities. If one is a patriot, loving their country, one must be interested in the science of government and take active part as citizens. This will help towards doing away with war. Politics and patriotism always go together. Love of our country must be translated into action and knowledge of government and now is a very important time as so many problems are facing it. The women must help to save the country and take more interest in protecting it. America is the land of opportunity and some people are very ungrateful and do not realize that they should register and vote and learn about the government. Anyone traveling to other countries will realize the great advantages in the United States. If we did not have the right kind of government we could not have all these advantages which we have in our towns and cities today. People not voting today are just grafters and do not deserve good government.

Independent voters are just throwing away their votes. Any organization can accomplish so much more than an isolated individual. It is much better to belong to some party than to none at all. In order to run the country successfully it must be run along party lines and have cooperation from the parties. We must have two vigorous and vital political parties to bring out the best government.

The Republican Party places great emphasis on good government and tariff while the Democratic Party works for state rights and income for revenue without protecting the workers. The service rendered to good government is the most important thing we can all do and a great duty for women to help the country towards better government.

Mrs. Winship rendered another pleasing group of songs which closed the program. On Feb. 4, Thursday, there will be a bridge party and tea at the Salada Tea rooms in Boston. Tickets may be obtained from Miss Barbara Fernald and the proceeds will go towards a new coffee urn for the club.

Change in Meaning

The term "Levant" refers to the countries washed by the eastern part of the Mediterranean and its contiguous waters. It formerly referred to the Orient or the East, but this meaning is now obsolete.

See the Job Through

Finish that which you set out to do, no matter what the difficulties encountered. Almost any man can start something, but very few are able or willing to complete the task. Success comes at the end, not at the beginning of a job.

The Deadly Difference

Ten times more men than women are drowned. And the reason has been determined: men are ten times more inclined than women to "show off."

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

Pursuant to and in execution of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by WALTER R. CRAIG to the ARLINGTON CO-OPERATIVE BANK, dated May 2, 1928 and recorded in the Land Registration Office for the South Registry District of Middlesex County as Document No. 87,226, notice in Certificate of Title 25,415 in Registration Book 13, Page 145, and for breach of the conditions thereof, and for the purpose of recovering the same, will be sold at public auction on the mortgaged premises on Saturday, January 30, 1932 at two-thirty o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed and there-in described as follows: "A certain parcel of land in Winchester, together with the buildings thereon, including all farmhouses, barns, stables, mounds, gas and electric light fixtures, screens, screen doors, awnings, and all other fixtures of whatever kind and nature at present contained in said buildings and hereinafter placed therein prior to the full payment and discharge of this mortgage. Said lot is bounded and described as follows: EASTERLY by Sylvester Avenue, Fifty-five feet; SOUTHERLY by lot 58 on said plan herinafter mentioned 100 feet; WESTERLY by lot 55 on said plan, fifty-five feet; NORTHERLY by lot 58 on said plan. One hundred and four feet. All of said boundaries are determined by the Court to be located as shown on a subdivision plan as approved by the Court filed in the Land Registration Office, a copy of which is filed in Book 157, Page 145, with Certificate 25,375. The above described land is subject to certain sewer easements as set forth in a deed given by Louville V. Niles to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, dated November 2, 1896, see Book 2559, Page 334, as to other easements as set forth in a stipulation between Louville V. Niles and the Town of Winchester, see Doc. 57,387. Said parcel is shown as lot 57, Sheet 1 on said plan."

Regrettable Fact

There are not many lady drummers, and none, I am sure, who could play the percussion instrument in public when well over eighty, after sixty years of happy wedlock and useful philanthropic work.—London Sunday Times.

New York's Great Cathedral

Writing of St. Patrick's cathedral in New York city, the late Esther Singleton said: "The building admirably and quite frankly perpetuates the decorated and geometric style of Gothic architecture which prevailed in Europe from 1275 to 1400. The cost of the building was $1,000,000. The ceremony of dedication took place May 25, 1879, somewhat less than 21 years after the laying of the corner stone."

Mourning Rings

The custom of bequeathing a mourning ring or piece of mourning jewelry to friends of a deceased is known to have existed as early as the Fifteenth century. Usually the rings were gold or silver in which either a design in black enamel was worked, or which were made with a receptacle either around the ring or where the setting usually occurs, in which an exceedingly fine braid of the hair of the deceased was placed.

Want Gaelic Broadcasted

In an effort to preserve their Gaelic language, the Welsh are demanding that it be used in broadcasting instead of English. The radio has taken the English language into the home of thousands of Welshmen who hitherto have neither heard nor spoken English. A special committee reports to the government that English is introduced into the schools too early, "before the children have grasped their own language."

HEART TO HEART TALKS

What lies beyond the grave? No one can answer that question definitely. Down through the ages many attempts have been made to penetrate into the realm that lies on the other side of Death's door but these attempts all have been futile. The door is a closed one and it is impossible to open it, until a soul is to be ushered through, and then the opening and closing is done so quickly that the eyes of the watchers are unable to glimpse what lies beyond.

The story is told of a physician who was visiting one of his patients. As he was about to leave the sick man turned towards him with anxious appeal in his eyes and said: "Doctor, am I going to get well?" "Though the physician was a member of the church he hesitated and replied: "Well, you are a pretty sick man." The dying man took him by the hand and whispered: "I don't want to die; tell me what lies on the other side." "Why dear sir," quietly replied the physician, "I wish I could tell you, but I do not know." Physician and sick man talked for a moment about the mystery of it all, and then the doctor turned to leave. As he opened the door, a dog sprang into the room and leaped upon his master with delight. A great truth came into the medical man's mind, by way of analogy, and turning to the dying man he said: "Did you observe that? This is my dog. He has never been in this room before. He did not know what was inside here. He knew nothing except that his master was here, and so he jumped in without fear. I cannot tell you what is on the other side, but I know the Master is there—and that is enough. When he opens the door, I expect to pass in without fear to his presence of all good men and women in and out of Winchester be comforted. "I go to prepare a place for you," Christ assured the hearts of his disciples. "And if I go, I will come again and receive you to myself, that where I am there you may be also."

Christ on the other side of the door! Who in or out of Winchester that loves Christ needs be afraid? Eugene Bertram Willard

SOMEWHERE IN THE SKY A CLOUD HAS RISEN

(Written for The Winchester Star)

What a blessed thing obedience is! And how that man always right and always good.

Yielding a cheerful, glad obedience to God, to life and death, to fortune as well as to fate.

Obedience alone can make us blessed. Through the good which we willingly follow, And how graciously such obedience is rewarded. Winchester has disoriented men, reluctant men, even fearful men.

But all may pluck the fruit of what is good. Some have painfully ascended up the tree. Only to find headlong again among the thorns.

Naught is more blessed to Winchester's proudest man Than absolute obedience blind obedience. Resting upon a fellowman's goodness. On equal, positive, and holy laws. Which, given, inevitably hold visible ways. Offering infallibly the good man life. Threatening infallibly the bad with death. And and see no cloud will ever come. A stout stalk, nor ever with strange voice. Shall a strange law challenge our universe.

Old and New Commingle on Streets of Madeira

Madeira has been aptly termed "The Enchanted Isle" and still deserves its poetic title in spite of a recent landslide which occasioned considerable loss of life and property. Madeira is a land of sun and flowers and blue skies which has become highly popular as a holiday resort with those of means and leisure. What struck me most about it (writes a correspondent), was the extraordinary survival of customs at least five or six centuries old alongside modern methods and improvements. Up and down the narrow, twisting streets of cobble, patient pairs of bullocks still groan as they strain at sleds laden with passengers or merchandise, and driven by men or boys in picturesque native costume, while the most modern motor car, and motor busses, carrying natives between Funchal and the villages of the hinterland, whiz past them at a quite incredible pace.

Foiling Income-Tax Man

A house which slowly revolves has been designed by a French architect. By an ingenious device, we believe, the speed can be accelerated by the desperate householder when a postman attempts to put an income tax demand in the letter box.—London Humorist.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

There are men here in Winchester who would resent the imputation that they are superstitious, yet who frankly confess their belief in "hunches."

Once upon a time we had dumbbells in our cuffs and in our gymnasiums; now even Winchester has them under the name of fellow citizens.

Mid scenes quite bucolic
Winchester fellow wants to frolic
And kiss his girl and not Get down sick with painter's colic.

Some people here in Winchester seem to be of the mind that because it is regarded as right to say nothing but good of the dead, it should be right to say nothing good of the living.

Though it takes two to make a quarrel, a quarrelsome Winchesterite soon finds the other.

A good New Year's resolution is: Never miss an opportunity to say a good word for Winchester.

All of us are familiar with the saying that "nobody loves a fat man." Now we are told that the fat man is less efficient than the slim one, and the stout one should reduce in order to be better able to compete with the skinny brother.

Looking beyond 1932 a "Star reader" muses:

Everyday is on the blink.
Dinner is most informal.
By and by, I love to think
We'll get back to normal.
Mother then at bridge will play
With nothing to provoke her;
And father at the close of day
Will join the game at poker.

ENGAGED TO WINCHESTER MAN

The engagement of Miss Beryl Austin to Mr. H. Nelson Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Bennett of this town was announced last Saturday at a luncheon at the Hotel Commander, Cambridge, by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Austin of Brantwood road, Arlington.

Boston & Maine workmen have been busy this week installing new tell-tales at the Winchester Station bridge. The ingenious use of a truck to raise the big supporting poles aroused considerable interest.

District Rally to be Held

The Winchester district rally will be held at the headquarters of Troop 3 on Monday, Jan. 11 at 7:15 p. m. The program of the rally is as follows:

1. Opening exercises.
2. Inter-Patrol competitions in knot tying, flint and steel fire lighting, compass relay, fire by friction (bow method) and the potato relay race.
3. Announcement of results of the rally and closing exercises.

The winning Patrols in the district rally will compete in the Council rally on Jan. 20 for the Council championships in the various events.

Annual Council Meeting
Notices of the annual meeting of the Council are to be held at 7 p. m. on Monday, Jan. 18 in the Masonic Building, Medford, have gone out to all the men, who are connected with the Council in the Winchester District.

Just why the skit was entitled "a fire" we do not know. The fire never took place, but while Fireman Hamilton was waiting for it, opportunity was afforded him to rehearse a couple of songs which he was to sing at a coming show. How the firemen expected to put out a fire if he found one, is hard to understand for he entered the hotel armed with a music box instead of a hose.

After the laughter occasioned by the skit had died away the floor was cleared and dancing enjoyed to the syncopated strains of an orchestra. At 10:30 an appetizing turkey supper with all the trimmings was served under the direction of Fred Mitchell, known as a master in such matters.

Needless to state Fred surpassed himself and the repast he and his committee provided was much enjoyed. 1932 received a royal welcome at the stroke of midnight, appropriate noisemakers being provided.

Dancing continued, and at 1 o'clock, in response to repeated urging, George Smith gave a demonstration of Scandinavian dance steps which aroused much enthusiasm. Not to be outdone, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mitchell executed several intricate Scottish dance steps which were equally well received.

Shortly before 1 o'clock Robert Hamilton was tendered an impromptu reception of a more or less hearty nature when it became known that New Year's Day was the anniversary of his birth.

H. H. Dover headed the committee in charge of arrangements for the party and assisting him were Fred S. Mitchell, Frank Gilchrist, Bart Garley and Elmer Ward.

Scouts Enjoy Hike

On Friday, New Year's Day a group of Scouts representing the various Troops of the district hiked to Camp Gleason where cooking, fire building, and other outdoor Scouting tests were passed by Richard Sexton, Robert Harkins, William MacKenzie and Robert Gardner.

Name Contest

Scouts of the district have been making about the contest to select a name for the Council. Announcement of the results of the contest will be made directly after the annual meeting which is to be held on Jan. 18.

CHESTER CAMPBELL TO VISIT MIDDLESEX CHAPTER

Master Masons will be greatly interested in seeing Chester I. Campbell, active member of the Grand Council of the Order of DeMolay, who with his entire suite, will make a fraternal visit to the Middlesex Chapter, Order of DeMolay, next Wednesday evening in Odd Fellows Hall, Stoneham at 7:30 o'clock.

"Dad" Campbell, who is himself a Mason and prominent in the DeMolay, is a member of the Governor's Council and heads several exhibiting performances in Greater Boston anthems.

Following the ceremony of visitation the Chapter will put incoming candidates through the initiatory degree. The important event of the evening will be the "Dad" Campbell's presentation of the "Legionnaire of Honor" a DeMolay's highest achievement, to a member of Middlesex Chapter.

All Master Masons are urged to be present and enjoy the DeMolay work with their brother Mason, Chester I. Campbell.

WINCHESTER STUDENT SUBMITTING TO EXPERIMENTAL TESTS

Harry Benson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Benson of 312 Washington street, is one of five first year students in the Boston University School of Medicine to offer himself as experimental subject for a research problem in respiration effects of low oxygen concentrations. Dr. Allan W. Rowe, director of research at the Evans Memorial hospital is directing the work.

Mr. Benson is a graduate of the Winchester High School and received his pre-medical training at the Boston University College of Liberal Arts, where he was a member of the Glee Club.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

A meeting of the Winchester Chapter, Guild of the Infant Saviour, will be held Tuesday, Jan. 12, at Fort-nighly Hall. There will be an important business meeting and all members are urged to attend.

Apple Cultivation

Apple trees should begin to bear, as a rule, when they have been planted six to eight years. Certain varieties, as the Yellow Transparent and Wagener, may bear considerably younger, and others, such as the Northern Spy and Yellow Newton, not until they are somewhat older. Individual trees of the same variety vary somewhat in this respect. The age of a tree is usually reckoned from the time it is planted in its permanent place.—Washington Star.

Earliest Cotton

The first cotton crop raised by primitive men is believed to have been a tree or shrub variety of cotton.

ODD FELLOWS WELCOMED NEW YEAR

Minstrel Show and Dancing Party at Association Building

Members of Waterfield Lodge, I. O. O. F., with their ladies and guests gave the New Year an enthusiastic reception last Thursday evening in Association Hall with a minstrel show and dancing party that attracted a large and enthusiastic gathering. Judging from its popularity the celebration will become an annual event.

The evening's program opened with an old-fashioned minstrel show with H. H. Dover as interlocutor and Elmer Ripley and Henry Drowns as ends. In the circle were Dorothy Hamilton, Maude Dover, Lillian Donaghy, Laura Dodge, Edna Gilchrist, Jessie Ripley and Robert Hamilton.

Opening with the rollicking chorus, "Roll Dem Bones" by the entire company, the program continued with the spirited end song, "How's Your Uncle?" by Henry Drowns and included the vocal solos, "Wabash Moon" by Robert Hamilton and "Good Night Sweetheart" by Maude Dover.

The minstrels were followed by the presentation of a farcical skit entitled the "Hotel Fire," in which the parts were taken as follows:

A Guest—H. H. Dover
His Valet—Elmer Ripley
Bell Boy—Henry Drowns
Fireman—Robert Hamilton
Just why the skit was entitled "a fire" we do not know. The fire never took place, but while Fireman Hamilton was waiting for it, opportunity was afforded him to rehearse a couple of songs which he was to sing at a coming show. How the firemen expected to put out a fire if he found one, is hard to understand for he entered the hotel armed with a music box instead of a hose.

After the laughter occasioned by the skit had died away the floor was cleared and dancing enjoyed to the syncopated strains of an orchestra. At 10:30 an appetizing turkey supper with all the trimmings was served under the direction of Fred Mitchell, known as a master in such matters.

Needless to state Fred surpassed himself and the repast he and his committee provided was much enjoyed. 1932 received a royal welcome at the stroke of midnight, appropriate noisemakers being provided.

Dancing continued, and at 1 o'clock, in response to repeated urging, George Smith gave a demonstration of Scandinavian dance steps which aroused much enthusiasm. Not to be outdone, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mitchell executed several intricate Scottish dance steps which were equally well received.

Shortly before 1 o'clock Robert Hamilton was tendered an impromptu reception of a more or less hearty nature when it became known that New Year's Day was the anniversary of his birth.

H. H. Dover headed the committee in charge of arrangements for the party and assisting him were Fred S. Mitchell, Frank Gilchrist, Bart Garley and Elmer Ward.

MT. KAMET: HIMALAYAN BROTHER OF EVEREST

Meet Mount Kamet.

It is seldom heard of when the earth's highest pinnacles are being discussed, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, but nevertheless it is one of the select little group of Asiatic peaks that push up farther above sea level than mountains in any other part of the earth. Mt. Kamet has come into the world news because of the recent departure from England of a party of mountain climbers bent on scaling the lofty peak.

Third Highest Mountain in British Empire

Kamet reaches a height of 25,445 feet, continues the bulletin. Although it ranks 30th among the amazing group of mountain giants that extend along the Himalaya chain and into China, it is not greatly surpassed in height by any of its fellows except Everest, 29,002 feet high; Goodwin Austen, 28,250; Kinchinjunga, 27,815; Dhaulagiri, 26,828; and Gosaik Than, 26,305. All of these super-giants among mountains are in Nepal except Goodwin Austen, which is in northern Kashmir.

The peak of Mt. Kamet is situated just a stone's throw south of the Tibetan border, in the United Provinces of India. Near-by is Nanda Devi, which tops it by less than 200 feet. These comparisons boil down to the fact that Kamet is the third highest mountain in the British Empire; and by virtue of this fact it is considered well worth a serious attack by mountain climbers.

While Mt. Everest and Kinchinjunga are near Darjeeling, hill capital of Bengal, Mt. Kamet is 600 miles to the northwest near Simla, hill capital of India. It lies in the Garhwal District of the United Provinces, 130 miles due east of Simla near the 89th meridian of longitude. This area came into British possession in 1814 as a result of the Gurka War (with Nepal). The region consists of a maze of high peaks with extremely deep valleys winding among them. The valleys and lower slopes are heavily wooded.

The railroad used in expeditions to Mt. Kamet is at Kathgodam, in the United Provinces, at the southern edge of the Himalayan foothills. From there travel is overland through valleys and up steep slopes to Ranikhet, a hill village comparable in location to Simla. From Ranikhet the way leads over rough country and across a number of deep river gorges, to the village of Niti at 12,000 feet altitude. From this point both yaks and coolie bearers are used.

Although numerous attempts to scale Mt. Kamet have been made since 1855, no one has succeeded in reaching the summit. The latest expedition prior to the one now in the field was led in 1920 by Dr. A. M. Kellas. He reached an altitude of 23,600 feet, but had to turn back because his native assistants were suffering from mountain sickness.

On the slopes of Mt. Kamet is one of the chief head-water glaciers of the Ganges River. The Mt. Kamet expedition will explore this ice-field.

FONTAINEBLEAU: PALACE, TOWN, FOREST

The royal family will move from Paris to Fontainebleau.

Such dispatches from the French capital stir memories of France's monarchial past, it is pointed out in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, for it was the custom for centuries for the French court to move in spring or summer to the famous Palace of Fontainebleau.

Town Is Hemmed in by Forest

The royal family in this case, explains the bulletin, is the exiled royal family of Spain; and by "Fontainebleau" is not meant the Palace, now a public building of the French Republic, but the quiet little town that lies beside it. There is still a third Fontainebleau, the best known forest in France, in the heart of which lie the Palace and town. It is in a hotel in the edge of the town with the forest hard by that the exiled monarchs and their retinue will live.

Fontainebleau town lies about 35 miles southeast of Paris, continues the bulletin. Hemmed in on all sides by the forest, it is a delightfully quiet little place of some 16,000 residents. The streets are broad and spotlessly clean, and most of the houses are small. Scattered among these unpretentious structures are a number of large hotels which care for the thousands of visitors, many of them Americans, who flock to Fontainebleau during the summer months.

The magnet that draws most travelers to Fontainebleau is the great palace or chateau that has given its name to town and forest. The magnificent structure began its existence in the twelfth century as a hunting lodge, a rather somber feudal tower. In the 16th century Francis I had built on to it around the old lodge, a handsome chateau. Later Kings made additions, until the palace reached completion under Louis XIII about 1625.

Palace Has Seen Romance and Tragedy

Inside the walls cluster memories of the romance and tragedy that have clung around France's kings. The well known gay court life of the kings named Louis blossomed there, as well as the almost equally carefree but less-known court life of Francis I and Henri II who came before. There the First Napoleon lived with Josephine and Marie Louise. There Josephine was divorced. In one of the palace chambers Napoleon, high-handedly kept prisoner Pope Pius VII. The most dramatic incident that took place on April 20, 1814 when Napoleon, after he had signed his abdication as emperor and on the eve of departing for Elba, and his famous guard of veterans, drawn up in the great court and took formal leave of them. Since then this courtyard has been known as the "Cour des Adieux."

Fontainebleau had fallen upon evil days during the French Revolution, and during Napoleon's wars was used as a barrack for prisoners. When Napoleon, after he had signed his fifteen million francs restoring and refurnishing the palace, and it became his favorite residence. Both Louis Philippe and Napoleon III resided at Fontainebleau in the 19th century. Since the rise of the Third Republic in 1871 the palace has been a public building constituting a museum of Renaissance architecture and of the furniture of Louis XIV, Louis XV, and the Empire.

The palace, with its numerous galleries and pavilions covers a vast area and incloses seven courts. The architecture is marked by high-roofed gables, which, with the many windows, give the structure an appearance of lightness.

Forest Most Famous in France

The Forest of Fontainebleau covers 42,000 acres and is thus slightly larger than the District of Columbia. Through it extends a framework of highways and lesser roads, and between these a close-meshed network of paths. The American observer is struck by the neatness of the forest and its freedom from underbrush in large areas. The hand of man is much in evidence; the forest seems trimmed and combed.

Throughout the forest great ribs of sandstone are ever protruding, adding to the picturesque of the views. The tree growth is not dense, and because of the freedom from lower growth one may see far down alleys of trees, with sunlight striking through to glid ground and tree-trunks. Many of Millet's woodland pictures and some of those of Corot were painted among these trees. Millet lived in Barbizon on the edge of the forest.

Fontainebleau Forest was a royal hunting preserve. Through it has galloped in chase of the stag and boar almost every French King from Saint Louis to Louis Philippe. Crosses still stand to mark the meeting places for royal hunting parties. A few stags and boars yet manage to live in the forest, but highways, paths, and even railways, chugging automobiles, bicyclists, and crowds of tramping tourists have reduced almost to the vanishing point the fastnesses that can harbor the wild life of the ground. Birds can thrive under such conditions, and the famous forest is a paradise for feathered creatures.

We Learn by Example

Thus Sully points out, for example: "A child will profit more by daily companionship with an acute observer, be he teacher or playfellow, than by all systematic attempts to train the senses." "The deepest spring of action in us is the sight of action in another," James says. "The spectacle of effort is what awakens and sustains our own effort."—Henry C. King in "Rational Living."

Indian Names Retained

At the time of the first settlement by the whites Long Island was occupied by numerous small tribes of Indians whose former existence is now commemorated by such names as Manhat-tuk point, Shinnecock hills, Manhasset bay, etc.

LEGION CAST IN SECOND WAR PLAY

"The Man Who Stayed at Home" offered by the American Legion Players in the Town Hall Friday and Saturday, Jan. 29 and 30, will be well worth seeing. "Journey's End" produced last year before appreciative audiences, has prompted the dramatic committee of Post 97 to again choose a war-time theme, feeling that men who have seen service here and abroad can bring to their acting an authentic interpretation of the tense episodes of those strenuous days.

The scenes of this story are laid in a typical English sea-side boarding house, at which the "star boarder," Christopher Brent (played by Gerald Hills), entertains the audience throughout three acts as "The Man Who Stayed at Home." He is supported by Lucille Townley-Tilson as "Molly Preston," daughter of a retired manufacturer, and Ethel Goodwin as "Mrs. Leigh," mysterious new-comer from South Africa and much of the plot is woven about these three.

Not less important in the theme of the play are Nathan Thumim, characterizing the business man "Preston," who becomes periodically exasperated over the conduct of the War in England and across the Channel; also W. H. Dermot Townley-Tilson, who as "Percival Pennicuk" typifies the enthusiastic young recruit in his training for the 39th County of London Regiment, known as the Bohemians.

Pearl T. Miller generally runs the boarding house as "Mrs. Sanderson," whose son "Carl" (Kingman Cass) comes down from London, where he is Chief of the Transport Division, British Admiralty. Among her boarders are "Fraulien Schroeder," German governess, played by Mary Cameron, and Anna Grosvenor, who takes the part of "Miss Myrtle," a peace-loving spinster. The faithful porter is "Fritz," German born, portrayed by Raymond Hayward.

Ione Dana, as "Daphne Kidlington," self-styled patriot, G. Warren Johnston as Corporal of the Guard with Otis Leary and Russell Carroll as personifications of "Tommy" Atkins, complete a well-rounded cast and promise the townspeople another theatrical treat of which the Legion Post can be proud.

Theodore Godwin is managing the show, with Frank Fowle of Malden, coach and Harry Goodwin again supervising the stage effects. On the stage Mr. Goodwin will have the assistance of Mary F. Cass, Nita Smith and a committee of Post members.

Tickets are now on sale at Hevey's, the Star Office and Winchester News Company, priced at 75c, $1 and $1.50, all seats being reserved for both nights. The following Post members also have tickets for sale: Richard Parkhurst, 30 Grove street; Kenneth S. Hall, 12 Symmes road; Theodore W. Lawson, 418 Washington street; Marjorie G. Moffette, 145 Washington street; William E. Ramsdell, 6 Summit avenue; Lucius Smith, 38 Park avenue; John H. Terry, Jr., 12 Euclid avenue; Andrew Anderson, 18 Kenwin road; Edward F. Miss Esther Puffer entertained four couples at a bridge party, held at her home on Harrison avenue, last Tuesday evening. Miss Harriet King and Lowell Snow were the prize winners.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LUNCHEON BRIDGE

The ladies of the Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League are busy with their plans to make the luncheon bridge coming on Tuesday, Feb. 2, the best ever. With the records of the past behind them they have quite a piece of work before them, but Winchester knows their ability.

Mrs. Edward Grant is chairman assisted by Mrs. Arthur D. Speedie and Mrs. Walter Wadsworth. Mrs. William Adriance is in charge of the tickets. Mrs. Harold Meyer in charge of the decorations. Mrs. Vincent Clark of the waitresses. Mrs. Francis Booth and Mrs. Ober Pride of the candy and punch.

The following ladies are also lending their aid: Mrs. George Apsey, Mrs. Charles Gould, Mrs. Frederick Avery, Mrs. Ernest Keepers, Mrs. Horace Butler, Mrs. Franklin Lane, Mrs. Joseph Dolben, Mrs. Arthur Raymond, Mrs. George Goddu and Mrs. F. Patterson Smith.

THREE BUILDINGS ENTERED TUESDAY NIGHT

Breaks were discovered early Wednesday morning at both the Lincoln and Wyman Schools and at the Unitarian Church. Approximately $3 was taken from both the school buildings, and 20 cents in change from the church secretary's office. Little damage was done, except to the lock on the door of the minister's study at the church, and there was little evidence that the three buildings had been systematically ransacked.

The police could not determine how the Wyman School was entered, but it was evident that a door at the Lincoln School had been jimmied. No marks could be found on any of the doors or windows at the Unitarian Church though two of the rear windows in the parish house were unlocked. As it would have been impossible to enter at either of them without leaving muddy foot prints, of which there were none, the police do not believe that access was gained in this way.

These breaks constitute the second of a petty nature to occur within a week, the Noonan School having been entered Sunday night. The authorities are inclined to attribute them to boys and Chief William H. Rogers is personally conducting an investigation which he hopes will result in the apprehension of the guilty parties.

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

The Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church cancelled their luncheon and program this week. At the next regular meeting Feb. 9, there will be a board meeting at 11:30 a. m., luncheon at 1 p. m. and the regular meeting at 2:30 p. m.

The Society has been fortunate to secure the Rev. Lyman V. Rutledge the speaker for the canceled meeting to appear at the annual meeting April 12 to give his promised program.

JOHN PERCIVAL TO ASSIST CHORAL SOCIETY AT CONCERT JAN. 26

The directors of the Winchester Choral Society feel that they have been fortunate in securing John Percival as guest artist for the first concert of the Society's third season, to be given Tuesday evening, Jan. 26, in the Town Hall.

This fine baritone, hailed as one of the most promising young singers in Metropolitan Boston, is no stranger to Winchester music lovers, having given much pleasure as a soloist at the First Baptist Church in preceding seasons. He commenced his career as a soloist with the Harvard Glee Club and climaxed several seasons of church and concert work by winning the Eastern Section audition contest sponsored last year by Atwater-Kent.

Mr. Percival is at present Sunday morning soloist at the College Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church in Somerville and his many friends will welcome the opportunity to note the improvement in his voice and singing since leaving Winchester. The society's director, J. Albert Wilson, has included in his program selections which are musically excellent and tunelessly appealing. Under his painstaking direction the large chorus is approaching perfection in the rendition of numbers by the masters, Bach, Brahms and the Russian, Borodin, while such favorites as "Annie Laurie" and "Maid of Harlech" will also be sung for those who love the simpler melodies of the old tunes. Tickets for associate members are now being mailed and tickets for those who are not associate members can be secured at the Star office.

NOONAN SCHOOL ENTERED SUNDAY NIGHT

When Janitor James Bradley arrived at the William G. Noonan School Monday morning he found that the school had been entered sometime during the night previous. Sergt. John H. Noonan was sent to investigate and found that one of the doors had been jimmied and the catch sprung. Apparently the break was the work of boys who prowled about the building and tampered with the locks of several desks in an effort to find something of value. Only a box of cracker and a dozen pencils were taken, but some damage to the desks tampered with was reported by the school authorities.

SERVICE OF LIGHTS OBSERVED AT EPIPHANY

Lighted only by the tiny flames of candles held by the congregation, the lofty nave of the Church of the Epiphany presented a beautiful appearance last Sunday afternoon when the regular service of evening prayer was followed by the annual Service of Lights in honor of the Epiphany season. One of the largest congregations yet to attend these increasingly popular services participated in last Sunday's observance which differed somewhat from its predecessors.

New to Epiphany worshippers were the 12 candles at the rear of the large Christ candle on the altar. The rector, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, explained that these represented the twelve Apostles, and as each was lighted he named the Apostle whom the candle portrayed. After these were lighted Mr. Hadley then lighted the candles of the Church Wards, Donald Heath and Merton E. Grush, who in turn lighted those of the Vestry and choir. Finally the candles of the congregation were lighted and the church lights switched off, bringing out the tiny flames in sharp contrast with the gloom of the interior.

Led by the choir, singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," the congregation filed slowly from the church, the flickering lights of their tapers gleaming against an effective background of snow and a clear wintry sky.

Mr. Hadley took as the subject of his discourse, "Ye Are the Light of the World," and explained the significance of the Service of Lights which is observed yearly on the Sunday nearest to the day on which the Feast of the Epiphany falls. The feast day is in honor of the manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles and typifies the spread of His gospel to the world by the members of His church.

During the service of Evening Prayer the vested choir under the direction of Organist and Choirmaster Enos Held sang the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, and the anthem "Send Out Thy Light."

HATCH ON CLASS DAY COMMITTEE

Mr. Harold C. Hatch, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hatch of 45 Forest street, a senior at Tufts College, has been elected to the Class Day Committee for the coming Commencement season. The elections were held under the direction of the class officers.

Mr. Hatch has been active in baseball and has been a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers for four years. He was Vice-President and Secretary of the junior class, and is now Vice-President of the Tower Cross, the honorary society of the senior class. He is also a member of the Alpha Kappa Pi fraternity.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE OF FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The annual meeting of the Women's League of the First Baptist Church was a day of unusual interest and enjoyment. The members met at 10 o'clock in the morning and sewed for Missionary projects until noon when a most delicious luncheon was served with Mrs. Alfred W. Friend as hostess.

Following the luncheon, the members adjourned to the sewing room and the afternoon's program was resumed. Mrs. George Huntley of Newton gave an interesting talk, taking for her subject the last chapter of the study book, "India on the March."

The annual reports were presented, showing gratifying progress in all departments of the work, the treasurer's report receiving unusual applause. Three new departments were reported as having the League an honor society. Following is the official ballot for the year 1932:

President—Mrs. Charles A. Burnham
1st Vice-President—Mrs. Norman Mitchell
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. W. A. Snow

One of the most interesting features of the League meetings this winter, has been the devotional period under the direction of the new prayer leader, Mrs. W. J. Budgett.

LIONS' CLUB NOTES

The purpose and achievements of Lionism were forcefully brought home to members of the Winchester Lions Club by District Governor Youngberg who was guest of honor at the meeting Monday in the Calumet Club. Accompanying Mr. Youngberg were Deputy District Governors Waterman and Wood. It goes without saying that all received a royal welcome from their Winchester brothers.

President Roger announced another treat in store for the Lions on Monday when District Attorney Warren Bishop will be the club's guest. Mr. Bishop's message is one which no one will want to miss and it is expected that there will be a large gathering of members and guests to hear him on Monday.

MRS. FAYE HOYT LEFAVOUR

Prominent Resident a Pneumonia Victim

Mrs. Faye Hoyt Lefavour, wife of William Asa Lefavour, died Tuesday, Jan. 12, at her home on Herick street, after a short illness with pneumonia. She was born in Newington, N. H., Nov. 29, 1876, and came to Winchester from Beverly, following her marriage there Sept. 26, 1909. Mrs. Lefavour loved and devoted much of her life to music. As a child of six, she displayed marked musical ability, and when at the age of 16 she played for Emil Pauer, one of the early conductors of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, he advised her to study in Europe and develop that ability under the teaching of the masters, as she gave promise of becoming a piano virtuoso.

Her health would not permit her to go abroad, but she studied music in Boston, taught music in Beverly, and until her marriage was organist of the Washington Street Congregational Church in that city. During her life in Winchester, she was identified with all the town's musical interests, and had been in constant demand as an accompanist, work in which she excelled.

So wide and varied were Mrs. Lefavour's interests that the story of them is but an enumeration of many of the important activities in Winchester. She was a member of the Fortnightly and at one time a vice-president, sharing in all its responsibilities; she was an early president of the Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League and for years a member of the committee in charge of financing the operating suite at the Winchester Hospital, the same committee that managed the Pop Concerts some years ago, and the horse shows of late years.

From 1920 to 1931 she was a member of the Winchester Republican Town Committee. She was one of five women who started the Women's Republican Club, and at the time of her death was a councillor in the W. C. T. U., directing the scientific temperance instruction in the grammar grades and the high school.

She was the first vice-president, and director of the Winchester, Medford and Somerville District of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Morgan Memorial and was the chairman of the musical and tea that is to be given by this organization in the Children's Settlement Auditorium this afternoon. Perhaps her outstanding contribution to the Morgan Memorial was the work she did in providing the music for one Sunday afternoon meeting each month at the Charles Street Jail. For more than four years she never failed to provide a singer, a player, or both, and nearly always was present herself. She gave active assistance to the late Mrs. Harrison Parker, in the Mothers' Meetings that developed into the Mothers' Association.

Mrs. Lefavour was actively identified with the First Congregational Church, deeply interested in its work with young people for many years, and at different times she held office in the Mission Union and The Ladies' Western Missionary Society.

Surviving are her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Robert W. Rogers, and a granddaughter in Yonkers, N. Y.; also her mother, Mrs. Josephine Hoyt, and sister, Mrs. Justin Rand of Newington, N. H.

Funeral services were held at the late residence Thursday afternoon with Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church officiating. The music at the service was rendered by a string quartet of Boston Symphony Orchestra players. Burial was at Newington, N. H.

To Faye H. Lefavour
Your life was like a fragrant flower
That, when its work is done,
Just folds the lovely petals high,
And looks up to the sun.

The accent of its sweet perfume,
Once scattered far and near,
Is left, to sweeten all the lives
Of those who knew it here.

In Memory's garden, fresh and green,
No "immortelles" grow,
So I am planting one today,
A pure, white one, for you. C. M. S.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. FAYE HOYT LEFAVOUR

A happy, devoted friend, a kindly neighbor, a generous, skillful musician, a high-minded, self-effacing citizen of this town, diligent in good causes, Mrs. Lefavour without pretense or desire for reward blessed our community with her daily life. C. F. D.

THE FLAG AT HALF STAFF

It has become an established custom in our town to display the flag at half staff upon the death of ex-soldiers or town officials; no provision is made for other citizens no matter how good or great they may have been. But in my mind, and I believe in the minds of a large number of Winchester people, there have been few occasions when we might more appropriately have stood at attention, with the flag lowered to half staff in respect and sorrow than in the passing of so fine and useful a citizen as Faye Hoyt Lefavour.

RALPH S. VINAL

Prominent Architect Died Suddenly Saturday

Ralph S. Vinal of 6 Salisbury street, landscape and residential architect, died suddenly late Saturday evening, following an acute heart attack. Mr. Vinal was in his 56th year and had lived here since 1905, during that time having built many of the fine homes in the town in the practice of his profession.

He was born in South Scituate, near Norwell, Aug. 22, 1876, receiving his early education there and in the schools of Brockton where the family later lived. Graduating from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1897, he entered the office of Olmstead Bros., landscape architects. Joining Guy Lowell a year later, he did a wide variety of work in this field. In 1907, he established himself at 16 Cornhill, Boston, occupying himself with both branches of architecture. In the landscape field he was at the time of his death, as he had been for 20 years, in charge of the public park work of the City of Pittsfield.

The last work Mr. Vinal did was to complete the plans for the grounds of the new junior high school building, the extension to the high school and the adjoining playground.

Mr. Vinal was actively interested in town affairs. He had served on the Board of Assessors, had been a member of the Board of Appeal, and was chairman of the grounds committee at the Winchester Hospital. He was the author of the Vinal plan for the elimination of the grade crossing at the center when the issue was first most actively raised in 1910-11, failing finally to reach a solution owing to the inability of the citizens to make a definite decision.

Mr. Vinal was a member of the Unitarian Church and had served on its standing committee. He was a member of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., and of the Winchester Country Club. He was married in 1905, to Mary D. Snyder of Louisville, Ky., who survives him.

Funeral services were held at the Unitarian Church on Tuesday at 2 p. m., Rev. George Hale Reed, officiating. Mr. Reed spoke of Ralph Vinal's life as exemplifying the combination of strength and beauty and of how much it did in bringing beauty into the lives of others.

The pallbearers were John Abbott, Edward S. Mansfield, Arthur V. Rogers, J. L. S. Barton, J. W. Butler, Alfred D. Radley and Robert M. Stone. The ushers were James Nowell, Clifford Nutting, Arthur A. Kidder, J. W. Worthen, Richard Derby and H. B. Copeland.

The ashes will be taken to Louisville, Ky., for interment.

A Memorial
All hearts grew warmer in the presence
Of one who, seeking not his own,
Gave freely for the love of giving.
Nor repaid for self the harvest sown.

Thy greeting smile was pledge and prelude
Of generous deeds and kindly words:
In thy large heart were fair guest-chambers,
Open to sunrise and the birds!

O'er all the town in which we gather
With bended heads of mourning, stand
The living forms that one thy daily
And fitness to thy shaping hand.

O friend! if thought and sense avail not
To know thee here forth and here
That all is well with thee forever
I trust the instincts of my heart.

Thine be the quiet habitations,
Thine the green Pastures, blossom-sown,
And smiles of hearty recognition
As warm and friendly as thy own.

Thou com'st not from the hush and shadow
To meet us, but to thee we come;
With thee we never can be strangers,
And where thou art must still be home.

MRS. LILLIAN WELLS

Mrs. Lillian Wells, wife of Schuyler Wells of 9 Hillside road, Stoneham, formerly of this town, died Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 13, at the New England Sanatorium in Melrose after a long illness.

Mrs. Wells was the daughter of James and Mary (O'Connell) Heniger and was born 27 years ago in New York City. Besides her husband she is survived by five children.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence. Burial will be in Woodbrook Cemetery, Woburn.

LOADED FOR BEAR

Our sympathies would certainly have been with the bear or any other species of big game which happened to run foul of the would-be hunter taken into custody by the police near Wildwood street last Sunday afternoon.

Residents of the street noticed the man shortly after 2 o'clock and feeling that he was in none too good condition to be abroad, armed with a gun, notified Headquarters. Traffic Officer John Hanlon and Motorcycle Officer John Murray went out to recognize, and came upon the mighty Nimrod who readily admitted that he and his rifle were going hunting; and, as the expression is, how!

In addition to the gun, three bottles of a liquid said to be beer were found upon the would-be hunter's person, and he was escorted to Headquarters where he was held for a while, the authorities fearing that he might at any moment go into action with pink elephants or blue Dinosaurs. He was later released.

ENTERTAINED ON FRIDAY

Arnold Whittaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Whittaker, of Highland avenue, entertained a group of young people at his home last Friday evening. Movies were shown, and later in the evening dancing was enjoyed. Among the guests present were John Carter, Evelyn McGill, John Scully, Jean Farnsworth, Richard Hull, Catherine Gilbert, Forbes Kelly, Norris Chevalier, Robert Blackler, Sybil Spencer, Dean Carleton, Rebecca Jackson and Barbara Cohan.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland H. Boutwell of Cabot street, with their son and daughter, returned home Sunday from St. Petersburg, Fla., where they have spent the last few weeks.

John Felt of Oxford street returned to Winchester last Monday after spending the week-end in New York.

Miss Clara Anton, who formerly taught kindergarten at the Noonan School, was the week-end guest of Miss Agnes Murphy of Marion street. Miss Anton is now teaching in New York.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT GRANT

Theodore Roosevelt Grant, the only son of Aaron A. and Ella Thomas Grant, departed this life Jan. 8, at Danvers, after an illness of four years.

He was born February 1, 1903 in West Somerville, came to Winchester at an early age, and attended the public schools here. He was a Corporal in the National Guard. He is survived by his father, mother and three sisters.

Funeral services were held Monday in Ripley Chapel of the First Congregational Church with the pastor, Rev. Howard J. Chidley, and Rev. William H. Smith, pastor of the New Hope Baptist Church, officiating. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

WILL GIVE SERIES OF CONCERTS

The Professional Musicians' Society will give a series of Operatic and Symphonic concerts with the New England Symphony Orchestra in Jordan Hall, the first to take place Wednesday evening, Jan. 27.

This project of the Professional Musicians' Society to create employment for members of their profession who have done so much gratuitously for charity on many occasions, has met with a very encouraging attitude on the part of the people of Boston.

The concerts will be given at popular prices (50c 75c and $1) and the programs will contain solo and ensemble numbers of interest to the general public as well as numbers new to Boston concert goers.

A large audience is expected in Jordan Hall on the opening date of the series, Jan. 27. Many prominent musicians have already secured their tickets for this series which promises to be of high musical value as well as being a worthy enterprise.

Tickets may be secured at Jordan Hall or at the office of the Professional Musicians' Society, 274 Boylston streets, tel. Com. 0031.

Monday evening Patrolman James F. Noonan had to make a trip to Harvard street to straighten out trouble caused by boys breaking fence posts. Tuesday afternoon a stray snowball broke the first window in the new Library building.

GRACE AND CHARM

By Frances Mandel

MOTH SPOTS, WARTS AND MOLES

Moth Spots are small brown spots that sometimes appear on the face after middle age. If you have these skin blemishes, a good bleach cream or lotion will help to make them lighter, although the only remedy that can really remove them are the treatments of a skin-specialist or a physician.

Warts, which are usually harmless, appear and disappear at irregular intervals.

Moles—some are harmless while others are harmful. They should be removed when small, otherwise they may grow larger and become unsightly. Never pick or squeeze moles, for if they become infected, something serious may develop.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

WINCHESTER WON FROM BELMONT

Winchester High started its Middlesex League basketball season with a win last Friday afternoon, defeating Belmont High, 36-16 at Belmont. The result came as a pleasant surprise to local followers of the game who hardly expected Coach Lindemann's inexperienced quintet to set back the Belmont horde.

There was nothing fluky about Winchester's win, though the first half of the game was very closely contested.

The locals had an eight point lead at the half which ended, 18-10, but at the resumption of play Winchester went out in front in real earnest, doubling its score while holding the opposition to a paltry six points for the half.

Knowlton and Hamilton each cared six goals from scrimmage and Hamilton added a couple of shots from free tries to make himself the game's high scorer with 14 points. Winchester's defense was very much on the job, limiting the Belmont forwards to four floor baskets.

Between the halves of the first team the Winchester seconds won from the Belmont seconds by a convincing score.

FORMER WINCHESTER WOMAN SECURES SHOW CAR

Mrs. Blount Ralls of New York City had the distinction of being able to secure the first 1932 custom H2 Hupmobile eight sedan sent to Boston, which a number of dealers were seeking as a demonstration car after it was displayed a few days ago during the annual meeting of Boston Hupmobile Company's organization.

Mrs. Ralls, formerly Miss Helen C. Sanborn of this town, widely known as a horse show exhibitor, was visiting in Boston with her mother, Mrs. Oren C. Sanborn and she saw the car on its way to the hotel where the meeting was being held. Its striking appearance attracted her attention, so she decided to get it.

This was not so easy as she anticipated. However, her insistence won and she got it in time to drive it to New York Monday.

Heart Throbs
A scientific writer points out that the "amplification of radio brings to our ears the babble of the atoms in a mothball and the molecular clamor in the heart of an onion." The plain radio, unamplified, also brings the babble of the hard-boiled egg, and the clamor in the heart of the toothpaste agent.—Minneapolis Journal.

Persimmon Is Chinese
The persimmon, or date plum, came originally from China. The fruit is succulent and of a reddish yellow color when ripe. It contains eight or ten seeds. The green fruit is very astringent, but when ripened after frost is sweet and palatable. The persimmon grows wild extensively, especially in the southern states.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE
Comedy—sparkling seeds of it—and drama, romance, pathos are the elements which get a thorough workout in the hands of a very capable cast of stage and screen favorites in "Girls About Town" which starts Sunday for four days at the University Theatre. The story is an original by Zoe Akins, the woman novelist and playwright who has achieved glory in a few years in the field of letters and of the stage and screen, with such op as the scenarios of "Sarah and Son" and "Anybody's Woman"—and the stage original "The Greeks Had a Word for It." The Americans have a word for what the central characters of "Girls About Town" do. It is "gold-digging." Kay Francis and Lilyan Tashman play these parts as inveterate brunettes and blond dazblers who prey upon the easy spenders who come to the big city for business and pleasure.

In "Rich Man's Folly," George Bancroft's latest starring picture, there are two very interesting juvenile artists who are great favorites. Their names are David Durand and Dawn O'Day. David Durand takes the part as George Bancroft's son. He had the distinction of breaking the bottle of wine against the bow of the giant steamer "Mariposa" when she was launched at the great shipyard at Quincy. This thrilling event is part of the picture, "Rich Man's Folly," the companion feature.

James Cagney proves that there is more than one way of being dynamic in "Blonde Crazy" which comes Thursday for the last three days of the week. Red headed "Jimmie" plays the part of a wise-cracking bell-hop in a big city hotel. In the promenade—a rendezvous for shy-sters of all sorts and both sexes, "Jimmie" learns how to fleece the folks whose business is fleeing. Joan Blondell, as a chambermaid, acts as his partner in duplicity and the result is an immensely dazzling display of the peculiar gifts of Cagney and Blondell.

Featuring a cast of eight youngsters, none of whom is over 20 years of age, "Are These Our Children," the companion feature, is expected to initiate a new era of films dealing with modern youth. Featured are Eric Linden, Rochelle Hudson, Roberta Gale, Arline Judge, Ben Alexander, Robert Quick, Mary Kornman and "Billy" Butts.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE
Francis X. Bushman is rounding out his second big week in "Why Women Leave Home" at the Somerville Theatre to large business and is strengthening the fine impression he made in "Thin Ice." His performance of the American captain of industry with his butterfly wife discloses repose, a fine voice and a fine personality that reaches out over the footlights, to his audience. Next week is surprise week at the Somerville Theatre. The great favorite, Alma Baker, last season's leading woman, returns to her former theatrical home for one week, to play opposite Al Lutteringer in "Camille." It seems incredible that "Camille" should never have been played at the Somerville Theatre, famous as it is and called the greatest love story ever dramatized. Written by Alexandre Dumas, the younger, "Camille" has been the ambition of every actress, and has been played by all the great leading women and stars.

The part of Armand is a great one, too, and Mr. Lutteringer had the advantage of being associated with Florence Roberts, the greatest Camille that America has produced. The prompt book is that used by Sarah Bernhardt, considered by many as the greatest of all Camilles. She worked out all the intricate details of the role. The play calls for the full strength of the stock company, and an elaborate production will be made scenically by Wilbur Williams, staff artist.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland B. Johnson of Winnetka, Ill. are the parents of a son born Jan. 12. Mrs. Johnson was formerly Ruth Caldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Caldwell of Central street.

MRS. JOHN PERRY
Mrs. Mary (Regan) Perry, wife of John Perry of Hudson, N. H., formerly president of the Winchester Laundry Co. died Friday night of heart disease in St. Joseph's Hospital at Nashua, N. H.

Mrs. Perry was the daughter of Mrs. David Regan and the late Mr. Regan of this town. Before her marriage she was associated with the Winchester Laundry Co. and she left town to make her home in Hudson, N. H. only a few years ago. Besides her husband and an infant son, she leaves her mother and two sisters, Mrs. Katherine Welch and Miss Helen Regan, all of Winchester.

The funeral was held Monday morning with solemn high mass of requiem celebrated in St. Joseph's Church, Nashua, N. H. The remains were brought to Winchester for interment in Calvary Cemetery.

STRAND ATTRACTIONS
"Frankenstein" with Colin Clive, Mae Clarke, John Boles and Boris Karloff which starts Saturday at the Strand Theater, Malden, and runs for seven days with continuous performances on Saturday and Sunday is a thriller of all times. The ultra modern in screen mystery plays is a tale of a monster who looked like a man—conceived in madness—and built with love—but manufactured by human hands. This is "Frankenstein," the sensation of the talking screen. It is packed to the brim with thrills, and called by experts the most original film ever to reach the screen. The extraordinary story of a young scientist who brought a human monster to life through weird electrical mechanisms and surgery is based upon the fantastic 18th century narrative of the same name written by Mary Shelley, wife of the British poet, Karloff, in his characterization of the man monster, is reported to wear makeup weighing 48 pounds in itself. "Frankenstein" establishes Bodie as the one important candidate who has arisen for the mantle of the late Lon Chaney as a delineator of weird and grotesque roles. Had Karloff yielded to the chance to melodramatize as the opportunity offered, the terrible character of the monster would have been far less formidable, horrible, terrible and a lot of other "ibles" which might be added. "Frankenstein" is a thriller, it makes the audience tremble and shiver with horror. It is without doubt one of the most gruesome yet spellbinding pictures ever made to this date. The management of the Strand wishes to warn any person having a weak heart, or one who cannot stand intense excitement or even shock against seeing this production. Parents are advised not to allow their children to view this picture.

The second feature on the Strand's program will be the comedy hit with Gloria Swanson in the starring role in "Indiscreet." This is a good light story and a splendid foil for the gruesome scenes of "Frankenstein."

WILLIAM BLANCHARD
William Blanchard, 10-year old son of Dean and Esther Parsley Blanchard, died Monday night, Jan. 11, at his home on Mt. Pleasant street. He was in his usual good health on Sunday, but complained of a severe sore throat Monday morning. During the afternoon he became violently ill. Specialists were summoned and an emergency operation performed which at first seemed successful. The relief was only temporary and shortly before midnight a relapse proved fatal.

"Billy," as he was generally known was the oldest of five children. Besides his parents he leaves three sisters, Caroline, Esther and Sally, with a brother, Dean Blanchard, Jr. He was born in Winchester and was a pupil in the fifth grade at the Mystic School. A favorite with his teachers and schoolmates, "Billy" was liked by everyone and genuinely beloved by those who knew him well. There are many who will miss his cheery smile and friendly manner.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at his parents' home with Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, officiating. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

THAT SPECIAL REWARD
(Written for The Winchester Star)
'Tis told us that men who know the blessed life divine
And toward the heavens gaze with eagle eye,
That by each blessed count on high,
Loaded down with celestial jewelry,
Which for the good of earth God has set,
There hangs a radiant coronet,
All gemmed with pure and living light,
Far too dazzling for an evil doer's sight,
Prepared for goodly souls, and those of men
Who strive hard to gain the martyr's diadem,
Bear in mind that those who to such bliss aspire,
Must get victory through a baptism of blood
And firmament.
The writhings of a wounded heart
Are fiercer than a foeman's dart.
Oft in life's stillest shade reclining,
An abrupt death can unrepentant bring,
Without a hope on this mundane sphere to find
A mirror in an answering mind,
In and out of Winchester meek souls that Little dream
Their daily grind of pain and sorrow and Angels theme,
Or that the burden they carry with such calm
Shall prove in the next world a martyr's palm.

WINCHESTER BOY SCOUTS
Council Name Contest

Scouts of the Winchester District like all other districts of the Council are eagerly waiting for an announcement of the winners of the contest conducted by the Council to secure a new name for the Council.

Twenty-five different names were submitted and at a recent meeting of the Executive Board one of these names was selected for approval by the Council. At the annual meeting of the Council to be held Monday, Jan. 18, the name submitted by the Executive Board will be acted upon by the Council. An announcement of the winners will be made in the Star next week.

In the Winchester district the Eagle Patrol, of Troop 3; the Lion Patrol of Troop 3; and the Beaver Patrol of Troop 3, submitted entries in this contest.

Winchester Scouts Hold District Rally

At the annual meeting of the Council next Monday, Ray O. Wyland, Director of the Department of Education of the National Council will present certificates to the men who qualify in the course in "Principles of Scoutmastership," recently completed under the leadership of the Council. Several Winchester Scouters availed themselves of this opportunity for training and will receive certificates.

Summer Camp Is Coming
Despite the fact that cold weather now prevails and the ground is covered with snow, the Council Camp committee is making plans for the coming camp season. Last year 27 Winchester Scouts attended the camp, a very splendid record for the first year that the Winchester Scouts took part in the camp conducted by the Council.

The camp folder will be in the mail earlier this year. Many new activities will be offered to the campers. From early inquiries it would seem that an even larger attendance may be expected from Winchester this year.

WINCHESTER S. P. C. A. AUXILIARY NOTES
The Winchester Auxiliary of the Mass. S. P. C. A. met on Wednesday afternoon of this week at the home of the President, Mrs. Richard S. Taylor.

After the business, the afternoon was spent in working for the new animal hospital which has been opened within a few weeks in Springfield. This hospital is a branch of the Angell Memorial Animal Hospital, and like the Boston institution is perfectly fitted for the purpose it has been designed to serve.

The building itself, at 53-57 Bliss street, is only a block and a half from the City Hall in the business section of the city, and contains accommodations for 100 animals. There are an operating room, pharmacy, specially-constructed bathrooms, four wards equipped with the best steel cages, a kitchen equipped with ranges, electric refrigeration and other facilities for cooking meals for animal patients, two large exercise rooms, a lethal chamber for humanely disposing of animals, two large outdoor exercise runs, a cremator, an X-ray room and a large garage.

This institution will not only perform the work of a hospital and dispensary, but will also serve as a shelter for stray, unwanted or injured animals.

The Winchester Auxiliary at its meeting this week prepared surgical dressings and other articles to be used by the doctors in the clinic—a service much needed at the present time.

A whist for the benefit of the Winchester Juniors basketball team was held Wednesday night in White's Hall.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The charm of a musical program that met with universal approval and appreciation was presented in interesting variety and contrast by three able artists, Gertrude Ehrhart, soprano; Howard Goding, pianist; and Elford Caughey, harpist, at the club meeting on Jan. 11.

Miss Ehrhart, who possesses a rich resonant vocal quality, was in excellent voice and particularly pleasing in the English group which concluded her program. Although her more ambitious numbers, Aria from Carmen and Bolero from I Vespri Siciliani by Verdi were well received, the applause accorded her English numbers was evidence that, as is usually the case, an American audience welcomes the song with words in the native tongue. That Miss Ehrhart is a versatile artist cannot be denied. Her sustained notes were always in control and her range is in consistent balance.

Goding's Beethoven Group introduced his listeners to a masterly interpretation of this composer's work. Mr. Goding injects his personality into his instrument with a fine feeling of sensitivity. The brilliance of his Chopin number was noteworthy.

When one has heard Mr. Caughey of the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the harp, one no longer wonders that this instrument has come down through the ages to be known as the maker of heavenly music. There is a spiritual quality in the voice of the harp that is found in no other medium. When the strings vibrate to the touch of the sympathetic artist there is no word to describe the ethereal beauty of its tone. In Mr. Caughey we have a veritable magician for the divine instrument.

In gracious response to continued applause, Mr. Goding played Brahms Lullaby and Goodnight and Miss Ehrhart sang an old favorite, "I Dreamt that I Dwelt in Marble Halls."

Miss Ehrhart's radiant personality added a distinctive charm to her program and combined with the gifts of the other two facile artists, provided a rare afternoon in the club calendar.

A very delightful and interesting entertainment was provided by the Fortnightly for Guest night, Jan. 8. The president, Mrs. Isabelle Winship introduced the guest artists, Alton Hall Blackington and Ralph Tailby.

The program was opened by Mr. Ralph Tailby, who sang a group of three songs, accompanied by Mrs. Witham at the piano.

The lecture by Alton Hall Blackington on "The Romance of News-Gathering" was most interesting and instructive. The pictures, taken by himself, covered the human and natural sides of life. Those of Cape Cod, depicting old landmarks and a few old inhabitants, who are gradually becoming extinct, were familiar and much enjoyed. The launching of the S.S. Mariposa and the entering into dry dock at Boston of the Leviathan were well worth seeing.

After a short intermission, Mr. Tailby rendered another group of songs. Judging by the applause his wonderful voice was greatly appreciated.

The pictures showing the damage done along the coast by the storms of last winter and the thrilling experiences of the photographers in taking them were particularly good. Those of the Vermont flood and the devastating forest fires in Massachusetts were beyond description.

Mr. Blackington's humorous remarks and witty anecdotes added much to the entertainment and to an enjoyable evening which will long be remembered by all who were present.

On Friday afternoon, Jan. 22 at 2:30 in Fortnightly Hall, the Dramatic Committee will present two one act plays—"Happiness" by J. Hartley Mannors and "Mrs. Pat and the Law" by Mary Aldis.

The chairman for the afternoon, Mrs. Winnifred S. Meyer, is coaching the plays and has east them as follows:—"Happiness" Mrs. Claire C. Reynolds, Mrs. Irene D. Clarke, Mrs. Winifred B. Nicholas and Mrs. Aurilla L. Shenleigh. In "Mrs. Pat and the Law" Mrs. Blanche Reynolds, Mrs. Muriel N. Trout, Mrs. Ada von Rosenbergs, Mrs. Martha Kelley and Mrs. Doris McLeod. These are two excellent plays, each with a splendid cast forward to an afternoon of the finest entertainment.

Following the program, tea will be served, under the direction of Mrs. Thelma C. Pitman and Mrs. Anna T. Richardson.

At the meeting on Jan. 11, Mrs. Winship made announcement of the splendid plays for children, which are given at the Boston Civic Theatre under the auspices of the Boston University Women's Council. There are three more plays which will be presented by the Clare Tree Major Children's Theatre Company on Saturday mornings at 10:15. On Feb. 6, "Little Women"; on Mar. 5, "Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates"; and on April 2, "The Secret Garden."

MRS. DEWART'S MOTHER DEAD
The funeral of Mrs. Mary Tewksbury Clarke, mother of Mrs. Murray W. Dewart, took place at Manchester, N. H. on Monday, the interment being in Pine Grove Cemetery and Rev. William Dewart of Boston, brother of the late Murray W. Dewart, D.D., officiating.

Mrs. Clarke died at Baltimore on Friday last in her 74th year. She made her home in Winchester with her son and daughter from 1912 to 1922, during his service as rector of the Church of the Epiphany. Besides her daughter she is survived by three grandsons and one great grandson.

Chairman George T. Davidson of the Park Department hasn't by any means given up hope of having a bathing beach at Wedge Pond in the very near future. He hopes to secure the Wadleigh School "portable" as a bathhouse and funds to provide for a supervisor to be at the beach daily. There are many who believe with "George" that if the youngsters are to swim in Wedge Pond (and apparently they are) they should do so in safety and under decent conditions.

With the approach of Town Meeting the STAR is wondering whether any amendment or modification of the Zoning Laws will be proposed in March to prevent future difficulties such as were encountered with the development of the old Purrington farm on Cambridge street. It seems as if the danger to property values in that fine residential district ought to be fresh enough in the minds of every one to provide for future cases of a similar nature which may arise. We protect our property from incalculable commercial enterprise, but the wrong type of development can conceivably harm valuations just as much. The Cambridge street development disclosed a weakness in our zoning regulations which should be remedied.

While the mild weather of the past few days has made skating out of the question, a word or two about the life saving equipment at the town ponds may not be amiss in advance of the time when more ice is available. The Humane Society offers a reward of $50 for information leading to the conviction of any one tampering with such equipment. A fine of $200 or imprisonment for not more than six months is provided by law as a penalty in the event of conviction. These facts may be interesting to those who are so contemptible as to remove from their places ladders or life preservers which may be necessary to save a human life.

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED AFTER CHASE

After a chase of several miles through Winchester and Woburn a Packard sedan, which had been stolen from in front of the residence of Mr. Earl Dobb at 23 Highland avenue last evening was recovered by Patrolman Joseph J. Derro of the Police Department.

The machine was stolen shortly before 9:30, the thieves driving to Medford where they offered a ride to William H. Rogers, Jr. son of Police Chief William H. Rogers of Grayson road, who was returning home from school. Thinking to meet a police officer, young Rogers, who believed the car stolen, advised the driver of the car to drive along Highland avenue and down Prospect street. Unfortunately the looked-for patrolman was elsewhere on his beat and the two men in the Packard dropped the Winchester boy at Mt. Pleasant and Main streets.

Hastening to the square young Rogers met Officer Derro to whom he told his story. The registration of the Packard had been given the police as stolen and commanding a car owned by John DeGrasso of 33 Holland street, Patrolman Derro started in pursuit.

After a chase over High street and Montvale avenue in Woburn the policeman's car came in sight of the Packard at Calvary Cemetery where Officer Derro fired two shots from his revolver.

At Pine and Felton streets the two thieves abandoned the Packard and escaped in the woods. Officer Derro and his companions searched the neighborhood but were unable to find the men, and after notifying Woburn to be on the watch for the fugitives returned to Winchester with the stolen machine.

Mrs. Mabelle M. Blackler of Stetson Hall returned this week from a visit with friends at Baltimore.

HOME FOR THE AGED PEOPLE

The Christmas season has passed but the family at the Home for the Aged are enjoying the gifts of their many generous friends. The memory of a very happy Christmas will long be cherished by all.

Christmas started on Tuesday afternoon when a group of Girl Scouts brought and trimmed a Christmas tree. After the tree was ready they entertained the family.

On Wednesday, the Wadleigh School sent a tree which added much to the dining room.

On Thursday afternoon, two Sunday School classes with their teachers came from the Congregational Church. After an entertainment, gifts were given to the family. On Christmas Eve carols were sung by a group of singers from the Congregational Church and later by a group from the Baptist Church.

Our family certainly had a very happy Christmas. This was made possible by those who so generously brought the spirit of Christmas in their songs, their entertainments, their decorations and their gifts.

Gifts of money were received from Mr. Jones, the Misses Nason of New York, Miss Nason, Mrs. Doan, Miss Alice Joy, Mrs. Proctor, Eastern Star, Orange; and Rebekah Lodge, Orange.

Oranges and grapefruit from Mrs. Boggs and Mrs. F. M. White. Candy from Mrs. Wm. French and the Joslin family.

Individual gifts from Mrs. Frank Barnes, Mrs. Horne, Mrs. Hight, Mrs. Smalley, Miss Pray, Mrs. F. M. White and Mrs. Wiswall.

The wreath for the door from Mrs. Nutting and Mrs. Smalley.

The family at the Home and the Board wish to thank you and to wish you a very happy and prosperous New Year.

GIRL SCOUTS

The Winchester Girl Scouts are organizing a winter day which is to be devoted to out-of-door sports at the Girl Scout cabin. All Scouts will attend, and will invite their friends. Each person will bring and be responsible for their own skis, sled, toboggan, skates, or anything he or she may care to use. The date set for the event is Jan. 30, unless the weather is impossible. In the event of a storm it will be postponed to Feb. 6. Hot cocoa, frankfurts, doughnuts and sweets will be on sale at the cabin between 12 and 2.

The Winchester Girl Scout mid-winter rally will be held Feb. 20 in the Town Hall, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

A rare opportunity to procure expert advice and instruction in the fundamentals of human behavior that will give real understanding of the normal girls with whom we are dealing in troops and camps will be afforded all who wish to take Dr. Samuel W. Hartwell's course at Cedar Hill, Jan. 22 to Jan. 24 inclusive. Dr. Hartwell is director of Worcester Child Guidance Clinic. Winchester captains, as well as some Council members are to take this course.

Winter camping at Camp Edith Macy, Briarcliff, N. Y., has proven a successful undertaking this year. The first experimental period has come to a successful close and it has been voted a permanent part of the Macy schedule. Eighteen students camped in comfort at the guest house during the holiday period and participated in a program that included a wide variety of activities. The fun of troop activities out of doors, such as winter nature study, outdoor cooking, cross country games, a Yule log treasure hunt, a skating party, combined with handicrafts, discussion around the fire, songs and story telling, made the experience of tremendous benefit to leaders who are expecting to take their girls out during the winter months. It is hoped that next month two Winchester captains may be able to take this course.

Building permits granted

The Building Commissioner has issued permits for alterations and the erection of buildings on property owned by the following for the week ending Thursday, Jan. 14:

Anime Myrick, Cambridge—new private garage on lot at 69 Woodside road.

Melaine R. Marsh of Arlington—new foundation under present building at the rear of 183 High street.

WINCHESTER BOYS' CLUB TO PLAY BASKETBALL IN WATERFIELD HALL

Securing Waterfield Hall as a community recreation center for boys and girls not otherwise provided for has met with the enthusiastic approval of the Winchester Boys' Club who are to open the local independent basketball season Thursday evening in the hall with the strong Gustavino Club of the Woburn Amateur League as opponents.

"Dick" Murphy of this town, ex-Grinnell College star, is leading the Woburn boys and the fact that "Livin'" McNeil is only a substitute on the club indicates that the visitors have a strong lineup.

Winchester's starting lineup will be picked by Capt. Francis Tansey from among "Jim" and "Mick" Fitzgerald, "Flats" Flaherty, "Jim" Kendrick, "Abe" Winer, "Joe" Mathews and Frank Melly, all experienced players.

As a preliminary game for younger performers the local Sons of Italy quintette is to take on the Everett "Sons," commencing at 7:30 p. m. It is expected that Coach Ronald Lindemann of the high school team will act as referee. Admission is 25c and is charged merely to assist the boys in their efforts to get their organization away to a good start.

WINCHESTER LOST TO WAKEFIELD

Winchester High dropped out of a top tie for first place honors in the Middlesex League basketball race when it lost to Wakefield High at Wakefield Wednesday afternoon, 20-15.

The locals put up a good scrap against their more experienced opponents and with but a single minute to play in the final quarter the score was tied at 15. Wakefield, however, put on a winning surge at this point and carried off the honors.

Between the halves of the first team game the Winchester seconds won from the Wakefield seconds, 13-10.

ROTARY CLUB

At the regular meeting of Jan. 14, six absentees were recorded. Make-ups from all of these members will be required in order to equal last week's record. Why not?

We missed our genial pianist "Jim" McGrath at this meeting. "Jim" is making an ocean trip to the Southland and we expect that he will have many entertaining things to tell us on his return.

Appropos of "Jim's" trip it was an apt coincidence that motion pictures were displayed at this meeting outlining the salient features of an ocean voyage to points on the Caribbean Sea and the Canal Zone. We were enabled to enjoy these views through the courtesy of the Swedish-American Steamship Company, and the projector was handled efficiently by Mr. Cutler, representing R. Sherburne Whitney and Co.

District Governor "Jerry" Wood has called a mid-year assembly for Rotary Club officers of the 31st district to be held at Hotel Statler, Jan. 27. This will be the only mid-year assembly which has ever been held in this country and prominent Rotarians will be present for consultation and advice. It is evident that our District Governor is doing his level best to make the 31st District a living force in Rotary.

A valued publication brings to our desk the following which is most emphatically in keeping with Rotary sentiments.

It is A Poor Joke
When someone blanches with embarrassment
When someone's feelings are hurt
When something sacred is made to appear commonplace
When it is directed against someone's infirmity
When it is uttered in a bitter spirit
When everyone cannot join in the laughter.

MASSACHUSETTS CITIZENS COMMITTEE ON THE WORLD COURT

Loring P. Gleason, former president of the Winchester Rotary Club; Judge Charles N. Harris of the Probate Court, and Mrs. George Brayley are the latest additions to the group of prominent Winchester people who have become members of the Massachusetts Citizens' Committee on the World Court.

Frederic S. Snyder of Winchester, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce; William A. Kneeland, president of the Winchester National Bank; Lewis Parkhurst, treasurer of Ginn & Company and Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott are also members of the committee. Many other prominent residents of the district have signified their intention of joining.

The committee is composed of 700 men and women prominent in civic, professional and business activities throughout the State. Its purpose is to help toward securing prompt and favorable action by the United States government on the steps necessary to complete American membership in the World Court, the first actual court set up by the nations of the world in the attempt to substitute law for war as the method of settling international disputes.

George R. Nutter, noted Boston attorney, has been chosen chairman of the committee to succeed the late Roland W. Boyden.

MUSIC GARDEN

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Lochman entertained the club at their home on Kenwin road, Monday evening, Jan. 11.

The works of the great composer, Mozart, furnished the main theme of the music rendered at this time and many interesting and beautiful selections, both vocal and instrumental, were rendered by club members.

Also the club had the pleasure of entertaining as its guest at this meeting, Mr. Elford Caughey, harpist, of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Caughey contributed generously to the program and delighted his audience with the solos he had selected. His accompaniments were particularly pleasing and unmistakably the work of a true artist.

The usual social hour followed the music. This feature of our gatherings has always been extremely popular, doubtless because various hosts and hostesses have done their best to make it so.

The annual election of officers will take place at the February meeting. A full attendance is earnestly requested; musical selections "ad lib."

WINCHESTER BOY'S STORY IN BOSTON GARDEN NEWS

The Star received this week a copy of the "Boston Garden News," the official program for the 1931-32 season at the big North Station Arena. The publication includes among other interesting information an absorbing "inside" story about the champion "Canadians" hockey team, written by a Winchester boy, Harold Ambrose of the Boston Transcript sports staff.

Ambrose went to the Transcript in 1929 from Winchester High School where he was president of his class and a brilliant baseball player. His knowledge of sports statistics, especially of baseball averages, brought him to the attention of his superiors and he soon began to "cover" sports events as a member of the Transcript sports staff. He has continued in this department and his story in the "Garden News" indicates that he has been a close follower of professional hockey. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Ambrose of Vine street and has many friends among the town's young people.

WINTON CLUB CABARET

Have you bought your tickets for the Winton Club Cabaret? Two performances will be given on Friday and Saturday evenings, Feb. 5 and 6 under the direction of Mr. Childs of Concord, an experienced coach, and the committee promises to make this the best show ever. A new feature is the novel method of advertising by means of moving pictures. The amusing scenario, written by a Winton Club member, is acted in various parts of the town by a large cast of well-known local people. The whole show is full of pep, fun and good dancing.

Music is to be by Ruby Newman's Orchestra, the best dance orchestra in Boston, and performances on two nights will give everyone room to enjoy the general dancing between cabaret numbers.

Table tickets are $2.50 each, including refreshments. Balcony seats are $1.50 each for the first row; $1 each for the second row and 50c each for the balance. All tickets may be obtained from Mrs. James C. McCormick, Win. 1628. The entire proceeds of the show go to the support of our Winchester Hospital. Forget the depression for one evening! Come and have a good laugh and help the hospital which deserves and needs your support!

WINCHESTER RECREATION CENTER OPENS

To the Editor of the Star:

In the letter which you were good enough to publish in last Friday's STAR in regard to the need of recreation quarters for our young people it was stated that we hoped to announce definite plans in this issue. The response to this very urgent need has been so prompt, so kind and so encouraging that the young people are now ready to move into their new "Recreation Center" in Waterfield Hall, and elsewhere in this issue they are announcing their opening games in basketball next Thursday evening.

Less than two hours after the distribution of the STAR last Friday two generous citizens had volunteered assistance. As has often been the case in the past, in the recognition of a good cause "The Fortnightly" was among the very first to volunteer their help. The Community Service Committee under the leadership of Mrs. Anna M. Dunning, chairman, guaranteed the first month's rental for the hall. Thirty-five dollars or more has been subscribed in dollar pledges by the boys themselves. The girls who, so far, have not been mentioned, but who are included quite as much as the boys, have not had a chance to "start something." Several Winchester people have said, "A very urgent need. Count on me to help." All this together with our greatest asset which is the enthusiasm and determination of the young people themselves, has given us courage to go on.

For the benefit of those who may question we wish to say that it has been agreed that smoking in the hall will not be permitted. "Booze" in any form will not be tolerated because it is the enemy of good behaviour and clean sport. All Winchester young people who are willing to submit to these and other necessary regulations are not only welcome but are urged to make use of such opportunities as may be made possible.

Following next Monday it is hoped that the "Recreation Center" may be kept open afternoons and evenings with supervision by responsible adults and many competitive games in basketball are planned for girls as well as boys. Watch the STAR for announcements.

With sincerest appreciation and gratitude to all who have helped with kindly encouragement and generous deeds.

JOINT MEETING OF PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATIONS

Next Tuesday evening, Jan. 19, Dr. Charles H. Tozier will lecture and show his colored pictures in the high school assembly hall. The subjects are announced as "The Dawn of American History" and the "Land of the Aztecs." Neither of these has been presented to a Winchester audience before.

A small idea of these pictures may be had from the fact that there will be shown the landing place of Columbus, the home of Columbus and his son, and the grave where his remains are buried.

Few men in this country have developed photography as has Dr. Tozier in the past 30 years. The beautiful natural colors combined with a distinctness of detail result in the most beautiful effects imaginable.

Seldom do we have an opportunity to associate entertainment and education in such a pleasant and profitable way.

Dr. Tozier will speak under the auspices of the Senior and Junior High Schools' Parent-Teacher Associations.

FIREMAN'S MARRIAGE SURPRISE TO FRIENDS

The publication of marriages for the year just past brought to light the fact that Raymond C. Hanscom, a well known member of the Winchester Fire Department, had been for some time a benefactor without the knowledge of many of his associates and friends.

On Oct. 30 of last year Mr. Hanscom, who is the son of Mrs. Annie M. Hanscom of Washington street, married Miss M. Gertrude Brown, daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Brown of Surry street, Brighton, the ceremony being performed at Salem, N. H. Fireman and Mrs. Hanscom are making their home in Winchester.

SUNDAY NIGHT

Rev. Garfield Morgan, well-known leader of the famous Men's Class of Lynn and Congregational pastor will be the preacher on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock at the First Baptist Church.

Dr. Morgan is much in demand before Men's Clubs and Fraternities as a popular men's speaker. He is an Englishman of fine physique, compelling personality and of persuasive power. He has built up in Lynn what is said to be the largest church men's class in this state and has made it a tremendous power for good in the community life.

These young people are in America for their education and at present are studying at the Newton Theological Institution. Adolph Klau-pik, who is from Russia, will speak on his native country. The other three, John Inkemas, Dorothy Inkemas and Mary Trarajas are from Lithuania. They will sing several folk songs, as duets and trios, dressed in their native costume.

During the two following Sunday evenings the Epworth League will discuss International Disarmament. On one of the evenings they will have an address on the subject by a student from Boston. On the other they will debate the question, part of the material for the debate being replies to a questionnaire sent to a number of families within the church.

A gospel team of four young men from Boston University School of Theology will have charge of the Sunday evening devotional services during February.

CALUMET NOTES

Maine Guide Night is a thing of the past, and one of the largest of recent crowds at the club will testify that it was also among the best parties Calumet has staged in quite some time.

First of all it was unusual. Guests like Fred Burns, Charlie Nelson, Henry Johnson and the Bartletts, Jim and Ralph, don't come Calumet's way very often, and the stories they spun of the Moosehead Lake region together with their altogether pleasing personalities held an especial appeal for members and their guests.

A real Maine woods venison dinner was served at 6:30 by the club's capable steward Fred Scholl, and we understand that the visiting guides tried hard to get Fred to go back with them to do the cooking for their hungry campers. Venison was served as steaks, chops and as a delicious stew with boiled potatoes, squash, current jelly, "Tom and Jerry," apple pie with ice cream and coffee. As a special treat there was Main corn bread, baked by the guides in front of the fireplace in the reception hall on little stoves which they brought with them from camp.

There was no form of entertainment during the dinner, every one being too busy attending to the wants of the inner man. A pleasant social hour was spent after supper, opportunity being afforded for many old hunters to renew acquaintance with the guides. Many also took a look at the big exhibit of guns which W. J. L. Roop was showing in the card room. By 7:30 the hall had been cleared of its tables and while pipe and cigar smoke curled upward to the rafters the guides regaled the big gathering with stories which they solemnly averred were true. "Ed" Merrill, political boss and hunter extraordinaire, acted as master of ceremonies, introducing the guides to their audience and jogging their memory when it seemed likely that a good yarn was going to escape untold.

All the stories were good, and each of the guides admitted that his were true, doubtful as he might be of those recounted by his predecessor. It seemed to us that Henry Johnson's story of the sad plight of the boy who consumed a quart each of dried apples and beans was perhaps the hit of the evening, though Charlie Nelson's yarn about the fish that jumped into a Calumet member's boat and then was lost ran it a close second.

Fred Burns showed the boys what the well dressed woodsman is wearing when he entered the hall clothed in bright red hunting coat, red and black plaid trousers, rubbers, wind-breaker and slouch hat. The Bartlett boys admitted that speaking wasn't their specialty but promised any Calumet a good time at their Moosehead camps.

Following the stories two visitors from Woburn, "Ned" Johnson and Dr. J. Max Wilcox, were introduced. To them Calumeters were indebted for several reels of most interesting motion pictures, depicting a 200-mile canoe trip down the St. John's and Allagash Rivers. The pictures showing a three-mile carry, deer darting through the woods and the running of the St. John's rapids (three miles in 15 minutes in canoes) were particularly good, and there was some clever cutting to show a fishing picture which got a gasp from the audience.

After the pictures most of the crowd drifted back to the card room and kept "Bill" Roop busy answering questions about his guns. There were plenty of questions to ask for there were few in the crowd milling about the weapons who had seen their like before.

Mr. Roop has been collecting firearms for about 15 years and has an unusually fine collection, including many rare pieces and running the whole gamut from ancient matchlocks to the very latest Savage 303 rifle, complete with a registering device to tell just how many shots remain in the magazine.

Only about one-third of Mr. Roop's collection was at the club last Saturday, but included were a Golcher flint lock fowling piece, an exact duplicate of the one used by Daniel Boone; a highly decorated French matchlock such as the Arabs carried and an old "Brown Bess," or Tower flintlock musket, made famous by the British Grenadiers at Lexington and Concord. Among others there were an old wooden barrelled rifle used to train recruits at the time of the Civil War and an army carbine, on which the only mark of identification is the initials "C. S. A."

Perhaps the most interesting of Mr. Roop's exhibits was a poison dart gun, which resembled a cane and which operated noiselessly by compressed air. A most deadly and unusual weapon. There were also several fine examples of cane pistols and swords which looked like walking sticks, but which in reality were effective weapons in hands trained to use them. A harmless looking little pocket derringer was sufficiently deadly to side anything while connoisseurs of side arms were especially taken with a six barreled pistol which fired counter clockwise. Kentucky duelling pistols and the short barreled pocket pieces carried by the gamblers on the old river boats were all included as was a splendid example of the old "army issue" deadly bowie knife. There was not a gun in the exhibit which Mr. Roop had not fired and his answers to the questions hurled at him from all angles were as interesting as the guns themselves.

After the party at the club some of the guides were entertained at the homes of club members, and Sunday morning at 9 o'clock they regretfully started over the road for their home camps in Greenville, Me. "Dan" Kelley, who had been an interested listener to their stories the night before was on hand to wish them "bon voyage," a little courtesy which was much appreciated by the men of the woods and rivers.

Calumet took eight out of 15 points from Towanda Monday evening, continuing its winning streak. Monday the locals met Middlesex away from home, and are looking for another scalp.

WINCHESTER YOUNG WOMAN INJURED AS BUS AND SEDAN COLLIDE

Miss Elizabeth MacFeeley of 201 Washington street was painfully injured Sunday when a bus of the Boston & Maine Transportation Co., in which she was a passenger, was in collision two miles north of Wells Center, Me. on the State Highway, with a sedan operated by Ambrose Redmond of 61 Chester road, Belmont.

The operator of the bus, Howard Young, turned the vehicle into a field in an effort to avoid the collision. Two windows in the bus, which was Boston bound, were broken.

Miss MacFeeley was the only passenger in the bus reported injured, sustaining cuts and bruises. She was brought home Sunday night.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT OF MISS WHITTAKER

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Whittaker of Highland Avenue announced last Saturday afternoon at a bridge at their home, the engagement of their second daughter, Miss Mary Louise to Mr. F. Ely Hite, son of Mrs. William F. Hite of Huntington, West Virginia.

Miss Whittaker was graduated from the Winchester High School with the class of 1931 and Mr. Hite was graduated from Culver Military Academy with the class of 1926 and attended Lehigh University. He is engaged in business in Huntington. A small wedding with just the immediate families is planned for June.

WILLIAM FIRTH

William Firth, a pioneer in the textile industry of Ohio, died recently in his 77th year, at the home of his son, in South Orange, N. J. Mr. Firth, who was born in England, was one of a group of English textile men who established mills in western New York and Ohio. Among them was the plant now called the Cleveland Worsted Mills, which was started by Mr. Firth.

He leaves his widow, one son, as above, and a daughter and three grandchildren. For many years he resided in Winchester and the development of Gleggarry was carried out by him.

MISS AVERY'S FIFTH LECTURE

Miss Avery spoke in her lecture of Jan. 13 on Spain and its interest as a new republic. As a republic it is so very new that it is still a question whether or not it will succeed. Its constitution is copied from that of Germany, Hungary, Mexico and Czechoslovakia and is a combination of all four.

Spain is the first Latin nation to give political rights to women for in the new constitution both men and women are allowed to vote at 23.

Spain has been influenced in the past by many races. From the Roman invasion, numerous ruins remain of the Visigoths there are few traces but the Arabs have influenced Spain more than either of the others and their effects have been felt all over Spain and still are today. The Arab, the Spanish Jew and the Gypsy are the three Oriental races that have left a lasting impression and the Oriental learning, love of color and exquisiteness of design are seen everywhere in Spain.

Her three great problems are her mountains, her weather and the brittle material that she has to work with.

The Spanish constitution has tried to separate church and state, always a difficult thing to accomplish peacefully. It has also tried to break up the big holdings for the poverty of the Spanish peasant is appalling.

Today Spain is in the midst of experiments and how they will succeed is still a question of the future.

Miss Avery also spoke briefly on a few recent political developments abroad. Germany she said had just declared that Germany could not pay her reparations.

In France the Laval cabinet had fallen and whether he could form a new one was still uncertain.

Miss Avery's next lecture on Jan. 27 will be an "Appraisal of 1931 and the Prospects for 1932." And may the committee make a request that the audience arrive promptly at 2:45 so that the lecture can begin on time without interruptions. We feel that the audience has been getting more and more lax in this respect and it is neither fair to the audience nor to the lecturer herself.

CHRISTMAS COMMUNITY RELIEF

The work of the Citizens' Community Relief Committee can best be visualized by the number of families to whom aid was given at Christmas.

In co-operation with the Welfare Board, two appeals were published in the Star and as a result $148 in donations were received by the treasurer, Mrs. Harry Sanborn. Personal donations amounted to $74 and the Elks and Congregational Church gave $74. There was a balance in the treasury which had come in too late last year to be used.

One hundred and twelve families received orders on local stores. The Girl Scouts provided five families with trees, gifts and money. The American Legion took five names from our lists, the Red Cross two and the Fortnightly one. A class of boys in the Baptist Church Sunday School gave gifts to another family. Private individuals supplied five more families, making a total of 131. Toys were given to over 150 children. From all reports there was practically no duplicate giving.

The committee wishes to thank each and every one who assisted in bringing cheer and practical help to these families. To the men of the Fire Department who so wonderfully repaired and reconditioned toys we extend our sincerest thanks.

The officers and members of this committee are Mrs. Clifford Towner, chairman; Mr. Nathaniel Nichols, secretary; Mrs. Harry Sanborn, treasurer; Mrs. C. S. Hall, Mrs. Joseph Ryan, Miss Nellie Sullivan and Mr. Fred Scholl.

GRACE AND CHARM

By Frances Mandel

CHARM

When in a gathering of people, have you ever noticed how one or two women will stand out from the others as especially attractive, perhaps they are no more beautiful or more finely clothed than any of the others. But there is something which they possess which makes them charming. The secret? They have cultivated poise and personality, and in any gathering they distinctly stand out. There are many people who believe that one must be born with these desirable qualities, but this idea is a fallacy. One must study to obtain such individuality. Musical talents and education—modesty and good manners—all help to make for charm. Give a thought to this subject. Analyze and study yourself in an endeavor to find your weak points, and cultivate and acquire those qualities which will make you charming and always admired by everyone.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

WINCHESTER WON AGAIN FROM WOBURN

Winchester High won its second basketball game of the season from Woburn High last Friday evening in the big Woburn High gymnasium, defeating the Orange and Black, 17-15 in a thriller that had the big crowd pop-eyed with excitement.

Between the halves of the first team game the Woburn seconds turned back the Winchester jay-vees, 14-9 in another good game.

The Tanners started away like sure winners with Barnard scoring twice from scrimmage and once from the foul line and Crutcher sinking a floor goal for a 7-0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

At this point Winchester woke up. "Shelle" Hamilton dropped in three pretty goals from scrimmage while Hal Knowlton, "Hokie" Procopio and "Deck" Mobbs sank shots from free tries to give Winchester a two point advantage as the teams left the floor at half time.

The locals maintained their lead in the third quarter, and as the final period got under way commenced to run wild, pushing their advantage to a 17-10 count before Woburn got started.

Coolen dropped in a floor basket and Crutcher cut down Winchester's lead to three points when he sank a nice shot from scrimmage.

With but a couple of minutes to play, Erwin made a foul shot good and the Tanners were within a single floor goal of a tie. Winchester, however, refused to crack and keeping the ball away from the Orange sharpshooters, kept its advantage safe to the final whistle.

The game on the whole was fast, especially in view of the fact that only a single substitution was made. Winchester's starting lineup remained in action throughout and the boys were plenty leg-weary as the game ended. "Shelle" Hamilton, who won the preceding Woburn game with a shot from a free try, scored 10 points for high total last Friday.

The center of interest in the square these days is the mill pond where a crowd of men are engaged in clearing away the excess silt on the bottom. The sluiceways have been opened and the water drawn off, leaving a most unsightly mass of silt and slime exposed to view. The town is fortunate in getting the mill pond cleaned up at this time as the work is being done with funds raised by the Unemployment Committee.

Apparently the holdup men have it in for Fred "Ginger" Pratt of this town, manager of a store on Cross street in Malden. Last Saturday night, for the second time within a month, a gunman entered his store and forcing Mr. Pratt and his errand boy into the back room, took $20 from the till and $2 from the Winchester young man's pocket. Mr. Pratt said the same man was responsible for both thefts.

CAMP WYANOKE REUNION

On Saturday, Jan. 16, the 23rd reunion of Camp Wyanoke, and the 12th reunion of Camp Winnemont were held at the Hotel Statler, Boston. Camp Wyanoke, located at Wolfeboro, N. H. is under the direction of Mr. Walter H. Bentley of Winchester, and Winnemont, located at West Ossipee, N. H. is supervised by Miss Rae Frances Baldwin of Arlington, with Mr. Bentley as business associate.

Mr. Bentley acted as toastmaster at the Wyanoke banquet, and Miss Baldwin at the Winnemont gathering. Robert Corson of Brookline spoke for the Midget Camp, Cordis Sargent of Lexington for the Junior Camp, and John Perry of Newton Center for the Senior Camp. Mr. Walter Koch of Harvard Law School represented the councilors.

After the separate luncheons, the Winnemont girls entertained the two groups. Edith Wahn of Jamaica Plain and Martha Jeanne Benway of Arlington gave solo dances. Miss Joy Adriance of Winchester gave a vocal solo as did Jean Marsh of Arlington. Mr. Robert Nichols of Tufts College told of his experiences last summer in geology work in the Grand Canyon. Wendall Sargent of Lexington played several pieces on the accordion, and Mr. Joe Lorraine, the camp entertainer, was on the program with favorite selections on the banjo.

Dancing was enjoyed in the Georgian room, and there were moving pictures for the smaller boys and girls in another room. Music for the dancing was furnished by a camp group composed of Mr. C. R. Spaulding of Newton; Charles Currier, Andover; Walter Abbott and Charles Lindsay, West Newton; and George Brown, Beverly.

Those attending from Winchester were Miss Joy Adriance, Frederick Bates, Charles, Parker and Wallace Blanchard, Dean Carleton, David Chamberlain, Rose Downes, Helen Ghirardini, Elizabeth Gilbert, Jean Irish, Marjorie Kidder, William Gilpatrick, Kenneth Leghorn, Fred Moran, Sally Parsons, Mrs. D. W. Randall, Frances Randall, David Ritchie, Stella Rogers, Miss Joan Ryan, Natalie Stevens and Betty Thompson.

TO CELEBRATE MASSES IN NEW CHURCH SUNDAY

Rev. Fr. James Fitzsimons, pastor of the new Immaculate Conception Parish which included a part of the North End of Winchester and the South End of Woburn, announced this week that masses will be celebrated Sunday in the newly erected chapel on Sheridan circle south at 7, 9, 10 and 11 o'clock, the 9 o'clock mass being for children.

The new chapel has a seating capacity of about 450. To avoid traffic congestion it is suggested that autos go to the church by way of Sheridan circle north and leave by Sheridan circle south, making one way traffic around the loop.

ATTORNEY ANDREWS GUEST OF WINCHESTER LIONS

Members of the Winchester Lions' Club with a large number of guests listened to a frank discussion of the Eighteenth Amendment by Assistant District Attorney William G. Andrews at the regular weekly luncheon meeting on Monday at the Calumet Club. Police Chief William H. Rogers, Lieut. John A. Harrold, Sergt. John H. Noonan, Selectman Irving L. Symmes and former Selectman Thomas F. Fallon were among the guests.

After one of Fred's delicious lunches "Bob" led the group singing and finally persuaded "Jerry" to render "Sweet Adeline" as a solo, an ad lib chorus helping out with the repeat. At the conclusion of the singing, the Lions roared, loudly and well!

President Roger introduced Attorney Andrews who substituted for his chief, District Attorney Warren Bishop, who was prevented from attending by urgent business connected with the closing of the Medford Trust Co. Mr. Andrews classed himself as "just another cop" and added that he was proud to be in that classification. He stated that no law which the public does not want is enforceable and pointed to the Prohibition Amendment to the Constitution as a case in point.

His discussion of prohibition was most frank and he did not at all hesitate to say that in his opinion conditions are now much worse than they were in the old days of license, bad as things were at that time.

Attorney Andrews views the increase in juvenile delinquency, due to liquor, with concern and stated that many high schools are finding the drinking of their students a very real problem.

In conclusion he felt that the present laws should be modified, but if that is impractical, then repeal is preferable to the present attempt to enforce something which hasn't the sanction of public opinion. He favored the system of governmental control in Canada where he said the only people one sees drunk are those from the States.

A question box followed his address. Attorney Andrews' good naturedly answering many queries, ranging all the way from a definition of drunkenness to the difference between being summoned and arrested.

KEEP IN LINE

To the Editor of the Star:

It is gratifying to learn, from our Town Treasurer of Winchester's good credit, but, to many of our citizens, a program of rigid economy in the town's business for the current year, would be even more welcome. Overburdened taxpayers will not be particularly joyful just because it appears that the town still has the power to borrow more money. If the town does have some further borrowing capacity there are a few leaders who will not rest until the last straw is placed upon the camel's back. They seem to abhor such a thing as "Reserve of Cash or Credit."

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF NEWS

Many Winchester citizens observe one phase of the Unemployment Relief Committee's work, in the mud being removed from the Mill Pond. The material removed has high fertilizer value and can be used, with the addition of lime and sand, as a surfacing loam. A portion of the material removed will be used to improve the grading and shores of the Mill Pond on the side opposite the High School and the Library. Another portion will be removed by trucks to town land where it will be held for other purposes.

Sidewalk work will be substantially completed within the next two weeks. A little remains to be done. Nine thousand seven hundred and eighty four feet of sidewalk have now been completed.

Another crew of men is working with the Water and Sewer Department in improving the shores of the Reservoir. A crew is road building in the Cemetery. Still another is at work on Leonard Field.

A group of "white collar" men is engaged in painting. The committee would like opportunity to use this painting group on fences and plain work on private property in other parts of the town. It is desired to do work which would not otherwise be done. It is not the policy of the committee to interfere with the regular contractors or agencies who supply skilled labor. If, however, you are willing to create new work requiring skilled labor, telephone Unemployment Relief Headquarters, Winchester 0733-M, and we will send to you two or more contractors to bid on your work and they will employ through us such skilled labor as we are able to offer to them. In this way all interests are both served and given reasonable protection.

Under the advice of the Waterways Commission and the Park Department the committee has undertaken the improvement of the valley of the Aberjona River. Only a small percentage of our citizens realize the urgent need of dealing with this situation. Mr. Lewis Parkhurst is one citizen who has both realized the blot which the acres of mud and water constitute and has given liberally of his own time and money toward its solution. More information regarding this development will be supplied in the next issue of the Star.

At this writing 2876 units of clothing have been distributed.

The next eight weeks will constitute the most important period in which to deal with the unemployment problem. The generosity and more particularly a wise appreciation of the importance of the situation upon the part of Winchester citizens inspired them to a liberal subscription list which is supplying the money to create useful work of permanent value to the town and at the same time relieve unemployment.

At this writing 157 men are at work, either on part or full time.

Men and women are being sent out constantly on special or regular household work, but more work is wanted, particularly for women.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE NOTES

Last Monday the Circles of Greater Boston held a mass meeting and luncheon at the Hotel Statler when all who attended came away enthusiastic to work all the harder to gain still more brilliant results.

Last week many Winchester members were present at the house warming given at Welcome House, Jamaica Plain by the Boston Circle. Here the girls gave a demonstration of day modelling. At this new home is located the protective work of the League. Visitors are welcome and Mrs. Friend would be glad to make arrangements for Winchester ladies who would like to go there this month. In the near future will come the house warming for the hospital home in Brighton. Here the new left wing is completed with some minor alterations to the main building. The Winchester Circle is especially interested in the new chapel that is made with the extension of the old living room.

With the needs of these new buildings before the Circle, hence comes the supreme effort of the Winchester Circle to make their coming luncheon bridge go over the top big. And the committee hopes that the ladies will help them by engaging their tables early so that every one can be accommodated without the confusion of a last minute rush.

EPIPHANY MEN'S CLUB NOTES

The Men's Club of the Church of the Epiphany, will hold its next meeting Monday, Feb. 1.

The committee, Dr. Hollister K. Olmstead and Mr. Winthrop A. Jackson have been exceedingly fortunate in securing Col. H. Leonard Morse to address the club.

Colonel Morse will unravel for his audience the financial tangles at present existent, under the title "Never Again."

The Colonel is one of only three men ever to secure two degrees from M. I. T. in four years. He served 16 years in the regular army, seeing active duty in the Philippines, and in the World War he was one of the first to lead a regiment of "75's" across the Rhine. Since his resignation from the army in 1920 he has been a successful Industrial Engineer serving such prominent clients as the Goethals Engineering Co., Remington Typewriter Co., Bethlehem Steel Corp., State Street Trust Co., and others.

The club can anticipate a most interesting evening from a speaker of the ability and experience of the Colonel whose cure for most business evils is "a persistent intelligent curiosity and lots of arithmetic."

Winchester is distinctly honored in the election of Superintendent of Schools James J. Quinn to the presidency of the Boy Scout Council. With the adoption of the new name of "Pelicans" for the Council, thereby assuring and grouping the identity of each town included therein, Superintendent Quinn takes over the office as head of this important organization at a most opportune time. He has repeatedly evinced to the residents of this town exceptional ability in the handling of young people, and as an executive his work in the Winchester schools has been widely noted. With the adoption of the new Council name the troops of the various towns and cities in the district become a distinct and united Boy Scout body, and Mr. Quinn's election as its head was unanimous.

We were interested in the news story we read last week telling of the thrill a champion girl swimmer gets by driving her new roadster 50 miles an hour through the principal streets of a big far western city. It was also interesting to learn that she is enabled to enjoy this innocuous pastime because her good friends, the Mayor and Chief of Police, indulgently tear up the tickets she gets from traffic officers who literally risk their lives to issue them. It is just such indulgence which promotes the growing disregard for law and order of which this same Mayor and Police Chief have doubtless had cause to complain. You can not expect one class of people to respect the same law they see a privileged class flout with impunity.

Motorists are advised to think up a new excuse for long time parking on Thompson street. The new signs are now up and are rather more conspicuous than most.

On the back of a clipping from the Star, published in the fall of 1912, which we came upon this week, the following statement, evidently from a letter, struck us as one of the reasons for Winchester's present enviable financial condition:

"Many cities and towns have 'monkeyed' with their tax laws until they have become fixed obligations and caused great embarrassment. We never have done this. Furthermore we don't appropriate expected receipts but wait until we get them."

HEARING HELD ON ABERJONA IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

A hearing was held Wednesday in the State House before the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs, a joint committee of the Senate and House of which Senator Charles Warren of Arlington is chairman, on the bill introduced by Rep. Thomas M. Bateman of Winchester, calling for the appropriation of $30,000 to clean out the Aberjona River from the railroad bridge at Wedgemere to Mystic Lake and as far into the lake as possible.

In the absence of Mr. Bateman, who was unable to be present, the bill was presented by Hon. Lewis Parkhurst who has been for some time actively interested in the problem of clearing up the town's waterways.

Former Selectman Joseph W. Worthen of the town's Waterways Committee, Water Commissioner Charles E. Kendall and several citizens whose homes are in the Wedgemere district of the town spoke in favor of the proposed bill, and a letter to the same end from Mrs. Charles Mosely of Everett avenue was read.

There was no opposition to the bill, and it is understood that the Metropolitan District Commission is also favorably disposed toward it.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Pierce of 59 Wedgemere avenue, accompanied by Mrs. Esther Clark of Wildwood terrace, left today for Nassau, Havana and the Canal Zone.

FROM THE CHAIRMAN OF THE PLANNING BOARD

To the Editor of the Star:

In your editorial columns of last week you call attention to the recent controversy about the development of the Purinton farm on Cambridge street, and suggest the possibility of an amendment to the zoning by-law to prevent similar trouble in the future, expressing the view that there is a weakness in our zoning regulations which should be remedied.

Your interest in the town's welfare and your desire to improve existing regulations are, of course, commendable; and this letter is written not in criticism of your editorial but by way of explanation.

The objections to the proposed development could not be overcome by the enactment of any by-law. The residence owners in the neighborhood, who have set an excellent standard of development, quite naturally and properly desire that new houses, like those already built, should not be of inexpensive construction, should possess some architectural variety and merit, and be placed in attractive settings. But an attempt by rule or regulation to require a new development in these respects to come up to a high standard of excellence already established nearby would be almost certainly futile, because the courts would regard it an unwarranted interference with property rights and unconstitutional.

We have already gone a long way in Winchester in preventing undesirable development. We have our carefully prepared building laws. We have our zoning by-laws to prevent the setting up of a business or industry in a residential district. We have the provision that a new building lot for a single house must contain at least 6500 square feet and for a double house at least 7500 square feet. We require in all residential districts a minimum set-back of 20 feet, and along public ways, where legally permissible, we often establish a building line of much greater depth. The time may come when the town will believe that a larger minimum size of lot or a greater minimum set-back should be required, but even more stringent regulations in this respect would not fully solve the problem. In the sections of town where the more expensive residences are located much necessarily must be left to the individual landowner, who can place such additional restrictions on his land as he pleases and can insist upon a development consistent with the character of the neighboring property. Even before the adoption of the present restrictive and regulatory by-laws, much of the best of Winchester was developed and built. It is to be hoped and indeed expected that hereafter landowners will find that in a high grade residential neighborhood it is usually better business and certainly a more public spirited policy, to build to the standard of excellence already established there.

Incidentally, I understand that the Purinton development as proposed last fall, for the present at least, has been abandoned.

W. L. Parsons,
Chairman, Planning Board

WINCHESTER COUNTRY CLUB CURLING TEAMS AT BROOKLINE

For the second year the Country Club curling teams competed last Friday and Saturday in the annual invitation Bouspiel of the Country Club of Brookline, for the Howard Stockton Cup, and the Clyde Park Cup for all teams eliminated in the first round of the Stockton Cup.

Winchester's teams made a very satisfactory showing considering their handicap of having had but one day's practice this winter and indicate a good future in the sport.

Friday, the first day of the Bouspiel, was more suited for golf and tennis than for a winter sport and in view of the abnormal heat, the condition of the rinks was very unsatisfactory—variable, however, in the speed of the ice during the day. At the opening match a fog bank hung over the rinks, an unusual condition.

Winchester No. 2 team drew the champion 1931 Country Club No. 1 team and by defeat were eliminated from the Stockton Cup match to the Clyde Park Cup consolation match, where Winchester team 2 went through to the semi-final round by defeating Worcester Curling Club and the Brae Burn Curling Club, finally being eliminated in the semi-final round by the Utica Curling Club, skipped by the famous "Jack" Caldwell and who were runners-up in 1931 to the Country Club No. 1 team for the championship.

Winchester No. 1 team drew St. Andrews No. 2 curl club of Mt. Hope, New York, in their first round, and won a beautiful match which they won 15-14 only to be eliminated by Caledonia No. 2 in the third round by a score of 19-13. To sum up the results, Winchester No. 1 team won one match and lost one match. Winchester No. 2 team won two matches and lost two matches.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The Legislation Committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. Beatrice Thompson will be in charge of the program to be given in the Town Hall on Monday afternoon, Jan. 25. In line with the policy of the Federation, the meeting will stress the questions of disarmament and the World Court. The speaker for the afternoon, Miss Alice W. Hunt, a graduate of Wellesley College, has been active in public welfare work in Rhode Island and during the war served that state and the federal government efficiently. Miss Hunt has been prominent in the activities of several women's organizations in Rhode Island and since the war has been especially interested in international affairs. She has visited the International Court of Justice at The Hague, has attended four assemblies of the League of Nations and for four years has been a member of Professor Zimmern's School of International Relations at Geneva. Miss Hunt has an engaging personality, is a most effective speaker and holds the attention of her audience throughout her program. The Legislation Committee, therefore, presents Miss Hunt as their speaker with confidence in her ability and feeling that her rare sense of humor and personal charm will make a strong appeal to club members.

A short musical program will be presented by Mrs. Henry Bridge, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Mary Witham. After the meeting tea will be served by the Social Committee, Mrs. Grace Aseltine, chairman.

MELROSE GIRLS TOO GOOD FOR WINCHESTER

Melrose High girls proved much too good for Winchester Wednesday afternoon, winning the basketball game between the two schools in the local gymnasium, 54-7.

Reardon, visiting right forward, in tallying 46 points, must have come close to a record for the local floor, the Winchester's "Kay" Fairfield rolled up some huge totals in days gone by.

Thompson, Winchester's right forward, got Winchester's only two point basket.

WINTON CLUB CABARET

Winton Club members and their many generous friends, old and new, are preparing with great zest for the annual cabaret to be given this year on Friday and Saturday evening, Feb. 5 and 6. Many intriguing innovations are indicated, both in entertainment and arrangements.

Returning to the original cabaret scheme—probably more properly described these days as "night club"—there is to be dancing throughout the evening with "numbers" interspersed. The coach, Mr. Fred Childs has been remarkably successful in producing shows for the American Legion in Concord, and is training Winchester's clever amateurs in songs and dances that promise genuine enjoyment for the audience. Winton Club husbands and brothers, the old guard—"Doc" Hindes, "Charlie" Kelly, et al.—and the younger set, headed by Miss Eleanor Ives, are included in the casts.

Much interest has been aroused in the moving picture feature. Local business men have been most friendly in their co-operation, and at the "preview" recently enthusiasm and merriment ran high. Dr. Ordway has taken the pictures with infinite patience, and it goes without saying that they are well done.

An unusual plan of carnival decorations promises novelty, a minimum of drafts, and perhaps for the first time in history, adequate dressing room accommodations for all!

Ruby Newman's orchestra, 12 pieces, will play from the stage for the entire evening.

There will be no "convert" charge, and with the Winton Club members acting as hostesses both nights a sense of gracious hospitality is assured.

There is no "depression" in the courage of the Winton Club members from Mrs. Joseph Worthen, the president, and her board who have charge of this affair down to the newest members. The welfare of the Winchester Hospital is very vital to each and every one, and in spite of the "times" all are enthusiastically determined to make this year's cabaret eminently successful.

WINCHESTER HIGH TRIMMED LEXINGTON

Winchester High School continued to make its presence in the Middlesex League felt by winning its game from Lexington High Wednesday afternoon at Lexington, 21-8. Once the locals got started the big rangy Lexington team was unable to cope with Winchester's superior all around game.

The first half was close, but Winchester had the edge, the score being 9-6 at intermission. The second half was all Winchester and to make the afternoon complete the Winchester seconds won from the Lexington seconds, 18-15.

ADDITIONAL BREAKS IN WINCHESTER

In addition to the breaks reported in last week's Star four buildings have been entered about town. On Friday Sexton Wallace Murphy discovered that the Episcopal Church had been entered and two drawers forced in a cabinet in the choir room. A small sum of money was missing.

While patrolling his beat on the West Side last Friday evening Officer Archie O'Connell discovered that an entrance to the home of Mr. Osmond C. Webster on Central street had been gained and that the place had been completely ransacked. The family being absent from town, Chief William H. Rogers of the Police Department has been unable to discover whether anything was taken, but he believes that this break was not the work of those who have been burglarizing schools and churches here.

Patrolman Joseph J. Derro discovered Tuesday evening while on duty in the center that the Blue Bird Laundry on Main street just above the railroad crossing had been entered, access having been gained by forcing a rear window. An investigation disclosed the fact that the cash drawer and safe were open. The proprietor, James McLean, was notified, and a check-up with him showed that no money had been taken.

Yesterday it became known that the Girl Scouts' cabin on the Brooks es-home gardens and a few local farmers who have made requests largely along the line of fruit growing and market gardening.

In homemaking three sections of the town have carried on organized projects: the Highlands, Noonan and Washington sections. Mrs. Rony Snyder, Mrs. E. S. Winn, Mrs. Edw. O'Connor, Mrs. Thomas Conlan and Mrs. Valerie O'Connor acted as leaders for these groups.

Seventy-three homemakers attended the series of monthly meetings, at which time the Homemakers' Day was discussed. More intelligent marketing was stressed for the homemakers and the local merchants co-operated by displaying the Extension poster, "Know Your Groceries" with a window exhibit which called attention to grades, brands, weights, sizes and relative price. Economical and nutritious meals, time schedules and family co-operation were also emphasized. Six hundred and sixteen improved practices were reported by these women and information was passed on to 126 other homemakers.

Over 40 mothers followed the series of meetings on "Child Guidance." These meetings were planned to help parents better understand their children and develop a constructive program. The discussions included "Understanding Our Child," "You and Your Child," "Education Through Play," "Clothing Our Children," "Feeding Our Children" and "Telling the Children the Story of Life."

Upon request the home demonstration agent spoke to the following organizations: Women's Fortnightly Club and the Highlands' Parent-Teachers' Association.

In Boys' and Girls' Club work, 55 were enrolled. Mr. James J. Quinn, served as town chairman for this work and Miss Claire Walker, Charles Eshback and Kenneth Benson served as local leaders. Charles Eshback was awarded a week at the Massachusetts 4-H club camp for doing outstanding garden club work. Kenneth Benson was awarded a trip to Camp Field, Brockton and Josephine Scaturro was awarded a two-day trip to the Massachusetts State College for doing outstanding club work.

It is hoped another year that even a larger enrollment may be made in these clubs because it furnishes an excellent opportunity to assist in the homes, not only growing vegetables but by preserving them for winter use, and at the same time the boys and girls are receiving an education that will be of value to them in later life.

GRANADA THEATRE, MALDEN

Clive Brook in "Husband's Holiday" and Will Rogers in "Ambassador Bill" is the double bill that opens a run of seven days at the big Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "Husband's Holiday" is an adaptation of Ernest Pascal's novel "The Marriage Bed." It presents Clive Brook as a happily married man, with two children, who falls in love with another woman. Juliette Compton is the fair charmer and she insists that Brook divorce his wife and marry her. Brook's wife, played by Vivienne Osborn, tells him the affair is silly and refuses a divorce. Torn between love for his children and desire for Miss Compton, Brook has a part that demonstrates his historic ability. Others in the cast are Charles Ruggles, Harry Bannister and Charles Winniger.

Will Rogers does everything, even twirling his ropes, in "Ambassador Bill" and the film is simply overflowing with laughs and typical Roger's wise-cracks. Presenting him as the easy-going American ambassador to an intriguing and snobbish court, it offers him a fine opportunity for pungent comment on politics and the times. And Will Rogers is the one man in the world who can make the most of an opportunity like that. Will is assisted in his fun-making by a number of lesser celebrities including Greta Nissen, Marguerite Churchill and Gustave von Seyffertitz. "Ambassador Bill" and the companion picture "Husband's Holiday" are so totally different in theme that they combine to make a well balanced program of drama and comedy.

Gary Cooper in "His Woman" and "Around the World in 80 Minutes" with Douglas Fairbanks, is the bill now playing at the Granada. "His Woman" presents Gary as the Captain of a schooner in the tropics who falls in love with Claudette Colbert. "Around the World in 80 Minutes" is a pictorial record of Mr. Fairbanks' recent jaunt and has some surprising scenes. It is something different in screen entertainment and has not a dull moment.

French a Mixture
As far back as history goes, France was inhabited chiefly by Celtic tribes, with Teutonic influences in the north and Mediterranean influences in the south.

No Permanent Stop
Little Bobby was getting his first instruction in punctuation in school, also considerable instruction in when and when not to speak. At dinner one evening he listened for some time to his parents engrossed in conversation and then interrupted. Mother scolded, but Bobby replied, "Well, I waited and waited for you to come to a period, but you only came to commas."

Careful Clara
Two Smith college girls were members of a camping party on one occasion when the question of mushrooms came up.

"Clara," said one of them with reference to the specimens brought in, "these may be good mushrooms all right, but are you sufficiently expert in such matters to know that they are not in reality toadstools?"

"Well," said Clara, "there weren't any toads sitting on them."—Kansas City Times.

WINCHESTER EXHIBITORS SCORED IN METROPOLITAN TAN SHOW

Winchester exhibitors were among the winners at the horse show sponsored by the Metropolitan Driving Club and held last Saturday afternoon and evening in the ring of the syndicate stable at Charles River Speedway.

The evening class for lightweight hunters had a distinctly Winchester tinge, the blue being won by Constance Greco's Greylight and the red, by Anna Danforth's Dorette. Harry Good's Watch Me was third.

The blue in the heavyweight hunter class was won by Harry Good's Homeland and High Flyer from the same stable was second. In the open jumping Roger W. Higgins' Checkers took the blue, finishing in front of Anna Danforth's Dorette, Harry Good's High Flyer and Constance Greco's Greylight.

Miss Greco's Greylight paired with Mary McElwain's Killarney Rose to win the event for pair jumpers, Anna Danforth's Dorette and Harry Good's High Flyer taking the red. Harry Good's entry was first and Constance Greco's second, in the competition for hunt teams.

IN MEMORIAM

Jan. 18, 1932

To the Editor of the Star:

Ralph S. Vinal has left with us a memory ever to be cherished. With cheerful mien, keen humor and steadfast courage he met life's problems. He loved beauty and truth and could not brook coarseness or falsehood in any form. He found pleasure in helping others and rejoiced in their success. There was no room for envy or jealousy in his generous nature. In the mad stress of modern life, he moved deliberately and serenely with a smile and kindly greeting for all. Beauty, truth and happiness were his goal and principle his bulwark. Thoughtless impulse to sacrifice principle to gain an end never urged him from his upright course. He was a rare, lovable and kindly man.

His departure from a generation blinded by the rush of its machinery and the lure of its gold, has left in us a keener realization that there are greater things in life than material gain. Those who knew him will always miss the sunshine and happiness his presence brought into their lives. Now that he has passed into the silence and mystery of death, may we who deeply mourn, tenderly turn the light he left for us on earth.

Medford Council Changes Name to "Fellsland Council"

James Quinn, Superintendent of Schools, Elected President

Annual Meeting Held in Medford

On Monday, Jan. 18, the Medford Council, Boy Scouts of America held its annual meeting with Scouts in attendance from Burlington, Medford, Stoneham, Winchester and Woburn.

Because of the fact that the Council had grown from one city, Medford, to comprise a territory involving several communities in addition to Medford, the Executive Board decided early last year to change the name of the Council. In order to secure a new name a contest was held in which every Patrol of Scouts in the Council was privileged to submit a suggested name.

Twenty-five names were submitted and from these the Executive Board selected one as most fitting. The name thus selected was approved at the annual meeting of the Council.

held Monday evening, so that from that day the Council will no longer be known as the Medford Council, but will be known as "The Fellsland Council, Boy Scouts of America."

This name, fitting as it is, and descriptive of the territory covered by the Council was submitted by the Eagle Patrol of Troop 3, Winchester, composed of Robert G. Millican, Patrol Leader; Donald Tead; Leonard Millican, Fred Bates; "Billy" Smith; Howard Morrison, Jr., and Clifford Mason.

Their entry approved by Harold Hovey, gives the following reasons why the name is a good one for our Council:

1. The name locates the Council in the Middlesex Fells district.
2. The name "Fells" means land of lakes, hills and forests, the paradise of Scouts.
3. The name Fellsland is easy to remember and pronounce.
4. Four of the five Council branches are located in towns adjoining the Fells.
5. The Middlesex Fells offer opportunities for numerous Scouting activities.

Scouts throughout the Council are today congratulating these Scouts for the splendid name which they suggested. The name has met with enthusiastic approval from everyone who has heard of the selection.

So appropriate did the name seem to the Executive Board that it was also decided to change the name of the Camp to correspond with that of the Council, so that from now on the Camp at Amesbury, attended by Winchester Scouts last summer and operated by the Fellsland Council, will be known as "Camp Fellsland" which immediately identifies it as a part of the Council work.

Elect Officers

In addition to the reading of reports by officers and committee chairmen, one of the chief items on the agenda of the annual meeting of the Boy Scout Council is the election of officers.

During the year 1931, George S. Miller, assistant to the President at Tufts College, it became the task of the Council. During his time of office the Council has achieved outstanding results in the strengthening of its administrative machinery.

When it became known that Mr. Miller could not serve this year because an unusual burden of duties at Tufts College, it became the task of the Nominating Committee to select a successor.

From the very first meeting of this committee the name of one man, Mr. James Quinn, Superintendent of Schools in Winchester, who has given generously of his time and energy in the interest of Scouting, not only in Winchester, but in the whole Council stood out as the man who would make an ideal President for the Council.

It was with real joy that the Nominating Committee reported that Mr. Quinn, busy as he is, had consented to render this great service to the Council, and to boyhood.

Needless to say the report of the Nominating Committee was unanimously accepted and Mr. Quinn was unanimously elected to the Presidency of the Fellsland Council, Boy Scouts of America.

In accord with the Council plan of organization in which each community in the Council is directly represented on the Executive Board, the following Winchester men were nominated and elected at the annual meeting: Dwight B. Hill, Vice-President of the Council; R. K. Miller, Jr., District Commissioner.

Winchester Scouts who attended the annual meeting are as follows: John Campbell, District Chairman; R. N. Sibbey, District Secretary; Dwight B. Hill, Council Vice-President; R. K. Miller, Jr., District Commissioner; Edward R. Grosvenor, Field Executive; Francis E. Smith, Scoutmaster Troop 1; Harold Hovey, Scoutmaster Troop 3; F. S. Hatch, assistant Scoutmaster Troop 6; Raymond D. Bohannon, Scoutmaster Troop 7.

The annual meeting was attended by 81 Scouts, all of the communities in the Council being represented. From the standpoint of attendance and enthusiasm, not only can it be said that this was the best meeting ever held by the Council, but also that a splendid future for the Council is assured under the leadership of President Quinn, with the assistance of his associates on the Executive Board.

NOMINATED FOR THE HALL OF FAME

The following item appeared in a recent issue of the New Haven Teachers' Journal concerning Howard A. Newton, a graduate of the Winchester High School.

"We nominate for the Hall of Fame Howard A. Newton, because he has been an instructor in the New Haven High School since 1915; because since 1924, when he became totally blind, he has been and is winning honor for himself and his profession by carrying on bravely and efficiently under a handicap sufficient to cart down in utter despair any soul of lesser courage than his; because with the heroic assistance of his wife, Jane Eaton Newton, his work has gone on with the confidence and esteem of his students; with the support and admiration of his fellow teachers; and with the approval of his official supervisors; because with extraordinary virtue he has turned an impending tragedy into a notable victory."

Mr. Newton is the eldest son of Rev. and Mrs. D. Augustine Newton, for 20 years pastor and wife of the First Congregational Church of this town.

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

The Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church held a Neighborhood bridge on Tuesday, Jan. 19 at the homes of Mrs. Reginald Bradlee, Mrs. Alfred E. Knight, Mrs. E. H. Kenerson, Mrs. Ralph T. Damon, Mrs. Ralph E. Joslin and Mrs. Frank Bowes.

In every way the afternoon was a success. Mrs. Henry W. Hildreth, chairman, and her committee are most grateful to the ladies who so kindly opened their homes for this occasion, and also to Mrs. Arthur Black who assisted the committee.

On Thursday, Feb. 18 at the Roberts' Junior High School in Medford the Woman's Alliance of the Medford Unitarian Church will present a program of George Washington films with music. The afternoon performances for children will begin at 4:30 p. m. and the evening performance at 7:30 p. m.

WASHINGTON EXHIBITION OPENS AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY TODAY

Showing of Extensive Collection in Connection with the Bi-Centennial Celebration of the Nation Over

An extensive collection of works on George Washington will be put on exhibition at the Winchester Public Library today, serving as a step to bring the town into line with the series of events planned throughout the Nation to mark the bi-centennial of its first president.

The exhibit, thus displayed, of biographies, histories, letters, military and political papers, and addresses, volumes bearing on his family, studies of Washington as a general, business man, traveller, will serve as well as an example, to indicate the wide resources of the town's general collection of books. Just now all the more apparent to the visitor or user, as the entire list is arrayed in the handsome new and workable new building in which it is housed.

The assembling of Washingtons and Washingtoniana, which has been considerably enlarged by recent acquisitions, some of notable importance may well stand comparison with that of any public library in the State, outside of a few in Boston and Cambridge.

The biographers represented over the widest range, from John Marshall to the great chief justice, who himself derived in the Revolution as a Lieutenant, and Sparks the indefatigable collector of tradition and tale, through Washington Irving, one of the earliest and most voluminous, Edward Everett, once himself a resident of Winchester, who probably did work on his volume on the very shores of Mystic Lake, to such recent contributions as that of Rupert Hughes, whose "Life" caused such active and hot controversy upon its publication, and Bernard Fay, the scholarly Frenchman whose book is the latest of the whole group to appear.

In the rows on the shelves where the collection is placed may be found Lodge's work still holding its rank for ability and adequacy; Paul Leicester Ford's "The True Washington" and what is unique in its field of American biography, the life of one president by another president, George Washington by Woodrow Wilson, though the date publication, 1896, shows that the author of 35 years since had no realization that it would be his lot to occupy the same high office.

Albert Bushnell Hart, chairman of the Massachusetts Bi-Centennial Commission, like William Roscoe Thayer is represented by a compact one volume life, side by side with Joseph D. Sawyer's bulkier biography. Alden A. Knipe calls his book "Everybody's Washington" Halsted Rixner writes of Washington as business man, and General Henry B. Carrington deals with "Washington as a Soldier" while Thomas G. Frothingham discusses him as "The Commander in Chief." Owen Wister divides his life in "The Seven Ages of Washington."

"The Writings of Washington" edited by Worthington C. Ford, the great source of all biographers, shows in its 14 volumes at a glance, what an indefatigable writer, correspondent, diarist, accountant and commentator the first president was. Five great volumes, published by the Library of Congress, collate the correspondence with the Continental Congress—and with his officers. Supplementing these are Fitzpatrick's "Diaries," bound by themselves, "Washington Speaks for Himself" by Letitia P. Osborn and "Washington, Colonial Traveller" also by Fitzpatrick. Views of Washington among his fellows in war and peace are found in "Washington and His Comrades in Arms" by George M. Wrong, "Washington and His Colleagues" by H. J. Ford, "The Unknown Washington" John Corbin's new work, which draws him as the Father of the Constitution and Max Farrand's "Fathers of the Constitution."

Charles Moore gives "The Family Life of Washington" Marietta Andrews "Washington's Country." Paul Wiltach, "Mt. Vernon." Archibald Henderson deals delightfully with his famous Southern tour. Nancy Byrd Turner writes of "Washington's Mother" and of "The Days of Young Washington."

The Old South Leaflets reproduce with care and thoroughness the inaugurals, the letters to Lafayette and those on the Constitution. The collection also includes the many pamphlets now being issued by the federal commission on the bi-centennial which contains a wealth of information fathered and prepared at the national capital bearing on the central figure and intended as guides to plans for the forthcoming celebration.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB NOTES

The annual meeting of the Winchester Boat Club last week at the office of the Edward T. Harrington Co. resulted in the election of the following officers to serve for the ensuing year:

Commodore Norman L. Skene
Vice Commodore Marshall W. Symmes
Secretary Harry A. Gardner
Treasurer Kenneth M. Pratt
Fleet Captain Clarence W. Russell
Directors William M. Little, Lester C. Gustin, Dwight B. Hill, George B. Cumings, F. Milne Blanchard, James L. Fitch, Willard R. Locke, Oscar W. Crowder.

Plans are already under discussion for the coming season which bids fair to be one of the best the club has enjoyed for quite some time.

While it seems a far cry to open water, enthusiasm for rowing promises to be even greater at the club this year than last, and it is likely that there will be at least one big regatta at the pond during the summer season.

Next captain also promises that tubs, rowing in inter-club and paddling meets will look up a this summer and with such a show anti-season interest among club members, it isn't hard to believe him.

CHORAL SOCIETY IN FIRST CONCERT OF THIRD SEASON

Large Audience Greet Chorus and John Percival

The Winchester Choral Society, under the direction of J. Albert Wilson and with Mary H. French, accompanist, opened its third season Tuesday evening in the Town Hall, presenting the following program: Bach, "Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light;" Borodin, "Polovetzian Dance and Chorus;" from the Opera, "Prince Igor;" "Men of Harlech;" Welsh Melody; Morley, "My Bonnie Lass;" "John Peel," old English hunting song; Brahms, "Chorus of Homage;" Robertson, "Celtic Hymn;" Edward German, "London Town;" George Nevill, "O Hush Thee, My Babe;" "Annie Laurie," Scotch Melody; Sullivan, "Dance a Cachucha;" from "The Gondoliers;" Hadley, "Song of the Marching Men." The guest artist, John Percival, baritone, sang Griffes, "Zwei Konige sassen auf Orkadale;" Brahms, "Nachtigall;" Wagner, "Les Deux Grenadiers;" Grant-Schaeffer, "The Sea;" Foote, "Lilac Time;" "A Ballynure Ballad," old Irish; White, "King Charles." As encores after his second group he sang the negro spiritual, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," arranged by Guion, and Behrend, "Bon Jour, Ma Belle." His accompanist was Edwin Bittell. The assisting pianist for the Bach and Borodin numbers was Mary R. Witham. An audience that filled the hall and balconies to the doors gave evidence of the greatest pleasure.

Maintaining to a marked degree its personnel of preceding seasons the Society has gained in total quality and in responsiveness to its leader's baton. Many acclaimed Tuesday's concert, its finest, the chorus singing at all times with a beauty of tone, fidelity to pitch and a musical intelligence which aroused the enthusiasm of the most critical of its hearers. With but few exceptions the selections were sung unaccompanied, proof positive of the Society's unusual ability. Attacks and releases and the rounding of phrases were again especially worthy of note, but after all, it was on Tuesday as in preceding seasons, the balance of the chorus, the unusual strength in the hard-to-find bass and alto sections, which contributed most to the Society's performance. Few choral groups have such vocal resources as the Winchester Society possesses.

The depth and beauty of tone which the chorus achieved in the opening Bach chorale gave promise of an evening of musical enjoyment which was richly fulfilled as the well-balanced program continued. Few choruses could match the Society's rendition of Borodin's difficult score, the beautiful flowing melody of the sections for women's voices contrasting sharply with the full throated, lusty singing of the men. The crashing attacks and the swelling climax with which the selection closed were most thrilling and were warmly applauded. Dwight H. Pappas sang the bass solo passage.

Perhaps the finest thing which the Society did Tuesday was the unaccompanied singing of the lovely "Celtic Hymn." The sheer beauty of tone, especially of the men's voices, aroused the audience to real enthusiasm and an encore was demanded. It was sung without the assistance of an introductory chord, in perfect pitch, despite the hot, stuffy hall.

Encores were also demanded after the old English numbers, "My Bonnie Lass" by Morley and the favorite "John Peel," but in general Mr. Wilson wisely refrained from lengthening his program.

He was forced to yield to the audience at the closing number and repeat Hadley's "Song of the Marching Men," in the singing of which the chorus had the assistance of Mr. Percival. Nevill's beautiful lullaby also called for an encore, and the audience vainly sought a repeat after the singing of "Annie Laurie," unusually and effectively arranged and also sung unaccompanied.

The Society entered heartily into the spirit of the sprightly numbers by Sullivan and Brahms, the latter calling for alternate singing by the women and men with climaxed full chorus. The virile "Men of Harlech" was splendidly done.

Certainly one of the most difficult bits of singing in the entire program was the key change from the major into the minor, and back again, in German's "London Town." Done unaccompanied and with absolute fidelity to pitch, this proof of vocal excellence was heartily applauded.

STOLEN CIGARS LANDED YOUTHS IN TOILS

Three youths, 16, 17 and 20 years of age, were rounded up by the police Tuesday night after a Swanton street shop keeper caught them in the act of stealing cigars from his showcase.

The youths, whose names are withheld, were seen between 9 and 9:30 hanging about the outside of a shop at 251 Swanton street, owned by Joseph Matello. Finally two of them entered the establishment; and watching his chance, one of them took a box of 50 cigars from a show-case and threw it to the third member of the trio, waiting outside.

Matello saw the theft and leaping over the counter, caught one of the youths, a 17 year old boy. Closing the door of his shop, he called the police and Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy hastened to the scene. At the station house the youth was booked on a larceny charge, and then taken by Sergeant Cassidy and Sergt. Edward W. O'Connell on a search for his companions.

One of the young men was taken into custody on Main street and the other came to headquarters voluntarily. The latter, having a record, was held by the authorities, the others being released in custody of their parents.

The 20 year old young man, held by the police, at first denied any connection with the theft of the cigars, but finally told Patrolman James F. Noonan that he had hidden the box behind a house at the corner of Sylvester avenue and Upland road. The police found the cigars in the spot indicated.

Wednesday morning the trio appeared in the District Court at Woburn. The youth, who was on parole from the Concord reformatory, was returned there, and the 17-year-old boy, caught by Matello was discharged. The case against the third was continued until Thursday, at which time he was placed on probation for six months.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Five absentees of record were charged against the meeting of January 28. Six days of grace are allowed during which payment may be made.

Now that the holidays are a matter of history and we are well started on the new year it would seem appropriate to remind members of the Club's Education Fund. Voluntary contributions to this fund are gladly received from each member on the anniversary of his birth, and we believe that members are glad to contribute to this worthy enterprise. We find that, at present, 15 members are eligible to earn the gratitude of the club. The Rotary Club of Winchester is accustomed to push through to success any undertaking which has received its sanction. Surely we should not let this matter lag. Let each one of us give it his personal attention so that unpleasant solicitation may be unnecessary.

President "Church" and Vice-President George were in attendance at the Mid-Year District Assembly in Boston on Wednesday, the 27th. Each returned with renewed enthusiasm for Rotary and more than ever confident that the affairs of this district are in strong hands. Our usual hour of entertainment was given over to reports from "Church" and "George" on the doings of this assembly.

Events are progressing which prove that even in times of stress, as at present, your true Rotarian, whose name is Legion, will go to almost any sacrifice to retain his standing and his club's standing in the organization. The Rotary appeal, when allowed to do so, penetrates the innermost recesses of the soul. Its ideal is nothing less than true and absolute brotherhood. Once understood it is not to be denied. During the comparatively short existence of Rotary its progress has been far from negligible—we do not mean its marvelous material progress—rather progress toward its ideal. And such is its comprehensiveness that it must become more and more one of mankind's greatest vitalizing forces.

At our next meeting, Feb. 4, the Club Service Committee will be in charge of the entertainment. This committee is not idling. Its efforts should be rewarded by a record attendance. All together for Feb. 4. Percentage of attendance Jan. 21—96.97 per cent.

CULLEN-FITZGERALD

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Sept. 8 of Miss Helen May Fitzgerald, daughter of Mrs. Frank A. Fitzgerald and the late Mr. Fitzgerald of 4 Water street, Woburn, and James Anthony Cullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cullen of 37 Sheridan circle. The marriage took place in the rectory of St. Charles Church, Woburn, with Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Quill officiating. The bride was attended by Regina Ford Fitzgerald of Newport, R. I., a Simmons College graduate, and Mr. Cullen had for his best man, a classmate at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Walter Fitzgerald of Gloucester.

Mr. Cullen and his bride left this morning to enjoy a brief honeymoon in New York City. They are to make their home upon their return in Winchester at 942 Main street.

The bride was graduated from Woburn High School in 1927 and from the New England Conservatory of Music with the class of 1931. She is an executive officer of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs and has been in charge of several series of concerts given in Catholic Charitable Institutions. Widely known as a contralto soloist, she is also a successful teacher of voice and piano, and plans to continue teaching upon her return from her wedding journey.

Mr. Cullen was graduated from Winchester High School in 1924, winning the Washington and Franklin Medal for excellence in history. He was graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology with the class of 1928, having been captain of the varsity wrestling team, president of the College Catholic Club and an honor student in electrical engineering. He is now engaged in the insurance business in Winchester with offices at 656 Main street.

HORACE FORD SOLD TO ST. LOUIS

Veteran Infielder Leaves Cincinnati Reds

Horace Ford of Kenwin road, veteran infielder of the Cincinnati Reds and proprietor of the ice cream and candy shop on Thompson street, was notified Wednesday that he has been sold to the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League, the present world champions.

Horace's information came from Boston sports writers, and up to the time the Star went to press he had heard nothing officially, either from Cincinnati or St. Louis. President Branch Rickey of the Cardinals has, however, always thought well of the ex-Tufts star who will fit well into the St. Louis scheme of things as a utility infielder who can play shortstop or second base equally well. Ford was not particularly happy under Weil and Howley at Cincinnati and welcomes the opportunity to work for Rickey and "Top Sergeant Gabby" Street.

From the ball player's angle the veteran infielder is getting a real break in leaving a tail-end club to join a world champion nine which is being picked by many close followers of the game to repeat in 1932.

Ford was a hold-out last spring, and is not likely to sign a St. Louis contract which doesn't please him. He is a ten-year man and can not be sent to a minor league club without his consent. Rickey knows this, so is not buying him from the Reds with a view to sending him to any of the Cardinals' farms.

The Winchester man has played with many big league clubs in his baseball career, including the Red Sox, New Haven Colonials, Braves, Phillies, Brooklyn Dodgers, Minneapolis, Cincinnati and now, St. Louis—perhaps.

EMBLEM CLUB NOTES

A delegation of Winchester Emblem Club members, headed by President Mary Fitzgerald journeyed to the Winthrop Emblem Club for the visitation of Supreme President Mrs. Bernard McHugh of Watertown and suite. President Fitzgerald of the local club had the honor of serving on the suite as second guard.

Seventeen members of the Winchester club attended the big Leap-Year party, held last Saturday evening under the auspices of the Supreme Emblem Club, in the Hotel Westminster, Boston. Past President Emily Scholl and President Fitzgerald were members of the reception committee, meeting the distinguished guests who included Mayor James M. Curley, Governor Ely's personal representative and Past Grand Exalted Ruler John F. Malley of the Supreme Lodge of Elks.

President Fitzgerald is giving a whist on Tuesday evening for the benefit of the local club at her home 22 Oak street.

GIUSEPPE ROTONDO

Giuseppe Rotondo, for many years a resident of Winchester, died Monday, Jan. 25, at noon, in his home at 168 Swanton street.

Mr. Rotondo was 51 years of age and a native of Italy. He was well known among the town's Italian residents and enjoyed a wide circle of friends. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jennie Rotondo.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from the late residence with a requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

Saturday, during the heavy rain, shortly before 6 o'clock, a Chevrolet truck, owned by the Lucky Strike Mattress Company of Woburn and driven by Maurice Hurvitz of 39 Highland avenue, Woburn, was in collision on Main street at Converse place with a Ford coupe, owned and operated by William J. Nagle of 7 Kilby street, Woburn. The machines were going in opposite directions, and Hurvitz told the police that he pulled out into the car tracks to avoid a collision with another car which pulled out into the street from the right hand curb. No one was injured but both the truck and coupe were damaged.

CRUISING CLUB HONORS FORMER WINCHESTER BOY

William Albert Robinson, a former Winchester boy, whose world cruise, in a 28 foot ketch, aroused universal interest, has been signally honored by receiving the "medal of the year" presented for outstanding achievement by the Cruising Club of America.

His boat, the "Svaap," which has docked at Long Island, has been one of the features of the Motor Boat show in New York this week, radio broadcasts having been sent out at intervals from its cabin.

A further honor extended Mr. Robinson was his recent invitation to the dinner of the Explorers' Club of America, of which he has also been asked to become a member. Membership in the Explorers' Club is limited to those outstanding in this field. Byrd and Lindbergh are internationally known men who are members.

Mr. Robinson has written an article entitled, "I Was a King," which is to appear in the March number of the American Magazine. His book is to be announced in the spring catalogue by George Palmer Putnam.

ENTERTAINED AT BRIDGE

Miss Marjorie Brown of Norwood street held a bridge party at her home last Saturday afternoon. Miss Katherine McHenry won the first prize, and Miss Marjorie Grant the second. Refreshments were served. Among those present were Miss Frances Nord, Miss Mary Fogle Harrold, Miss Polly Rogers, Miss Katherine McHenry, Miss Sally Klopff, Miss Amy Hoffman, Miss Barbara Jacobs and Miss Catherine Andrews, all of Wellesley College, and Miss Joy Adriance, Miss Anna Lee Pinkham, Miss Eleanor Mansfield, Miss Ruth Wadleigh, Miss Carolyn Mercer, Miss Marjorie Grant and Miss Muriel Carr.

Mr. William D. Sullivan, managing editor of the Boston Globe, and Mr. Frederick S. Snyder, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, are residents of Winchester who will play an important part in the drive being launched in Boston to aid the jobless of that city.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF NOTES

Further progress has been made upon sidewalk building during the week. The complete yardage is 3408 or approximately two miles. We are approaching the end of sidewalk construction for the winter. Greater value for the labor service is being developed in other directions.

One crew is still working upon the reservoirs, removing mud and placing riprap. To the uninitiated this is the placement of stones upon a slant covering the earthen slope of the pond. This largely prevents the growth of weeds and erosion caused by wave action.

A small crew is painting the cemetery buildings.

Another large crew working at Leonard Field is accomplishing several ends simultaneously. They are enlarging the field by the use of the inferior earth taken from the roots of the new sidewalks. This is replaced by gravel from Leonard Field, which when removed enlarges the area of the playing surface. Room is also being made for the tennis courts to be replaced on Leonard Field outside the zone of the ball field. Surplus gravel and earth is to be used to deepen the banks of the Aberjona and so grade them that no surfaces will be left for mosquito nurseries in grounds so treated.

Another crew is at work excavating the Mill Pond. This rich material will be used in connection with the grading and surfacing of the land in the rear of the new Junior High School building, which abuts upon the Parkway.

One hundred and seventy-four men (some on part time) are being employed by the committee at this time. The pay roll is now approximately $2000 per week.

An interesting work is being developed for the "white collar" group which will be described more fully next week.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

A meeting of the Winchester Chapter Infant Saviour Guild was held Tuesday, Jan. 26 at Fortnightly Hall. Sewing was distributed after which tea was served by the following members: Mrs. L. C. Billings, Mrs. D. J. Kelley, Mrs. F. White and Mrs. P. J. Walsh.

A penny sale for the benefit of the Guild will be held at Fortnightly Hall Thursday evening, Feb. 4 and all members are asked to assist in every way possible to make this event successful. Miss Mabel Sisk, chairman of the committee, will be very grateful for donations. Assisting Miss Sisk on the committee are Mrs. William Callahan, Mrs. Louis Chevalier, Mrs. J. J. Costello, Mrs. Harry Cox, Mrs. Edward Drohan, Mrs. Jonathan Felt, Mrs. William Hickey, Miss Mary Lyons, Mrs. Edward McDevitt, Jr., and Mrs. Joseph McGaragle.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

The annual rally of the Scouts of the Fellsland Council, comprising Burlington, Medford, Stoneham, Winchester and Woburn, will be held in Medford on Friday, Jan. 29 at the Lawrence Light Guard Armory at 8 p. m. This rally is expected to bring together the largest assembly of Scouts ever held in the council.

The rally program consists of three parts, first exhibits, in which each troop and patrol is privileged to display in the lobby of the armory things that the boys have made or collected. The second phase of the program consists of the troop demonstrations, in which various troops will demonstrate various elements of the Scout program. The third, and last section of the program will be devoted to the council championships in knot tying, flint and steel fire lighting, compass relay, potato race, and fire by friction (bow method).

Attractive ribbons for each exhibit and demonstration, and felt banners for the championships, will be awarded.

The Scouts of Winchester have been preparing for this rally since October, and from inquiries among the troops it would appear that many novel exhibits and demonstrations will be displayed.

The total enrollment of the Scouts has been increased by 200 Scouts since the last rally was held, so that Friday evening's affair will probably assemble 200 more Scouts than a year ago. Parents and friends of the Scouts are invited to attend.

The Eagle, Beaver and Lion Patrols of Troop 3 will represent Winchester in the competitions at the Medford Armory.

Name Contest Winners

As announced in last week's Star, the Eagle Patrol of Troop 3 won the contest to secure a new name for the Council. The members of this patrol are now busy typing to decide on the prize, as a choice of three prizes was offered. As soon as they have decided, an announcement will be made.

Troop 7 Has Charter Night

Troop 7, sponsored by the First Baptist Church, held its Charter Night last Thursday. The Charter was presented by Scout Executive Harry T. French. This troop, the newest addition to the Scout units in Winchester, has been meeting since early in the fall, and although it started with a small membership, there is every indication that the troop will grow during the next few months to a full sized troop. The personnel of the troop is as follows: John C. Casler, Harry W. Moulton, Frank E. Votaw, H. T. Winn, troop committee; and Raymond H. Bannan, Scoutmaster, and John Aubrey Lutes, Assistant Scoutmaster.

The police learned last Friday evening that boys had broken 17 panes of glass in the unoccupied house at the corner of Lawson road and Main street. The names of the boys involved (the oldest of which was nine years) were secured by Patrolman Charles Harrold and their parents agreed to make good the damage done.

HIGH SCHOOL JUNIOR-SENIOR CLASSES IN "THE PERFECT ALIBI"

The Junior and Senior Classes of the Winchester High School presented
"The Perfect Alibi" by A. A. Milne for their annual class play last Saturday evening in the Town Hall. An enthusiastic audience of parents and friends of the young actors witnessed the production.

Mr. Milne's detective comedy proved happily chosen for the youth cast, the members of which showed both careful selection and skilled coaching. The events surrounding the discovery of a murder in an English country home supplied the action for the plot which was developed along rather unusual lines, in that the audience knew from the start the guilty party and was chiefly concerned with the way in which the cast unravelled the mystery.

The entire cast was excellent, yet perhaps a word of especial praise should be said for the work of Lucy Fowle and Stanley Osgood, to whom were entrusted the important parts of Susan Cunningham and "Jimmy" Lundgrove. Thomas Harkins did a bit of nice character work as Sergeant Mallet while Charles Main's portrayal of P. C. Mallet left no doubt as to the importance of good feed in the equipment of a policeman.

Other members of the cast who handled their assignments skillfully were Robert Sibley, Ivar Hakanson, Kenneth Campbell, Virginia Besse, Frederica MacVicar, Leonard Chandler and William Seaver. The play was produced under the direction of Miss Marion W. Bailey of the high school faculty.

Between the acts, first prize in the poster contest was awarded to Kenneth Campbell, Louise Rollins receiving the second prize. The prize for selling the most tickets went to Edwin Bernhardt.

Following are the cast and committees:

STONEHAM HIGH EDGED WINCHESTER

Stoneham High School's basketball team pulled the unexpected last Friday evening, defeating Winchester
High in a Middlesex League match at Winchester by the close score of 21 to 19.

It was the visitors' first league win of the season, and when the teams took the floor Winchester was favored to finish out in front. The locals may have been a bit over-confident, though they led at the half, 14 to 12, blowing a 12 to 2 lead at the quarter.

Stoneham had whatever edge there was during the second half and won out by a single basket. Three times the score was knotted, but finally with both teams totalling 19 and about a minute to play Cornwall sank the winning goal. The visiting defense limited the Winchester forwards to four floor baskets while Chase, Waldron and Cornwall were picking up nine.

The preliminary game was won by Winchester.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION CHURCH CROWDED AT FIRST MASSES

With the exception of the early mass at 7 o'clock the new Immaculate Conception Church in the North End of Winchester was crowded at all services last Sunday, the day marking the opening of the recently erected chapel. Many were unable to secure seats at the later masses.

Considerable excitement was occasioned as the worshippers were assembling for the 11 o'clock mass, the Fire Department arriving shortly before 11 to put out an inconsequential blaze at the home of Mrs. Catherine Yetter on Sheridan circle.

at the navy yard. Following a wedding trip, the couple will make their home at 4 Wyman court.

Commander White is stationed at the navy yard in Charlestown, serving as assistant to the supply officer.

FORMER WINCHESTER MAN PLAYING WITH TORONTO

Local followers of professional hockey will be interested to learn that one of the leading scorers of the National Hockey League, "Joe" Primeau of Toronto, formerly made his home in Winchester on Vine street.

During his local residence he was a member of the Winchester Hockey Team and was the individual star of the series of games between the Winchester and Woburn hockey clubs on Wedge Pond several years ago.

Few realized while watching him in action at that time that they were looking at a player destined to be a star in the "pro" ranks within a few short years.

Miss Barbara Chevalier of Lakeview road entertained a group of her friends at a bridge party last Monday evening. Among those present were Miss Dorothy Day, Miss Elizabeth DeCourcy, the Misses Elizabeth and Helen McCauley and several out-of-town guests. Miss Dorothy Day won the first prize.

Mrs. Eva M. Twombley, a resident of Winchester for more than half a century and the widow of William A.
Twombley, died Saturday morning,
Jan. 23, at her home 93 Wildwood street after a brief illness. She had been for some months in failing health.

Mrs. Twombley was the daughter of
George H. and Nancy (Blaisdell)
Fuller. She was born 78 years ago in Seymour, Conn., her early life being spent in Salem and West Medford.

Following her marriage in 1875 she came to Winchester to make her home in the old Twombley homestead on Wildwood street, built by her husband's grandfather Samuel W. Twombly, a prominent citizen and at the head of the "Village Improvement Society" responsible for setting out 700 trees along Wildwood street and around the Common.

Mrs. Twombley was a member of the old Winchester Choral Society, organized many years ago at the home of Dr. Windsor, and was also a member of the Woman's Fortnightly Club.
Her pleasing personality and strength of character endeared her to a wide circle of friends among older residents of the town while the cheerfulness with which she accepted the long period of ill health with which she was afflicted proved a source of inspiration to those associated with her.

Surviving are two daughters, the Misses Helen M. and Eliza W. Twombly of Winchester, a son, William A.
Twombley of Arlington, and three grandchildren.

Private funeral services were conducted at the late residence Monday afternoon by Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church. Interment was in the family lot in Wildwood Cemetery.

WYMAN SCHOOL PUPILS ENTERTAINED

On Tuesday, at the weekly assembly, Grade 5 entertained the Wyman School pupils with three historical plays. The first play was called,
"The Settling of Boston." Marcus
Beebe played the part of William Blackstone, John Knight of the Indian, and David Burnham of Governor Winthrop.

The second scene was especially good with Governor Winthrop leading the Pilgrims in a meeting at which it was decided to change the name of Trimont to Boston in memory of the old Boston in England, and to buy a common land.

The second play was "The Boston Tea Party." It opened with a mass meeting complaining of the high tax on tea. The second scene was throwing the tea off into Boston Harbor.

The chief characters were Rex
Crandall as Samuel Adams and Douglas Graham as John Hancock.
The citizens in the first two plays were John Carlson, James Gustin and Benjamin Browne.

The third play was three colonial ladies at tea. The characters were taken by Frances Trot, Louise Wild and Joan Worthen, dressed in colonial dresses and white wigs. Joan Worth-en wore a dress which was handed down from Priscilla Alden's family.

WANTED CATS SHOT

There are probably plenty who will heartily second the demand made by an irate resident of Washington street at an early hour Wednesday morning that the police shoot several cats who had been preventing him and members of his family from enjoying their sleep for too many nights to be funny.

Sergeant Edward W. O'Connell advised the householder that the police had no right to do any wholesale cat slaughtering, but he did send Patrolman John Dolan to see if temporary relief could not be secured.

Officer Dolan located the cats without much trouble, but was unable to round them up, and after a bit of skirmishing among the shrubbery gave it up as a bad job.

Evidently some one took the matter of dealing with serenading felines into his own hands in the neighborhood of Swanton street for Tuesday afternoon a cat was discovered there with a bullet hole through its body. The animal was alive when found, but was soon dispatched at the town dump by Patrolman John Murray.

CHILD STRUCK BY TRUCK

Three-year-old Lorraine Cyr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armed Cyr of 10 Hall street, Somerville, had a narrow escape from serious injury Monday afternoon when she was run over by a truck while visiting at the home of her uncle, Hector Cyr of 52 Salem street.

According to the story told the police by the driver of the truck, Richard J. Desmond of 92 Second street, Medford, the little girl, while playing on Salem street, ran into his truck which was headed west.

Desmond said the machine ran over the child and he at first thought her badly hurt. He and her uncle took her at once to the Winchester Hospital where she was attended by Dr.
Martin Sheehan of Stoneham. She was not found to be seriously hurt and was later discharged.

BASKETBALL TOO STRENUOUS FOR WATERFIELD HALL

To the Editor of the Star:

When Waterfield Hall was secured for a recreation center it was in the nature of an experiment, and on the condition that the activities of the young people would not disturb the tenants in the building. It was thought that if basketball and the more active games were conducted in the evenings when the shops were closed we might get by with other games and classes for girls in the afternoons. But the building is old, and the boys are young! Basketball is a strenuous game in any place—and it seems particularly so, when played on a second floor not built for such use. Consequently, in spite of the greatest patience and kindness on the part of the tenants and the owner of the building, and more than regret on the part of the young people and all who were interested in their efforts, we found it necessary to tack up a sign "Hall closed. No more games."

However, the one week's try-out demonstrated conclusively the very great need of and interest in such a center by all ages of young people. Basketball games by various teams, were scheduled for every evening except Saturday, and other games and classes for girls and young business women, under the able direction of Miss Helen Niedringhaus, physical training instructor in our public schools, had started with much enthusiasm.

Fortunately, with the knowledge of our uncertain existence, we had decided not to accept the financial contributions which had been so kindly offered until we were assured of our continued activity in this line, but all who were interested in the venture wish to express their heartiest appreciation of the co-operation offered and hope to make good use of it just as soon as other quarters can be secured, which we hope may be before very long. Further announcements will be made as soon as possible.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"Delicious" with Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, and "Sooky" with "Jackie" Cooper and "Jackie" Coogan as the stars, is the prize-winning program that opens a run of seven days at the big Granada Theater in Malden on Saturday. "Delicious" has been the biggest hit of the current season and bids fair to eclipse the records made by Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in "Sunny Side Up." Briefly, the plot of the drama revolves about the experiences of Janet Gaynor as a Scotch immigrant in the sterrage of a large liner coming to this country, and her adventures after she enters America illegally. Charles Farrell, a sportsman returning from European polo conquests, makes the acquaintance of the wistful little sterrage waif and soon falls in love. El Brendel, as Farrell's valet, adds much to the gaiety of each situation by his incessant clowning. An added feature a number of genuine musical hits by George Gershwin famous composer of "The Rhapsody in Blue."

"Sooky" presents "Jackie" Cooper and Robert Coogan in a sequel to "Skippy." Percy Crosby's lovable kid characters come to life again on the screen in "Sooky" with "Jackie" Cooper reaping new laurels as an actor.

Clive Brook in "Husband's Holiday" and Will Rogers in "Ambassador Bill" is the double bill that ends its run at the Granada on Friday.

UNIVERSITY THEATER

Beginning Sunday at the University Theater, motion picture audiences will be given the opportunity of seeing "Over the Hill" with Mae Marsh, James Dunn and Sally Eilers. It is an intimate story of home and family life, with its small quarrels and its great loyalties; with its romances through the years; with the growing of the individual lives of the children, and the mother who cannot bear to part with them.

An ultra modern method of winning a girl is followed by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. in his new picture, "I Like Your Nerve," the companion feature.

Haunting romance, tropic adventure, comedy and music are blended in Lawrence Tibbett's latest starring vehicle, "The Cuban Love Song," which will open Thursday. The hero of "The Cuban Love Song" is seen in modern garb as a swashbuckling, singing marine who figures in an engrossing romance of Cuba. Lupe Velez, fiery little Mexican heroine of "The Squaw Man," the feminine lead, and prominent roles are filled by Ernest Torrence and Jimmy Durante. A surprising denouement brings the story to a close.

"The Cheat," a new modern dialogue edition of Hector Turnbull's famous story of silent days, with Tallulah Bankhead and Irving Pichel in the roles originally done by Fanny Ward and Sessue Hayakawa, is the companion feature.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

"Shanghai Love" with Richard Cromwell, Sally Blaine and Noah Beery, divides the headline honors with "Waterloo Bridge," starring Mae Clark and Kent Douglass on the double bill that opens at the Mystic Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "Shanghai Love" is one of those exciting, red-blooded action stories and for honest-to-goodness adventure it has them all stopped. "Waterloo Bridge" is adult entertainment. It is a film version of Robert Sherwood's successful stage play which depicts the ill luck of a pretty chorus girl who descends, as the war progresses, to a cheap artist's model and eventually a lady of the evening. Mae Clark and Kent Douglass do exceptional work as the lovers, with Bette Davis, Enid Bennett and Doris Lloyd appearing in support.

Jack Holt in "Maker of Men" and Walter Huston in "A House Divided" is the program that ends its run at the Mystic on Friday.

Blotters Long in Use

No definite date is assigned for the invention of the blotter. It is mentioned as early as the year 1465—at that time consisting of a coarse, gray, unsized paper, fragments of which have been found among the leaves of fifteenth century accounts, where it had been left after being used for blotting. It was probably in ordinary use early in the sixteenth century, for it is referred to in W. Horman's Vulgaria, 1519.

MRS. METCALF WRITES OF LIFE IN THE TROPICS

The following letter from Mrs. Joel H. Metcalf will prove of interest to the many who know her during her residence in Winchester at the time when her late husband was minister of the Winchester Unitarian Church. She writes interestingly to her brother-in-law and sister, Postmaster and Mrs. George H. Lockman, and her descriptions of life in the Tropics will interest those who do not know the writer personally.

On Board the S.S. Tropicana, En Route Manila to Bali
..... It does seem queer to think of you all as wearing heavy coats and starting your fires. While we are getting hotter every day, today is quite muggy. We are still in sight of some of the Philippine Islands and getting near to the Equator which we cross on Monday morning about 5 o'clock. I don't believe I shall get up to see it. I expect for the next three weeks until we leave Singapore anyway, that I shall be a grease spot, feel like one anyway and look like a boiled lobster. They don't feed us beef tea in the middle of the morning here, but feed lemonade or real egg-nog.

We liked Manila—we rode through miles and miles of coconut groves and as many banana trees. The bananas are only about four inches long, but taste very good, quite like our red ones. They burn the coconut shells in the kilns and "rice factories" for there are just as many miles of rice fields as there are of banana and coconut. The buffalo-oxen and the natives guiding the plough, wallow above their knees in mud getting the fields ready. Then there are huge fields of sugar cane too.

The native huts are scattered all along among the groves. They are built of thatch and bamboo and propped up on stilts. There are so many reptiles and insects to crawl in and out,—also it is quite damp. The men look much more cleanly than the women who look really slovenly, perhaps they have to work too hard keeping the men's white suits washed up! The better class of the working men wear thin flowered blouses or shirts with the tails out and white trousers. When you get used to it and get over wanting to say, "tuck in your shirtie," it looks rather nice, cool anyway. It can't be much bother to teach the children to dress themselves, for their one little garment is alike front and back, and if they can't find it when they get up from their bed on the floor,—it doesn't really matter—they will find many of their playmates in their birthday suits waiting for them outside.

I have been renewing my youth. I took off shoes and stockings and got into a narrow canoe made from a hollow log and with a native boatman at each end, climbed up seven rapids and "shot" back. It took two hours to go up and half an hour to come back! Going up, when we came to the rapids the men jumped into the stream, sometimes up to their waists, leaped from rock to rock pulling and guiding the canoe through and over rocks and foam. Thank goodness they didn't slip.

They leaped back and got to paddling with the agility and quickness of a cat. Of course we got soaked! We sat in a lake of water most of the way back, for it swooped right in on us. I was in one canoe, Irma in another, but keeping right along together. She was delighted with the thrill of it and I rather enjoyed it too. I didn't mind "shooting" the rapids as much as I did going up. We were none the worse for our wetting and the next day we went to a cock-fight. What will I do next, I wonder!

It was surely interesting to see the crowd as well as the fight. The huge barn-like building was packed with natives, we five people being the only white people there. We sat in the box! I never heard such shouting in my life—everyone calling out their bets! They did quiet down when the gong rang and the fighting really began. They brought in the cocks in their arms two at a time. If the crowd thought them well-matched, good fighters, etc., they shouted their approval. Those contrary minded also shouted theirs—how it could be decide I can't imagine. However, sometimes they were kept to fight—sometimes turned down and out they went. The cocks were beautiful. When they begin to fight the feathers on their necks stick out like ruffs, they gaze at each other and shake their heads, watching for the first move of the other. Then they are off! It is a fight to the finish for they have put a four inch spur, narrow and sharp as a razor blade, on the left foot of each cock. Sometimes when one is wounded he feels he has had enough and runs away. Wise bird, I should say. Then the other is pronounced winner even if he hasn't killed his enemy. The fighting began on Thanksgiving Day at 9 a. m. and continued into the evening with intermissions for eating which was done on the spot, for you could buy anything from cooked rice, hard-boiled eggs and bread to bananas, oranges, etc.—also shirts, trousers, slippers, or "whats it" as Irma says. It is a cruel sport surely! We stayed about an hour and during that time four were killed and two ran away. I couldn't watch the killing. When the fight was really over, I looked somewhere else and I confess I wasn't keenly desirous for my lunch when we went back to the hotel. But it was interesting to see and hear the crowd.

We had a turkey dinner Thanksgiving night. It wasn't cooked quite enough to suit me, but tasted good and the mince pie tasted quite like "mother used to make." The Philippine women, some of them, walk around the market places with baskets on their heads and huge fat cigars in their mouths. Others sit in the funny little carts with market baskets and bundles around their feet, smoking a cigaret, often with the lighted end in their mouths. Now and then they open up and let the smoke out. Our native guide says they do this because they like the feel of the smoke in their mouths, also because the cigaret lasts longer that way. I don't see why they don't choke, but they look husky and lazy! I don't blame them for that, I should soon get so I wouldn't want to move from "homeside" as the Chinese say, if I lived in so warm a climate!

The Chinese say they are going to "homeside" or "shopside" or "hotelside" when giving directions. I asked my waiter one day about the cake what kind it was and he said "I bring Missy have look-see." Well don't freeze while I am roasting and keep well. With loads of love to you both always.

for the coming year: President, Mrs. A. W. Friend; Vice president, Mrs. H. K. Kempton; Secretary, Mrs. F. W. Roberts; Treasurer, Mrs. Emma Nickerson; Assistant Treasurer, Miss Gladys Folts.

The president spoke of the many benefits which have come to our country during the past 12 years of prohibition, and the following 12 high points were given:

High Points of Prohibition in 12 Years

1. It made liquor an outlaw; stopped liquor advertising; drove liquor from the main street to the criminal hiding place.
2. It removed the saloon with its public invitation to drink; its grip on politics; its certain introduction to vice and crime.
3. It reduced drinking by at least 60 per cent; it reduced insanity due to drink; it has almost abolished poverty due to drink; it reduced arrests for drunkenness; alcoholic mortality is only half what it was.
4. It reduced drink-caused crime.
5. It protects women and children from the neglect and brutality of drunken fathers.
6. It has given us the highest social and economic status in the world.
7. It has given the United States the world's most efficient industry.
8. It has reduced commercialized vice; it has made streets safer for women and children.
9. It has helped make our standard of living the highest in the world.
10. It has given us an economic cushion against the shock of depression; America withstood the world-wide troubles better than the liquor ridden nations and for a longer time.
11. It has helped make our standard of living the highest in the world.
12. We can take comfort in the fact that although the law is not yet perfectly kept, neither are the ten commandments, and yet no one wants to do away with them.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Unless Dame Nature empties a large sized feather bed over Winchester before Saturday it will be necessary to postpone our winter carnival until Feb. 6. If a goodly amount of snow comes down we will hold open house at our cabin from 10 in the morning until 5 in the afternoon. Luncheon will be ready to serve from 12 to 2. All friends are invited to join in our winter sports. If not this Saturday, then we hope for better winter weather next Saturday. Mrs. Truman Godfrey will be in charge in Mrs. Jackson's absence. Any proceeds from the luncheon will be devoted to the expenses of the Bugle and Drum Corps. Hot dogs, doughnuts, coffee, chocolate, candy and pickles will be on sale.

Chairman of Education Mrs. Truman Godfrey has finished all arrangements for the home nurse and first aid course for the Girl Scouts this winter. Fifty-two Scouts have signed up for the course. Arrangements have been made to have the course given by the local Red Cross Chapter, Mrs. Bowen Tufts, local director. One class will be held on Thursdays and one on Saturday mornings. Trained graduate nurses will give the entire course.

Troop Committee members, the local visiting nurses, the co-operation of the school committee, and the churches make these activities possible by assisting and furnishing meeting places for the group.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

"Cloudy With Showers," which has just finished a most successful run at the Hollis Street Theatre, will be seen at the Somerville Theatre next week, with Charles Ray in the leading role, already made famous by Thomas Mitchell. This is in line with the policy of the management of the popular stock house in securing the latest New York successes for their patrons. "Cloudy With Showers" is a comedy of over a thousand laughs, and the part of Professor Hamill should fit Mr. Ray like a glove. Professor Hamill is a young educator in an exclusive girl's school, a bachelor who finds it just a little difficult at times to answer the direct questions that his young charges put to him. Miss Critchlow, the brightest girl of the class makes it especially hard for him. The reaction to her dare, that he take her for a ride in his car, leads to the complications that make up the entire action of the play. The comedy is well knit, and the fact that the whole action of the play consumes only an afternoon, evening and night of the play, tends to make the story move along at a fast pace.

Of almost equal importance as Mr. Ray's role, that assigned to Gladys Griswold is one of the best that she has ever had. The cast enlists the entire personnel of the Somerville Players, all under the direction of Al Luttringer.

CHORAL SOCIETY IN FIRST CONCERT OF THIRD SEASON

Mr. Wilson was warmly greeted when he took his place upon the platform, and applause greeted his appearance following intermission. He conducted with his accustomed authority, never permitting the program to lag and never being satisfied with the commonplace. His interpretations of the program's widely varying scores were musically sound and his painstaking training of the chorus was apparent in the singers' response to his demands. At the conclusion of the concert he was accorded an ovation which he shared with his singers, calling upon them to rise as he joined in the applause.

Mr. Percival's previous engagements at the Baptist Church won him a host of friends in Winchester and many of them were evidently present to greet him Tuesday evening. He brought to the concert a pleasing repertoire of fine quality, especially in the middle register; youth, and a keen appreciation of the dramatic possibilities of the songs he sang. His recitation in English of the German text of the "two kings" before the singing of the selection was appreciated by those who like the story of a song and he added introductory remarks to his singing of the little known "Two Grenadiers" by Wagner. He was warmly applauded after his first group, but the lighter songs of his second group seemed to have the greater appeal and he was forced to add two extra numbers, his singing of "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," delighting those for whom the simply sung negro spiritual has a strong appeal. The old Irish "Ballynure Ballad" was also very popular.

Mr. Bittell's accompaniments were finely done, enhancing the singer's effectiveness, yet doing so in the unobtrusive manner which marks the true accompanist.

Miss French, the Society's pianist played the few accompaniments permitted by the program in the same finished manner which has meant so much to the chorus since its inception. Especial mention should be made of the excellence with which she and Mrs. Witham played the four-hand arrangement of Borodin's unusual score, the difficult arpeggio passages being notably achieved.

Louis E. Goddu served as head usher and was assisted by Kenneth M. Pratt, George L. Witham, F. Milne Blanchard, Dana J. Kelley, Robert C. Boone, George W. Stidstone and Kenneth F. McLeod. G. Raymond Bancroft was in charge of the box office. Following is the personnel of the chorus:

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Monday, Jan. 25, was one of the outstanding club days, with the Legislative Committee, under the direction of Mrs. A. Beatrice Thompson, in charge of the program.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Henry Bridge, a talented young violinist, daughter of one of the club members and a pupil of Carlos Piniello, a member of the Symphony Orchestra, accompanied by Mrs. Mary Witham gave a group of violin solos, which delighted her audience. Her selections were:

Katellita M. A. Ponce
Serenade du Tsienne Zaidex
Minuet 1800 Kulhan
MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose" was charmingly rendered as an encore.

The president, Mrs. Winship, then presented Mrs. Thompson, who, in a gracious and complimentary manner, introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Miss Alice Hunt, a graduate of Wellesley College. For four years she has been a member of Professor Zimmern's School of International Relations at Geneva and is an outstanding speaker among the women of the nation.

Miss Hunt had a most engaging personality, and held her audience from the beginning. Her subject was the United States, the World Court, and Disarmament. She pleaded very strongly for international peace and urged club members to use their influence by writing to their Senators, expressing favor of it.

Before discussing the World Court and disarmament, said Miss Hunt, we must realize that the world has changed more from George Washington's time to the present than it had in hundreds of years. Scientifically we are the most progressive of nations but politically there are too many 1789 models. As a result of the numerous inventions, we have become a family of nations, where the United States, now the richest and most powerful member, has a great responsibility. As an industrial country, the United States, even if she still desires, cannot be an absolutely independent individual, acting without regard to other nations; because she must have from them raw materials to carry on her industry and markets for her manufactured products.

Miss Hunt spoke of the hundreds of missionaries sent out by the United States to foreign lands to convert men to Christianity and of how hopeless it is to try and explain to these converts why the United States will not join now in helping the rest of the world by coming into the World Court.

She touched briefly on what authorities agree the next war with its powerful new poison gases, would mean—namely, the destruction of this civilization; where neither people nor land fit to support life would remain and against which no adequate preparation can be made. She spoke of the ten million killed in the last war and of the soldiers, whose injuries have made them helplessly dependent, and said that the world at this time would do well to consider what the purchasing power of that number would mean.

One remedy for war, said Miss Hunt, is peace machinery or the World Court, which is essentially an American institution. The first national peace society was started in 1828 by a man from Maine named William Ladd and the idea of a World Court was agitated by Americans from that time through the administrations of President McKinley and President Roosevelt, who sent delegates to The Hague, until the World War. After the war, Elihu Root succeeded in making the World Court a reality and then, after working 100 years to get it, the United States refused to join. That it has proven a most efficient and satisfactory means of arbitration is shown by the fact that 35 countries have now signed the special clause, which compels them to take their international disputes to the World Court for settlement.

Speaking of disarmament, Miss Hunt said that the word is not to be misunderstood. It means simply a limitation of armaments. The idea of disarmament originated when the patrol of the Canadian border was abolished and a commission established, which has had no difficulty in settling any differences between the United States and Canada. Disarmament was again put forward in the Versailles Treaty, which 55 countries signed. For 13 years Germany, Hungary, Austria and Bulgaria have waited for these countries to keep their agreement and now things have reached such a crisis that something must be done. Will the disarmament conference called for next month at Geneva meet with success?

The United States called the first naval disarmament conference. Here France proved the stumbling block. The Washington Conference got rid of the treaty between England and Japan but England and United States could not agree on the question of cruisers. The London Naval Conference did a great deal. It limited battleships, destroyers, cruisers and submarines, Italy and France refused to sign because Italy demands parity with France. The coming conference at Geneva proposes to limit the fighting men in army, navy and air service and to limit army spent; that is to take an average of the amount spent in the last four years and agree not to spend more than that this year. In this country there is much propaganda against this. The United States is the only country to hold out for battleships and England wants the submarine done away with.

The present situation in Germany seems to indicate that the only remedy there is the cancellation of reparations and war debts. Otherwise Germany, fighting for very existence, will do as she pleases and who can say, with the youth of Germany supporting fascism and communism, what the outcome will be and what dire effects such an upheaval might have on the rest of the world.

Miss Hunt's earnest arguments for the entry of this country into the World Court and for support of the disarmament conference thrilled her audience and brought home the fact that no country can be free of responsibility to other countries. Her engaging personality, rare humor and apt stories, together with her knowledge of the subject made her a most effective speaker and one whom the club was fortunate to have the privilege of hearing. Mrs. Thompson and her committee are to be commended for giving their fellow club members such a splendid program.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by the social committee. Mrs. Grace Aseltine, chairman. The tables were most attractive with their lovely begonia plants and tall candles in matching color. Hostesses were Mrs. H. A. Comins, Mrs. Thomas Barnard, Mrs. H. L. Caldwell and Mrs. C. F. Siedhof.

On Friday afternoon, Jan. 22, in Fortnightly Hall, the Dramatic Committee presented two one act plays. A capacity audience and rapt attention during the entire program indicate how greatly these afternoons are enjoyed.

Mrs. Lillian R. Whitman, chairman of the Dramatic Committee welcomed the guests in her usual gracious manner and then introduced Mrs. Winifred S. Meyer, who has charge of the program. The first presentation "Happiness" by J. Hartley Manners had the following cast:

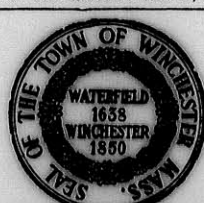

Mrs. Chrystal Pole Claire Reynolds
Philip Chandos Winnifred Reynolds
Jenny Irene Clarke
Mr. Sowerfoot Aurilia Shapleigh

The action throughout this comedy was well sustained and the different parts portrayed with sympathy and understanding. Mrs. Reynolds as Chrystal Pole was convincing. At first lovely to behold but bored and discontented, through contact with Jenny, who points out to her the true meaning of happiness, she gives a glimpse of the finer woman she will become. Mrs. Shapleigh gave a capable performance of the loving father who fails utterly to understand his child and Mrs. Nicholas, as Philip Chandos, was the ideal gay and debonair young man about town, who has never had to exert himself in his own behalf. Mrs. Clarke, as Jenny the little shop girl, who has had to battle for her living but in spite of hard knocks has become in her own small way something of a philosopher, interpreted her part with sympathy and charm.

The second play, "Mrs. Pat and the Law" by Mary Aldis, was entirely different in character. The following cast gave a most delightful performance:

Mrs. Pat Blanche Reynolds
Mr. Pat Doris McLeod
Miss Carroll Martha Kelley
Jimmie Ada von Rosenberg
John Bing Dorothy Wills

Every part was taken with spirit and the Irish speech and mannerisms of Mr. and Mrs. Pat were so cleverly portrayed by Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. McLeod that there was only sympathy for the hard working, abused but dotting Nora, who, in the end, could not let "the law" take her lazy rascal of a Pat, even though it would compel him to work and support his family. With a querulous, high pitched voice, and little dependent ways, Mrs. von Rosenberg made the part of the small crippled Jimmie, whose ambition was to own a suit which no one else had ever worn, pathetically real. Mrs. Kelley, as the district nurse, was not

CALUMET NOTES

Calumet was in a winning mood Tuesday evening and defeated the Malden Club in a Middlesex Valley League match at the local clubhouse. The locals won six and lost two in bowling, took all three points in cards and won one while losing Fred Scholl served his usual tasty luncheon after the competition.

The bowlers were all in good form, and some really fine scores were turned in on the alleys. It was unofficially stated after the first team match that Calumet's 1932 was the highest three string team total ever rolled at the club. Goldsmith, Metter, "Newt" and Ralph Purington and McGrath were the high scoring combination.

Harling of Malden had 368 for high three string on a single of 129. "Newt" Furrington rolled a corking 357, also on a high 129. Harry McGrath turned in the night's high single, 145, and was second to Harling for three strings, totaling 363.

A feature of the pool and billiards was the match between Leighton of Malden and "Pete" Pitman of Calumet. Both were tied at 200 and amid much excitement the Calumet man succeeded in scratching off to win.

Interest in the winter bowling is rapidly increasing, and teams below the line are striving to better their standing in order to fully enjoy the bowling dinner at the end of the season.

One of the teams at present in the red is "Jim" Fitzgerald's aggregation, comprising big "Jim" brother "Nick," Frank Melly, "Joe" Matthews and the hockey expert, "Fred" Mitchell. "Fitz" says that his club is due to start a real spurt and as a tune-up is going to accept a challenge hurled in its general direction by "Hod" Ford, "Ben" Hills, "Bill" McLean, "Bob" Hamilton and "Burr" Gurley. Stout alleys and pin boys in suits of mail will be necessary when this feud is settled.

Following is the team standing complete to Jan. 25. Look it over and see where you stand!

HORN POND BROOK

The brush and weeds along the shores of the stretch of land 30 feet wide, purchased of Mr. Sylvester in 1928 or 1929 was cleared up and the gravel which had been thrown up by the previous owner in dredging the brook was leveled off, leaving a path from four to eight feet wide on each side of the brook.

Across the brook at different places were built four concrete dams about two feet in height. As a result of these dams the water was set back for a distance of 100 to 200 feet—in each case affording in winter a place for small children to skate and in the summer a chance for them to go in swimming in relatively shallow water.

Opposite the end of Salem street, where there had been for many years a crossing with temporary bridges constructed, a reinforced concrete foot-bridge was put over the brook for the convenience of those in that neighborhood. A contributor to the Star recently referred to this bridge as the "Dinky Bridge"—an excellent name, and I hope it may hereafter be known by this diletic appellation. We have repaired the abutments of two highway bridges across Canal street and Sylvester avenue, which were being undermined by swift running water in time of freshets. Mr. Charles Gleason furnished the stone and Mr. Fitzgerald the gravel and the necessary trucking—all without charge. We repaired and extended several surface drain pipes running into the stream, the town furnishing the necessary pipe.

The owners of the land in the neighborhood were encouraged to cut and burn all brush on their properties and responded quite generally. The Board of Health co-operated in removing old automobiles and rubbish, which had been accumulating many years, from the neighborhood along the stream. The committee in charge of the unemployed is completing similar work along the stream for a distance of 700 feet to Wedge Pond.

The bottom of this stream for its entire length is gravel and the water of Horn Pond Brook is clean and wholesome. We cleaned up Russell Brook, which runs into this stream, for a distance of about 200 feet. The waters of this stream, once so filthy, seem to be quite free from pollution, so that Wedge Pond will have a stream of clear water constantly running into it near the junction of Main and Lake streets.

This work has been done by a crew of eight men and a working foreman—all excellent workmen who have done an honest day's work every day. I give their names below:

Fred C. MacDonald, Antonio Marabell
Foreman James MacDow
James Malloy, George Wilson
Thomas Parsons, Alfred Curme
William Moore, John Hickey

They are all married men and have in their families 54 dependents. I think any one examining this work will feel that for the money expended a good showing was made by these men.

The weather has been especially favorable also for doing the work. James J. Fitzgerald Company have had charge of the necessary engineering, and Nicholas Fitzgerald has been constantly in charge of operations. The work was estimated to cost $2500—the actual amount expended is given below:

FISHERMAN'S SUNDAY NEXT WEEK

All men in Winchester who are interested in fishing are urged to set aside Sunday morning, Feb. 14, and to decide now to join with their brother anglers in the observance of the 10th annual Fisherman's service at the First Congregational Church.

For those who have not attended one of these absolutely unique services may say that there is nothing just like them. They originated with a little group of men who had been fellow members with Dr. Howard J. Chidley of "Charlie" Lane's fishing parties at Marr's Camps in the Moosehead region of Maine.

These fishermen conceived the idea of joining once a year in Divine worship at the church of their brother angler, Doctor Chidley, asking the latter to speak to them on some subject having special appeal for those loving the out-of-doors.

From this small beginning has grown the present Fisherman's service which last year attracted nearly 100 disciples of the famous Isaac Walton. Mr. Lane, who is as usual in charge of arrangements for this year's service, is particularly desirous of stressing the fact that every man in Winchester who likes fishing is welcome. Invitations are not necessary, but he would appreciate being notified by those who plan to attend in order that a sufficient number of seats can be reserved.

Doctor Chidley is to preach upon "Wilderness Ways" and those who know his ability to paint a word picture of the out-of-doors are anticipating a rare treat. The choir will participate in the service and will render specially selected numbers under the direction of Organist and Choirmaster J. Albert Wilson. "Mike" Marr is expected to be among the fishermen present.

Once again, fishermen, come to this service! Don't wait for a special invitation! It is impossible to reach every one, but every one is welcome!

FOUR MOTOR ACCIDENTS WEDNESDAY

The slippery going on Wednesday after Tuesday's snow is held responsible for several automobile accidents which were reported in town.

At 8 o'clock in the morning a Willys Knight sedan, driven by Stephen Pappas of 5 Mt. Pleasant street, Woburn was in collision on Main street near the corner of Sheridan circle with a Chrysler sedan, operated by Michael Barry of Lake street, Wilmington. Pappas was backing his car into Ryan's Gas Station while Barry was driving south on Main street. Both cars were slightly damaged.

Twenty-five minutes after this accident a Hudson coupe, driven south on Forest street by John H. Hildreth, Jr., of 52 Grove street, Reading, skidded in its attempt to negotiate the curve in front of the residence of Town Engineer James Hinds and struck a tree. The machine was badly damaged and had to be towed to a Malden garage. No one was reported injured.

Charles H. Whittier of 212 Governor's avenue, Medford, notified Headquarters at 9:50 a. m. that his Buick brougham had run into a tree on Mystic avenue in front of the residence of Archie E. Picken, but neither damage nor injury was reported.

Headquarters was notified of a second accident on Forest street at 2:57 in the afternoon. Patrolmen James P. Donaghey and John Murray were sent to investigate and found that a LaSalle sedan, driven by Burton E. F. Teller of 832 Beacon street, Boston, while headed south on Forest street in front of the residence of William R. Baker had skidded into an Edison Light pole, breaking the latter off at the base. The car was badly damaged and was towed to the Central Garage. Teller was not injured.

Horace Ford, big league infielder who was recently purchased by the St. Louis Cardinals from the Cincinnati Reds, returned unsigned the contract from his new club on Monday. At his home last night he stated that he is not in baseball for fun and that the Cardinals will have to raise the ante if they want him services this summer. Inasmuch as St. Louis has let both Andy High and Flowers go it would seem that the champions are depending on Horace to plug any infield gap which may arise as the Winchester man will be the only experienced reserve player on the club.

LEGION CAST SCORED BIG SUCCESS IN "THE MAN WHO STAYED AT HOME"

Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, for its annual show, presented "The Man Who Stayed at Home," a play in three acts by Lechmere Worrell and J. E. Harold Terry, on last Friday and Saturday evenings in the Town Hall. Enthusiastic audiences witnessed the production on both evenings, but the attendance in neither instance was as large as the Legionnaires had wished or as the excellence of the show warranted.

The Post in the production of "Journey's End" last year set for itself an unusually high standard, but this year's show in every respect proved an altogether worthy successor. It was if anything better than its predecessor and those, who like its hero "stayed at home" missed one of the best things of its kind done in the Town Hall in recent years.

First of all the "Man Who Stayed at Home" was happily chosen and splendidly cast. In rare instances only would it be possible for a producer to secure the services of men like Gerald Hills and Dermott Townley-Tilson, both of whom were able to assume their respective roles with an actual knowledge of the characters they portrayed. The remaining members of the cast accorded them splendid support and the play itself was one which combined comedy with tenseness in just the right proportion to maintain the entire interest of the audience to the fall of the final curtain.

If there were flaws in the presentation they were not noticeable. There was no difficulty with lines and the entire production reflected a professional air. Lighting and stage properties were adequate as were both makeup and costumes. Skilled coaching and hard work were most apparent.

Certain events which transpire in a British boarding house, run by Mrs. Sanderson and situated near the British seacoast, provide the action for the play, all of which takes place during the 15 hours which follow breakfast on a September day in 1914.

The placid and innocent Mrs. Sanderson is in reality an ardent servant of the German Fatherland and the mother of Carl, a spy, who has secured an important post in the British Admiralty. Her associates, Fraulein Schroeder and Fritz, the butler, while naturalized British subjects, have never withdrawn their allegiance to the Kaiser and render enthusiastic assistance to Carl in his efforts to give the German Navy information of British troop movements to the end that the transports may be sunk by submarines.

Working against these forces are Christopher Brent, the man who stayed at home, a member of the British secret service, and his ally, Miriam Leigh. Discovering the hidden German wireless, they also learn that carrier pigeons are to be used to send plans and other data secured by Carl and Fraulein Schroeder to Germany.

The pigeon bearing the dispatch is shot by Brent, and to avoid suspicion, dummy plans are attached to the dead bird while the true dispatches are given by Brent to Miriam Leigh.

To further his plans Brent plays the fool so successfully that John Preston, J. P., upbraids him for his cowardice in not joining the army and forbids further attentions to his daughter, Molly.

The latter becomes suspicious of Mrs. Leigh's relations with Brent and finding the papers, mentioned above, in her room, confronts her and Brent with the accusation that the woman is a spy. The accusation is accepted by Mrs. Leigh to shield Brent so that the latter can successfully frustrate the German plan to get information of the British troops sailing to the waiting submarines.

This is successfully accomplished and the conspirators placed under arrest with the exception of Fritz, who is shot by Percival Pennicuk, a British sentry who the German is on his way to kill and who is warned of his danger by Brent. Incidentally, parental objection to the Brent-Preston alliance is emphatically withdrawn and every one is happy, if a bit chilly, at the final curtain.

Seldom has Winchester seen a better bit of characterization than that of Gerald Hills in the role of Christopher Brent. His portrayal of the rapid Englishman, of the type made famous by P. G. Wodehouse, was perfection itself and especially difficult to achieve because of its sharp contrast with the true Christopher Brent, a particularly keen example of the famous British secret service man.

WINCHESTER BOY IN OPERA

One of Winchester's own sons, David R. Downer, has had the honor of being chosen to sing in two operas being presented by the Chicago Civic Opera Co., now playing in Boston. "De Meistersinger," the first of these will be presented this evening and the second, "Parsifal" will be presented next Wednesday.

Mr. Downer's high tenor voice is known principally to members of the First Baptist Church where he has sung many times and where he was a member of the choir previous to accepting a position, last fall, in the choir of the Arlington Street Church in Boston. He is also a member of the Apollo Club of Boston, a well known male chorus.

The Selectmen have drawn Ernest H. Butterworth of 51 Forest street and Edmund A. Goggin of 22 Highland avenue to serve as traverse jurors, the former at Lowell and the latter at Cambridge.

WINCHESTER YOUNG MAN SOLE SURVIVOR OF MOUNTAIN CLIMBING TRIP

Woburn and Stoneham Companions Perished in Storm on Mt. Washington

Donald Higgins, 24-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Higgins of Kenwin road, is the sole survivor of a party of three friends who were caught in a blizzard last Sunday afternoon while attempting to climb Mt. Washington. Joseph Chadwick, 24, of Woburn and Ernest McAdams, 22, of Stoneham, formerly of Winchester, perished when they fell into the snow along the railroad trestle more than half-way up the mountain. For a time the trio had braved the fierce storm together, but first McAdams and then Chadwick fell exhausted and Higgins after heroic efforts to assist his friends was forced to abandon them as he felt his own strength ebbing fast.

The three friends had been planning the trip up the mountain for some time, but were not unanimous about going last week-end. Chadwick, particularly was loth to go, being tired after playing an orchestra engagement the previous evening. McAdams too, was tired after the exacting mid-year examinations at the Tufts Engineering School where he was a member of the senior class.

Mrs. Higgins sought vainly to have the young men postpone their trip, but to no avail, and packing their camping equipment in Higgins' automobile, the trio made their way to the Mt. Washington railroad base station, arriving Saturday night.

The caretakers at the station, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buckner, attempted to have the young men spend the night at the station, but the trio, warmly clothed, had decided to spend the night in the open. It was not until 12:30 Tuesday that Higgins staggered into the base station to gasp out the story of the terrific storm which his party had encountered and of his companions' tragic deaths.

Higgins was given first aid by the Buckners and the alarm spread by telephone to Fabian and from there to Whitefield, 14 miles away.

Police Chief Murray Clement of Whitefield, Deputy Sheriff of Coos County, started at once for the scene. At Fabian James Gall, John Wright and James Webb set out for the base station to bring down the sole survivor of the storm.

The earlier snows had blocked the road. A small automobile had gone through and left deep ruts. Gall's small car was able to make the trip, but when Deputy Sheriff Clement, accompanied by Dennis Meaney, attempted it in their larger car they found it impossible.

Gall went through and young Higgins was bundled into the small car which was turned about and started down the mountain to the road at Mt. Pleasant. They met the sheriff and his party and it was decided it would be inadvisable to attempt to transfer the patient to the larger car, so Gall sped away on the trip to Whitefield with the sheriff in his wake.

Word of the coming of the rescue party had been telephoned ahead. Dr. Richard E. Wilder and Dr. Henry Wiggin of Whitefield with a staff of nurses awaited their arrival. Higgins was given immediate attention and an hour after his reception the physicians expressed belief he would survive his harrowing experiences.

His parents were informed by wire of the tragic ending of the expedition and early Wednesday morning, Mr. Higgins left for Morrison Hospital and his son's bedside.

Meanwhile, at dawn Wednesday searching parties composed of men experienced in and hardened to the rigors of winter mountain climbing set out to recover the bodies of Chadwick and McAdams.

They were found Wednesday afternoon, buried in the snow, within five rods of the summit shelter, toward which the young men were struggling, this fact lending added pathos to their tragic deaths.

Fifty hunters and trappers under Deputy Sheriff Murray Clement and accompanied by Norman Vaughan of Hamilton with his team of huskies left the base station at daybreak, reaching the top about 11 in the forenoon.

The body of McAdams was found first, searchers seeing his knapsack protruding from the snow only a few rods from the summit shelter. Chadwick's body was not located until after the party had gone on to the shelter, where a note written by Higgins was found. After reading the note the men hurried back and made a careful search near the spot where the body of McAdams was found and only a few feet away, under four or five feet of snow, found the body of Chadwick. Apparently the two victims had tried to crawl under the trestle to find protection from the storm. Guides and trappers in the searching party said that neither was dressed warmly enough for the hazardous climb.

Four hours were required to get the bodies down the mountain, the descent in places being very hazardous. At the base station a waiting automobile took the bodies to Fabian where they were placed in an ambulance and taken to undertaking rooms in Whitefield. Robert and Ralph McAdams, brothers of one of the dead men, were in the party, as was Joseph Chadwick, father of the other.

STUDY GROUP

The College Club group studying "Personal Finance" met Friday morning, Jan. 29, at the home of Mrs. William E. Spaulding. The subject, "Budgeting," was presented by Mrs. Howard A. Morrison and Mrs. Spaulding. Discussion followed.

FROM THE GLACIER TO THE JUNGLE OR NATURE STUDIES WITH A CAMERA

On Monday evening, Feb. 8, at the Town Hall in Winchester, a most remarkable collection of color pictures will be shown, under the auspices of the Men's Club of the First Baptist Church. These pictures were obtained as end results of 30 years of study and exploration by Dr. Charles H. Tozier of this town. All of the pictures were recently finished, and this is the first time they have been shown in public except to the scientific departments of Harvard and Dartmouth Colleges. The great mountains and glaciers of British Columbia, Montana and Wyoming, together with other scenic wonders of these regions, will first be thrown upon a special screen imported for this lecture. These will be followed by the wild animals, birds and fish of North and Central America all in natural colors, supplemented by examples of some of the finest marine life found in the tropics.

Next there will be thrown upon the screen the only collection in this country of mineral, and geological wonders, taken in all the beauty of their many colors. The beauty of these specimens is impossible to describe in any known tongue.

Following this exhibition, a flower show will be given which is sure to educate and interest all lovers of gardens and wild flowers. These plates are natural reproductions, and can not be duplicated, and you will marvel in their faithful showing of the natural color values. Flowers will be shown from all over the country as well as in the tropics. Some of the slides were taken in Winchester gardens. Others will show the marvelous varieties grown by Mr. Jere A. Downs of Winchester. Mr. Downs, after seeing his own pictures said that he never realized he grew such beautiful objects. These pictures should appeal to all lovers of the great outdoors as well as to teachers and students interested in the natural sciences.

WINCHESTER WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular meeting of the Women's Republican Club was held Wednesday, Feb. 3, at 2:30 p. m. at Association Hall. After the salute to the flag, the secretary's report was read and Mrs. Scates, the Membership chairman reported seven new members. Mrs. Louis Snyder, our president, then announced that the March meeting of the club would be held at the Town Hall, March 2. At this meeting there will be presented a two-act play "Two Women and Washington." The Girl Scouts and high school pupils are especially invited to attend.

The speaker of the afternoon was Miss Alfrida Mosher, director of the International Club of Boston. Her subject was "The Making of Americans." Miss Mosher told us that the object of the International Club is to consider questions raised by the making of the American population, to help those who have come to America at different intervals to get along together and to develop international fellowship and a better knowledge of American life and ideals.

She spoke of the problem of the divided family due to restricted immigration and urged that we watch legislation which affects people coming in to make up our community. The club is maintained by the dues and anybody interested in developing international friendship can help a great deal by becoming a member. Sometimes during the month there will be 60 group meetings with an attendance of 760 people bringing together groups of different nationalities. This develops a human allegiance rather than a national allegiance which will make war more difficult.

Songs of different countries were then sung by two women from the International Club. Russian music was played and dances by members of the Unitarian Club of Dramatics and Dancing.

Tea was served by waitresses in costume and special refreshments from different countries were enjoyed by all.

SANDBERG-MATTHEWS

Only members of the immediate families were present last Friday evening at the marriage of Miss Katharine Matthews, daughter of Principal John Ormsby Matthews of the Arlington Junior High Center and Mrs. Matthews of 39 Lake street, Arlington, to Edward Brackett Sandberg of this town, son of Mr. and Mrs. Josef Sandberg of 11 Walcott road. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Reuben Rea Hadley of the Arlington Universalist Church and Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church of Winchester. The bride and bridegroom were unattended.

Miss Matthews was given in marriage by her father and wore her mother's wedding gown of white crepe de chine with a coronet of orange blossoms. Her arm bouquet was of valley lilies and blush pink sweet peas. A reception followed the ceremony. Mr. Sandberg and his bride are to make their home in Cambridge at 42 Linea street. The bride was graduated from Arlington High School and in 1931 from Mt. Ida School where she was active in the Literary Society and a member of the staff of the school's literary publication.

Mr. Sandberg prepared for college at Chauncey Hall and Huntington Schools and was a member of the class of 1925 at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is associated with the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston.

Mrs. Henry E. Worcester of Church street sailed last Saturday from New York on the United Fruit liner Ulua for a trip to the tropics.

CHORAL SOCIETY IN POST-CONCERT PARTY

The Winchester Choral Society held the first post-concert party of its third season Tuesday evening in the Calumet Club, nearly the entire membership attending despite the stormy night.

At a brief business meeting it was regretfully decided because of adverse conditions to accept an invitation to give a joint concert in Jordan Hall, Boston, with members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The invitation is considered very flattering to the local chorus in view of its brief existence and clearly indicates the esteem in which the Society is held by competent critics.

Following the business meeting, President George W. Stidstone, who acted as master of ceremonies for the evening, presented Director J. Albert Wilson with what is technically known as a "razzer" the presentation being made with the hope that the little noisemaker might prove of assistance in keeping the chorus on pitch. Its blasts were heard at frequent intervals during the evening.

A tournament of "indoor sports" was staged under the supervision of a group of judges and referees, including William Spaulding, Clifford Cunningham, Bortha Kelley, Margaret Randall, Esther Stidstone, Earl Sylvester, Milne Blanchard, William Corliss and George Stidstone. Everyone participated in such intricate games as "Volstead and Barleycorn" pees, moies, alley tennis, ring toss, bowling, crystal ball, nice doggie, big board and "let 'em roll."

Totals for each event were kept on score cards and when the contestants were reluctantly persuaded to desist, first prize was awarded to Blanche Barnard with second going to Anna Grosvenor and third to Isabelle Winslow. Other prize winners were Kenneth Reynolds, Milne Blanchard, Mary Witham, Ruth Reynolds, Mary French, Josephine Taylor, Martha Swain and Christine Greene. The consolation went to Earle Sylvester, though Clifford Cunningham and J. Albert Wilson refused to make their scores public. No one would credit the total turned in by Kenneth McLeod and his application for an award was rejected. The handsome prize for the season's membership campaign was won by Nina Richardson.

A social hour and refreshments followed the tournament, each member being "tagged" for easy identification. Sandwiches, cakes and coffee were served by Maude Hitchcock assisted by Martha Swain, Stella Nichols, Grace Mitchell and Dorothy Marston. President Stidstone and Vice-President Martha Swain were in general charge of arrangements.

S. S. McNEILLY CO. CHANGES HANDS

Announcement was made this week that Samuel S. McNeilly has sold his radio and electrical appliance business in the center to Peter J. Weers of Melrose appliance agent for the Malden and Melrose Gaslight Company and the Malden Electric Company.

Mr. McNeilly, who has been popular with his customers and fellow business men, has purchased an interest in the Bacon Felt Mill below Wedgemere, one of Winchester's landmarks. It is reported that the mill, which formerly employed a large number of operators, will be thoroughly reconditioned and put in active operation within a short time.

FUNERAL OF ERNEST McADAMS TO BE HELD SATURDAY

Washington in a blizzard last Sunday, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Second Congregational Church. The pastor, Rev. John E. Whitley will officiate at the service for the young man who formerly made his home in Winchester and had many friends here. Relatives and friends are invited to attend.

The funeral of Joseph Chadwick, who died with McAdams on the mountain, will also be held on Saturday afternoon, but the time and place had not been decided upon when the Star went to press.

The change is made to lessen the number of bills which it is necessary to make out at one time and to return receipts to the town at more frequent intervals.

It was reported to the Star last night that the Winchester plumbers have notified the master plumbers that they are willing to accept voluntarily a 10 per cent reduction in wages to become effective March 1. They have been getting $1.37 per hour.

"THE RIVALS"

First Congregational Church Parish House Friday, Feb. 12 at 8:15 P. M.

"The Rivals" has had a very interesting history. Written by Richard Brinsley Sheridan (son of Garrick's) it was produced in London, Jan. 1779, and was in his rapidly with all the experience of spirit of such an age, it originally contained material enough for two plays. It was cut, however, by Manager Harris, and since its first success in London, has held a high rank among the old comedies.

"The Rivals" was first performed in America at the John Street Theatre, New York, June 9, 1786, for the benefit of Mrs. Harper. The Harpers were the first regular actors to come to Boston. On Aug. 10, 1792, they opened the Board Alley Theatre, just off what is now Hawley street, and there, on Nov. 14, 1792, they produced "The Rivals." Since that time the comedy has been constantly given in Boston.

The actor whose name was for 40 years most closely associated with the experience of Bostonians with the old comedies, was William Warren, unrivalled actor, and sterling gentleman. He first appeared in Boston on July 4, 1846, at the Howard Athenaeum, then the Smart Theatre, as Sir Lucius O'Trigger. Later, at the Museum, he played the immortal part of Bob Acres, and remained for a whole generation, Boston's greatest favorite. After 1889, the late Joseph Jefferson also gave many productions of this play.

It is with pleasure that the Dramatic Society of the First Congregational Church offers the revival of this historic and rollicking comedy. It will be played in costumes of the period and it is hoped that it will meet with the favor of our subscribers.

On Sunday, Jan. 31, Nancy Alexander Booth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Booth was christened in the Church of the Epiphany by the Rev. Dwight W. Hadley. Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Alexander of Lakeview road were the Godparents of the baby.

WINCHESTER MAN WINS PROMOTION

John McKenzie Named Assistant Manager of Sugar Division at Banan

Word was received in Winchester this week of the promotion of John M. McKenzie, formerly of this town, to the important position of assistant manager of the Banan (Cuba) Division of the United Fruit's sugar interests.

Mr. McKenzie has been for 11 years in the sugar production business in Cuba. He was graduated from Winchester High School and attended Boston University, giving up his studies to enter the service at the time of the war. Upon his discharge he became identified with the sugar business, starting at the bottom in the plant of the Revere Sugar Refinery.

After two years in the refinery he went to Preston, Cuba, where he had seven years' experience before going to Banan as superintendent of manufacture, a position he will retain along with his new post of assistant manager of the Banan plant. Mr. McKenzie is well known in and around Winchester, having been a fine high school and semi-professional baseball player. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. McKenzie of Hemingway street.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL

Shortly before 10 o'clock Monday night police headquarters was notified that thieves with a Ford truck were busy at a new house on Westland avenue. Sgt. Thomas S. Cassidy with Patrolmen John J. Regan and Daniel P. Kelley made a quick trip to the place indicated, but found no one on the premises.

The authorities learned the number of the truck, and traced it to an address in Arlington where they were told that its operator, a plasterer, had been in the Westland avenue house attending to his salamanders. He had taken a sand screen from the dwelling, and had evidently been seen by neighbors while in the act of removing it.

The police were by no means provoked by their unnecessary labors and are at all times glad to investigate the activities of unknown individuals which seem at all suspicious.

BANANAS BLOSSOM AT CONSERVATORIES

The Winchester Conservatories on Cambridge street are at this season of the year a most interesting place for customers and flower lovers. With the early spring blossoms just coming into bloom and the late winter flowers still in demand, the greenhouses are particularly attractive and are drawing a host of visitors. A visit is well worth while, not only for adults but the little people also.

Already the first of the spring blossoms are appearing. Tulips and jonquils are out in bright colors and the other numerous bulb flowers are budding fast. The collection of palms is particularly complete and interesting and the cactus, in many varieties are most novel.

Of particular interest, and not to be overlooked, is the tropical room, the pet hobby of Mr. John C. Haartz, head of the Conservatories. In this house are three huge banana trees in blossom and with ripening fruit. To one who has never seen such a tree, the sight is of great interest. In the same house are orange trees in bloom and in fruit, grape fruit trees with most delicious fruit, tangerines of gorgeous color and other interesting tropical plants. The sweet odor of the orange blossoms which greets one's entrance is a feature in itself.

Another interesting flower at the Conservatories is a new type of Poinsettia. This plant is of a new variety and has the most enormous blossom yet seen. It is of the usual brilliant scarlet but in composition is more like the great double Chrysanthemum. It is said to be much more hardy than the customary variety and according to Mr. Welsh, the manager of the Conservatories, and has been in blossom since early December. None were placed on sale this year, but from indications the Conservatories will feature them next Christmas.

Of Valentine flowers the Conservatories has a very complete assortment with many unusual offerings for this season of the year.

MISS AVERY'S SIXTH LECTURE

Miss Avery's lecture on Jan. 27 was mainly an appraisal of 1931 and the problem of such an appraisal is a large one. To judge a year, one must watch Washington which is trying to cope with the greatest peacetime deficit in the history of the world, and London, still the centre of the greatest world empire because it went off the gold standard. And we must watch Paris for it is the key to the debt and reparations problems and Geneva, the home of the League of Nations where the Disarmament Conference opens in February. And Berlin because of Von Hindenburg and its inability to pay its war debts.

We must watch Vienna because its greatest bank failed last summer and started the landslide that resulted in the fall of the gold standard. And Moscow with its 5 year plan and Madrid the centre of a new Spain. We must watch Rome because of its 10th year as a Fascist state and Delhi the hotbed of Indian revolt.

We must keep our eye on Mukden because China and Japan both need it, on Tokio where new elections are to be held and Nanking whose government changes from day to day.

And we must not forget to watch Manila for there is a new quality in the independence movement in the Philippines and Australia which has the most radical experiment of any government in the world, and Ottawa because of the impending Imperial Conference. And Rio Janeiro, Buenos Aires and Santiago are worth watching because of their financial government.

In closing her lecture Miss Avery said that the great interest of the past year had been science, for science with its discoveries and developments has opened new and great possibilities to all the world.

The next lecture on Feb. 10 will be "Gold and Silver."

Mr. Carl Larson of Cambridge street who has been enjoying a three weeks' visit in Florida left for the north on Monday and is expected to arrive in Winchester either today or tomorrow.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF NOTES

The clerk of the weather has done very well for the Unemployment organization. The committee has increased the force at work, both for the purpose of giving employment during the season when it is ordinarily scarce and at the same time taking advantage of the weather to prosecute its work of making a substantial contribution to the town in improving the valley of the Aberjona River from the Mill Pond northward. This work is without doubt of more vital importance to the town than is realized by other than a small percentage of its inhabitants. There are no paths through this swamp area extending more than a mile north from the square. It can be seen from a distance but that gives no idea of the precise situation. Great areas of muck and great depths of mud fill many acres. Stagnant water with its mosquito breeding in vast numbers is the necessary accompaniment. The remedy is clear moving water and the filling and grading of the land areas. To this work the committee has undertaken to contribute. No citizen has seen the dangers to the future of Winchester from the neglect of this situation more clearly than Mr. Lewis Parkhurst. His realization of its importance has prompted him to contribute largely to the work and to take the leadership in its solution. The Unemployment Committee, consisting in considerable part of town officials, is fully alive to the situation. The handling of this area north of Mt. Vernon street to the Woburn line will have very much to do with the future development of the town on both sides of the valley. Of course the area is not seen by the many but only by the few so there is a lack of public knowledge and therefore of the opinion regarding it. Appropriations are based on a need and ability to raise the money and a public opinion which will appropriate it. These factors are not easy to mobilize with respect to swamps and mud holes, particularly when they are not seen and therefore little is known about them. The committee is centering its efforts upon this problem and will make a substantial contribution toward its solution before the unemployment work is discontinued.

Today 183 men are at work, a portion of them on part time. Our payroll for the past week was $2154.82.

Crews are still at work on the Reservoir, at Leonard Field, in the Mill Pond, at the lower end of Horn Pond Brook near the town yard, and painting and carpentry at the Cemetery. A sixth group is working on sidewalks on High street. The men of the different crews are giving excellent service which is the exchange they can and should and do give in response to the voluntary subscriptions made by Winchester residents to deal with the unemployment situation.

In response to repeated complaints last Sunday evening Patrolmen Henry P. Dempsey and John Dolan made a hurried trip to the new Junior High School where a gang of boys was creating a disturbance. The youths succeeded in avoiding the police who were forced to move with great caution about the half finished structure. The boys were flirting with serious injury in entering the building after nightfall as there are several open places where one could easily get a bad, if not fatal, fall.

WINCHESTER BOY SCOUT NEWS

On Friday, Jan. 29, the Scouts of the Fellsland Council, comprising of Burlington, Medford, Stoneham, Winchester and Woburn, assembled in the Lawrence Light Guard Armory in Medford to participate in the annual Council rally. The Scouts of Troops 3, 6 and 7 of Winchester, together with many of the parents and friends of these boys, represented Winchester at the rally. Over 500 Scouts took part in the various events.

The rally opened with the pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, and the Scout oath. This was followed by the demonstrations by troops. These included demonstrations of life saving, Indian dancing, fancy drills, field telephones and silhouettes. Troop 3 Winchester was awarded a blue ribbon for a drill put on by the members of the troop, under the direction of Scoutmaster Harold V. Hovey.

The Council championships followed the demonstrations. The compass relay was won by Troop 5, Medford, with a patrol from three Medford, second; and a patrol from Troop 3, Winchester, third. The flint and steel relay was won by the Eagle patrol of Troop 3, Winchester. In this event four boys are required to make a fire by striking flint on steel. It is a relay, the second boy being permitted to start fire as soon as the first has made fire and so on until all four boys have made a fire. This patrol astonished the Scouts and visitors present by accomplishing the relay in the remarkable time of 17 2/5 seconds, an average of 4.35 seconds per boy.

The next event, potato race, was won by the Lion Patrol of Troop 3, Winchester, with Troop 2, Medford, second, and Troop 4 of Woburn, third. Hence, two of the five Council championship banners are now held by Troop 3 of Winchester.

The last event, fire by friction, was won by William Jones of Troop 4, Stoneham, second, Paul Wentworth; Troop 3, Winchester.

The exhibits, which were set up in the lobby of the Armory, (a new feature of the rally this year) far surpassed the hopes of those who had charge of the rally. In this feature of the rally, Winchester Scouts also won some honors. Blue ribbons, the highest awards, were awarded to Troop 3 and Troop 7, Winchester for their exhibits.

The rally was the biggest and best ever held by the Council. The Scouts of Winchester are to be congratulated upon their splendid showing, especially as this was their first big Council rally.

District Hikes

Field Executive Grosvenor announces that Francis Butler, assistant camp director at the Council camp last year, will take charge of the Saturday hikes to Camp Gleason for the Winchester district, beginning with Saturday, Feb. 13. Mr. Butler, a graduate of Tufts College Engineering School, has been assistant director of the Council camp for two seasons, where he was very popular with the Scouts, and is well known to Winchester boys. The hikes start at 10 a. m. from the headquarters of Troop 3.

Camp Re-Union

The Winchester District is making plans for a camp re-union to be held on Saturday, Feb. 27. Further announcement of the plans will be made as soon as possible.

WBZ

Scouts who were at the Council rally last Friday evening will be interested to know that the Drum and Bugle Corps which lead the parade just before the opening exercises will broadcast from Station WBZ at 2 p. m. Saturday, Feb. 6. The Corps is composed of members of Troop 4, Medford.

UNITARIAN MEN TO HEAR VEITCH TRAVELOG

The directors of the Unitarian Men's Club feel that they have been unusually fortunate in securing Dr. Robert Veitch, world traveler, to give his famous travelogue, "Hawaii, the Paradise of the Pacific," at the next meeting of the club Thursday evening, Feb. 11. Supper will be served at 6:30 under the direction of "Bill" Wood and there will be community singing with "Jim" McGrath at the piano.

Chairman Henry A. Goddard of the entertainment committee states that Dr. Veitch's travels are second to none and that his "Hawaii" is one of his best. Among the gorgeous views are Rainbow Falls, Sunrise at Kaihau, Waikiki Beach, Surf Rides, Night Blooming Cereus, the River of Everlasting Fire, Inside Kilanea Volcano and the Black Sands of Kilauea.

Anticipating a large attendance, it is requested that applications for reservations be made promptly.

Miss Hazel Goldu will sail on the S.S. Britanic from New York on Feb. 10 for the West Indies and South America, she will be accompanied by Mrs. S. D. Cook of West Newton.

Calumet's last match of the season is on Monday night with Kernwood at Malden. The locals have been going nicely of late, but their winning stride was struck too late in the season to lift the Club out of the ruck. Calumet is at present in next to last place in the league standing and a win from Kernwood will be necessary to ensure even remaining on this low rung of the ladder.

The latest from the wrestling committee is to the effect that Boris Demitroff, whose rough match with Bull Martin at the last show is still being discussed, will stage a show at the club next Saturday night, Feb. 13. Boris states that he will bring a fine crew of pachyderms to Winchester and give Calumeters and their friends a real run for their money. He has already signed Jack Albright, the man of a thousand holds, as his own opponent, and will send Prof. Arthur Davis of Tufts against Australian "Joe" Cook in another bout. Another exhibition bout between well-known grappling instructors is in the making.

In the meantime plans for the big Washington Birthday celebration have been completed and Calumeters are assured of a big day at the club the 22nd.

There will be bowling all day from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m. with suitable prizes, and in the afternoon the popular "kiddies' party" will be staged. C. Elliott Smith, chalk-talk artist and ventriloquist will stage an act that is sure to please the youngsters and in addition there will be moving pictures and ice cream. The committee asks that applications for tickets be made as soon as possible.

Mrs. Warren Cox is in charge of the party in the evening for members and their guests. Arrangements for this event have not as yet been completed but there will be bowling, bridge and dancing with prizes for bridge. Here again the committee would appreciate early reservations.

The prompt acceptance of the bowling challenge hurled at the Ford-Hills-McLean team by the Fitzgerald brothers, "Nick" and "Jim" has set the former to thinking with the result that cautious "Nick" spared a bit for time and had the match put over until a week from tonight.

According to "Bill" McLean his team had signed up a real dark horse to make the fifth member of the quintette and what his crowd is going to do to the "Fitzies" won't be funny. On the other hand "Joe" Mathews claims that the match is as good as won by the Fitzgeralds right now and that the postponement was due to a real necessity for the "Fords" to sharpen up their bowling eyes.

Mrs. Fitzgerald rolled the high flat single in the ladies' afternoon bowling match Tuesday, totaling 101. Mrs. Magnusson had 113 for high string with handicap. Mrs. Cabot and Mrs. Barker tied for third prize with 163 for two flat strings. Mrs. Cabot winning on the roll off. Mrs. Howe turned in 196 for two high strings with handicap.

The bowling committee has announced that the annual mixed tournament will commence the latter part of the month. Teams this year will comprise six members instead of eight as in previous years, and the committee asks every one to get in their entries just as soon as possible.

World's History on Walls

The Educational Building forum at Harrisburg, Pa., has on its semi-circular wall a tabloid history of the world in 80,000 words written by Eric Gugler, a New York artist. Chronological tables, alternating with mural maps, depict the ancient occidental civilizations and so on through the progress of the ages up to August, 1914. The forum, which seats 2,000 people, is built along classic Greek lines.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LUNCHEON BRIDGE

The Florence Crittenton luncheon-bridge held Tuesday in the parish house of the First Congregational Church, proved a brilliant and colorful event. Spring green in plants potted in china elephants and green elephant motifs used on the napkins, waitresses costumes, bridge scores and bridge pencils made a bright contrast to the wintry scene nature staged outdoors. The elaborate and dainty chicken luncheon was made possible by the tireless efforts of the committee and the generosity of the following firms: S. S. Pierce Co., La Touraine Coffee Co., First National Stores, S. K. Ames, H. P. Hood & Sons, Economy Stores and Fells Market.

Mrs. Edward C. Grant was chairman of the luncheon bridge committee; sub-chairman, Mrs. Arthur Speedie, Mrs. Walter S. Wadsworth; tickets, Mrs. William Adriance; decorations, Mrs. Harold Meyer; candy and punch, Mrs. Francis Booth and Mrs. E. Ober Priede assisted by Mrs. Earl Speneer, Mrs. Raymond Dexter, Mrs. Malcom Lees, Mrs. Carl Eaton, Mrs. Gretchen Butler and Mrs. Clarence Russell.

The following ladies served on the general committee:

Mrs. Horace Butler
Mrs. Charles Gould
Mrs. Franklin Lane
Mrs. F. Patterson Smith
Mrs. Walter Martin
Mrs. Nathaniel Nichols
Mrs. Frederick Avery
Mrs. Joseph Dolben
Mrs. Ernest Rogers
Mrs. Arthur Raymond
Mrs. J. Robin Cove
Mrs. Royal Wentworth
Mrs. Walter L. Rice

Mrs. Vincent Clarke, Mrs. Harold Meyer and Mrs. Frederick Ritchie acted as head waitresses and directed the routine of the following young ladies who served as waitresses:

Agatha Shinnick
Constance Sylvester
Dorothy Fanny
Barbara Raymond

Miss Fowler, superintendent of the Brighton Home and Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott, educational secretary of the League were among the guests present.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Middlesex County Woman's Christian Temperance Union held a very successful convention at the Y. W. C. A. Building, Cambridge, Jan. 26. Mrs. George H. Hamilton, County president, presided. Winchester Union was well represented by its president, Mrs. Alfred Friend and seven delegates.

An instructive educational program was carried out with Mr. Orville S. Poland as speaker of the afternoon.

The following resolution was passed: Whereas, the 18th amendment was adopted by the orderly processes of government and has been sustained by no less than 48 decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court; and

Whereas, its opponents are now asking Congress to resubmit the question of prohibition through a repeal amendment to be ratified by state conventions called for that purpose; and

Whereas, we have no reason to believe that those opponents who have not counseled obedience to the 18th amendment and its enforcement act and those who have openly advocated disobedience and disregard of the same, which is selective anarchy, would change their attitude and accept the vote of the majority of states should the repeal amendment fail of ratification; and

Whereas, we are confident that resubmission would not take prohibition out of politics but would intensify it as a state issue; therefore be it

Resolved, that we are opposed to the resubmission of the 18th amendment to be ratified by state conventions or by state legislatures, and that we ask our Congressman from this district and our U. S. Senators to vote against such a resolution and to vote for adequate appropriations for law enforcement and for education in law observance.

Adopted by Middlesex County, W. C. T. U., representing 2000 members, dated Jan. 26, 1932, City of Cambridge, Mass.

A NEW ONE

Last Saturday evening at 8 o'clock Mr. Charles Feinburg of 44 Middlesex street notified Police Headquarters that eight gallon cans of kerosene had been stolen from his back steps some time during the past hour.

Sgt. Thomas F. Cassidy and Patrolman John Dolan went to the Feinburg residence and found that the kerosene had been poured from the cans onto the ground in the rear of a woodpile, but the containers were nowhere to be found.

Later it was learned that two boys about 10 or 12 years of age had returned seven empty cans to the Standard Oil filling station on Main street and had been paid the customary 10 cents for each can.

While patrolling his beat on Main street Officer Joseph J. Derro met two youngsters who were thought to be responsible and the boys admitted taking the cans to the filling station. As Officer Derro was about to take the boys into custody they dodged away from him into the street directly in front of an approaching automobile which narrowly avoided striking them.

The machine prevented Officer Derro from following at once and the boys made good their escape behind some nearby buildings. On Sunday, however, they were rounded up and their parents agreed to make restitution for the lost kerosene.

Patrolman James P. Donaghey returned to duty with the Police Department on Monday of this week after a long illness.

EMMA B. MURDOCH

Mrs. Emma Bird Murdoch died on Monday, Feb. 1 at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles N. Harris, after an illness of about four months.

Mrs. Murdoch was born in Cambridge, July 22, 1864, the daughter of Henry M. Bird and Sarah A. (Clark) Bird. She attended college at Wheaton and Radcliffe. In 1903 she married Albert Murdoch, who, during his active business career, was associated as a buyer with Boston department and specialty stores. For 20 years they made their home in the Back Bay at 8 Keswick street. After Mr. Murdoch's retirement from business they moved to Winchester and resided at 20 Hillside avenue. Mr. Murdoch died on March 16, 1930.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Murdoch were members of the Mt. Vernon Congregational Church of Boston, of which they had long been devoted attendants and of which Mr. Murdoch had been a deacon for many years. Their consecrated service to the church, and particularly to its young people, has been an inspiration to their host of friends. They both loved youth and their love was returned by an ever widening circle of friends who had felt the Christian influence of their lives. Young people attending school or college in Boston were made to feel at home with them. For many years Mr. and Mrs. Murdoch held open house on Sunday afternoons at their Boston home for the young people of Mt. Vernon Church, many of whom were comparative strangers in Boston.

Last October the chapel at Mt. Vernon Church was dedicated as the Murdoch Memorial Chapel. It seems peculiarly fitting that the last time that Mrs. Murdoch was able to attend church services was at the dedicatory exercises when Mt. Vernon Church recognized in this fitting manner the devoted services of her late husband—services in which she too had an equal share.

Funeral services, conducted by the Rev. Sidney Lovett, were held on Wednesday afternoon at Mt. Vernon Church. Following cremation, her ashes were interred at Cambridge Cemetery.

WINCHESTER HIGH DEFEATED MILTON

Winchester High School played its best basketball of the year to date last Friday afternoon when the locals won from Milton High at Milton, 19-16.

Coach Lindemann's boys had to come from behind to win, Milton being on the long end of a 12-7 score at the half. Milton was a rangy, experienced club and the locals were forced to show plenty of nice basketball to be returned winners. The same sort of game would have given Winchester a victory over Stoneham.

Both teams guarded closely, and Morosini of Milton was the only member of either team able to score more than a brace of floor goals. Philbrick, center, with two goals from scrimmage and two from free tries was Winchester's high scorer.

MISS BLANCHE MILLS

Miss Blanche Mills died very suddenly last Friday night, Jan. 29, at the home of her brother, Rev. Carleton P. Mills, 5 Lagrange street. She was in her 85th year.

Miss Mills was born in South Williamstown where her father, Benjamin Franklin Mills, founded and was master of Greylock Institute, a school for boys. She was educated in South Williamstown and with the exception of a few years spent in Lexington, had made her home with her brother in Winchester since 1906.

Besides Mr. Mills she is survived by a brother, Silas Road Mills of Newton. Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon in the Church of the Epiphany with the rector, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, officiating. Interment was in South Williamstown.

TOYS WANTED!

Have you put away toys not knowing what else to do with them?

The Disabled Veterans' Welfare Group had some dolls at Christmas time which were distributed among the non-compensated men at the Bedford Hospital, who having no money with which to buy gifts for their children were made happy by thus being provided with even small dolls.

We hope to enlarge on this idea and by next Christmas to have a large number of toys, all freshly painted and mended and if we start accumulating now we should be able to carry out our plans.

Groups, or clubs of girls might find it interesting to dress dolls for this purpose during the coming months. These dolls need not be large or expensive. If they are cute and cleverly dressed they will make two people happy—the Dad who takes it home and the little girl to whom he takes or sends it.

If you have any toys to be used in this way, will you please notify Mrs. R. K. Miller, Jr., Win. 0763-J.

Police Headquarters was notified Monday afternoon that some children were in trouble in the rear of the town hall. Patrolmen James P. Donaghey and John Dolan responded and found that Frances O'Brien of 818 Main street had fallen into the mill pond and was stuck in the mud. The policemen succeeded in extricating her and she was taken home in the automobile of Mr. Hugh Grimes.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

The regular meeting of the club was held on Feb. 4 with three absentees recorded. It should not be difficult to convert this into a 100 per cent meeting.

While on the subject of attendance we will state that our average for January, 1932 was 95.45 per cent. This is the best for a long time and should be maintained or bettered. District Governor "Jerry" is striving to get our district into the honor list in the matter of attendance. This of course depends on the attitude of every club in the district and in turn each club must look to every one of its members for support. Are you with us?

It was good to see "Jim" McGrath at his accustomed berth today. We can all spare him from our midst, but realize that an occasional period of recuperation is a splendid thing. Our music on this occasion was augmented by ensemble singing furnished by the Club Service Committee. This committee which had striven so mightily to co-operate with its chairman in producing the entertainment for the day gave still further proof of its willingness to serve by furnishing this feature in addition to its other prodigious efforts.

The speaker at this meeting was Dr. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church in Winchester. Dr. Chidley took for his subject "Psychology" a science to which he has evidently devoted much attention. The speaker considered especially those branches of psychology known as psycho-analysis and auto-suggestion and described many cases which went to prove the value of this science in combating certain physical and mental diseases. We have rarely listened to a speaker who could pack so much vital information into a short discourse as can Dr. Chidley. This discourse was no exception to the rule. Dr. Chidley had no difficulty in claiming the attention of his listeners and we are of the opinion that every man went away feeling that he had added to his store of knowledge.

Next week the Vocational Service Committee will be in charge of our entertainment hour. The strenuous activity of this committee should be rewarded by a full attendance.

On Monday, Feb. 15, we shall gather in joint meeting with the Lions' Club of Winchester at the Calumet Club at 12:15 p. m. Do not forget this important date. Come all members and show your appreciation of the courtesy of our prospective hosts. This joint meeting will take the place of the regular meeting of the Rotary Club for the week of Feb. 15, i. e., the meeting of Feb. 18 will be omitted.

Percentage of Attendance, Jan. 28, 93.94 per cent.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

The regular meeting for February will be held next Thursday evening. A nominating committee will be appointed to bring in names at the March meeting for officers during the coming year.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Congratulations to the Boy Scouts who are celebrating their 22nd birthday Feb. 7 to 13.

If weather holds good with snow on the ground, the winter carnival will be held at the Scout Cabin Saturday, Feb. 6 from 10 to 5. All friends invited. Hot dogs, coffee, cocoa, candy and pickles will be on sale at noon. Capt. Marion Ladd Symmes and Capt. Margaret Newman have just returned from a winter camping trip to the Edith Macy Training Camp for Girl Scout leaders at University in the Woods. This camp is ideally located among the hills of Briar Cliff, New York, near a beautiful lake.

The course included such activities as nature lore, woodcraft, tracking and stalling, outdoor cooking and fire-building and the learning of new Scout songs, games and camp-fire programs. While there the girls were fortunate to be among those to start the blazing of a new trail to be called "The International or World Trail." This trail is to run along the outer boundaries of Camp Edith Macy and Camp Andree with several stopping places which are to be named for the Scouts in foreign countries. Both leaders were so inspired that they came home with many ideas for winter camping in Winchester and hope that other leaders may have the chance to go to Camp Edith Macy.

February officers' meeting was held at Mrs. Gilbert Tapley's with Mrs. O. B. Maudin and Mrs. Tapley acting as hostesses. There were 15 present. Two new members, Mrs. H. N. Squires and Mrs. Geo. Moffett, were added. Plans were made for the mid-year rally to be held Feb. 20 and a report of the winter camp at Camp Edith Macy was given by Captain Symmes and Captain Newman.

WINCHESTER WON FROM BELMONT

Winchester High School tightened its hold on second place in the Middlesex Basketball League Wednesday afternoon when its team defeated Belmont High, 27-21 in the local gymnasium.

Coach Lindemann's boys had to come from behind to win as the visitors led, 12-9 at the half. "Shellic" Hamilton, who replaced Knowlton at right forward, led the local sharpshooters with four floor goals and two from the foul line for the game's high total of 10 points. "Doc" Mobbs corralled seven for second honors.

Between the halves of the main game the Winchester seconds won from the Belmont seconds, 14-13, in a game that belonged to neither team right up to the final whistle.

Common Words

About 50 of the words most often used in the English language are: The, of, and, to, a, in, that, it, is, I, for, be, was, as, you, with, he, on, have, by, not, at, this, are, we, his, but, they, all, or, which, will, from, had, has, one, our, an, been, no, their, there, were, so, my, if, me, what, would and who.

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The school year has so far been quite active in the Chapters. Reception teas were given for the new members and teachers. The usual teachers luncheons have been held regularly. These are greatly enjoyed. At the Mystic and Wyman Schools successful bridge parties were well attended. The Noonan Chapter is holding an evening bridge Friday the 5th and the George Washington group have tickets out for an afternoon, Feb. 17.

The raising of the memorial pole and flag to Mrs. Fannie Fletcher Parker has met with hearty response. This ceremony will be at the time the school is opened.

The Association has set aside a fund to co-operate with the Town Unemployment Committee. Four dozen pairs of overshoes have been purchased and shoes have been bought for individuals as asked for.

The Wadleigh School Association announce the first "Talkies" for Winchester to be shown in the Town Hall on Feb. 27, afternoon and evening.

And the annual popular "Dad's Night" in each school is in the hands of the teachers, the dates to be told later.

WAKEFIELD HERE TONIGHT

Winchester and Wakefield will lock horns tonight in the local gymnasium and the resulting battle will go far toward deciding the ultimate winner of the Middlesex League basketball championship.

The visitors are leading the circuit and defeated Winchester in a previous game at Wakefield. They are favored to repeat, but not by Coach Lindemann's charges. The locals gave Wakefield a hard battle in their first meeting and have improved immensely since early season.

In the local bandbox Winchester should be much harder to defeat than in a big gymnasium and this fact makes supporters of the Red and Black the more confident of the outcome.

Those who want to see the game will do well to get to the gymnasium early as the seating capacity is very limited and it has been necessary to turn away fans at all of the home games to date. Opening tap-off at 7:30.

HEAVY STORM HIT WINCHESTER

While Winchester was blanketed by a heavy fall of snow last night there was little serious damage from the storm reported this morning. Limbs of trees were down in several places about town as were electric light and telephone wires.

At 9:58 last night Box 45 was pulled in for what was reported as a fire on upper Main street. When the firemen arrived they found that a high tension wire had fallen and struck the Ford automobile of Vincent Carroll of Lincoln street. The occupants jumped to safety and little damage was done.

Five Headquarters was notified at 11:52 last night of a fire on Water street, but upon arrival found that residents there, deprived of electric lights by the storm, were making use of candles and lanterns. In several sections of the town, wire trouble caused either partial or complete loss of lights.

ALBANIA, FROM HORSES TO HORSEPOWER IN A DECADE

The Balkans, tinder-box of Europe, are cementing ties of friendship. At a recent Turk-Balkan conference held in Ankara, Turkey's inland capital, official recognition by Turkey of the Albanian Government of King Zog I was announced by Mustapha Kemal, President of Turkey. The conference also adopted resolutions establishing an inter-Balkan Chamber of Commerce in Istanbul, and an inter-Balkan tobacco bureau at Salonika.

Recognition of Albania by Turkey brings into the limelight the newest kingdom in Europe. The world is more familiar with Albania today than when the historian Gibbon wrote of it "a country within sight of Italy, which is less known than the interior of America." But Albania, not far off the beaten tourist trails, is still one of the most remote parts of Europe.

World War Brought Good Roads. A communication to the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society from Melville Chater describes this mountainous land on the shores of the Adriatic Sea:

Ruinous war creates, at least, roads. When in 1918 the big guns' thunder died away Albania, which had been at once a battlefield and a military corridor, found that she had accumulated the nucleus of a well-engineered road system and a knowledge of motor transport. Thus, instead of having slowly evolved through the steam age into the gasoline era, like the rest of Europe, she has leaped from medievalism to modernism, from horses to horsepower, in a decade.

Today her government spends $200,000 annually in augmenting those war-born highways. The Albanian lowlander is being stirred to road-consciousness by a law which makes him personally responsible, either in labor or money, for the upkeep of 20 feet. He was awakened, like Rip Van Winkle, to behold mail, or perishables, or building material being whisked smartly over the land.

Korea, on the eastern frontier, which falls with Scutari, Tirana (the capital) and Gjirokastra (Argyro-Castro) into the first line category of native towns numbering from 32,000 to 12,000 people, presents an interesting picture of Albania in transition. Modern buildings rise over ancient, cobbled alleys, and fortresslike walls guard occasionally glimpsed flower gardens, charming family retreats, somewhat in the Eastern style. Hay mountains, rolling along on ox-drawn wains, block Main street, to the despair of yelling chauffeurs.

Veils and Knee-High Skirts. The Moslem quarter is orientally decorous with black-veiled women. The Christian quarter is decorative with Europe's knee-high skirts, flesh-tint stockings, and bobbed heads.

Here is progressiveness in the form of an athletic instructor, the local representative of a countrywide system. And here is hidebound conservatism in the form of Albanian mamas, who regard any sport played in running shorts and followed by a cold shower as a sure road to early death.

Korea becomes transfigured every market day. Thither troop several thousand peasants, each attired in the colorful costume of his native village. They have ridden or walked for a day over the mountains, hoping to sell a few measures of grain, a sheep, a horse, at the busy mart.

The horse market, Albania's largest, is closely packed with stamping beasts and gesticulating men. Among advanced civilizations an automobile thief may possibly get a jail sentence. In more primitive Albania, where social conditions often recall those of the pioneer West, horse stealing means sudden death. Deals in Albanian horse markets are concluded under the eye of a civic official, who issues to the purchaser a certificate which attests to his bona fide "buy."

An "Open and Shut" Country. Albania's mountain complex defies adequate description. To say that the Dalmatian Alpine system prolongs itself into ranges that form three of Albania's boundaries, and that this small kingdom, not as large as New Hampshire and Vermont together, contains numerous mountain chains, is to indicate the veriest elements of her topography.

Yet it is an "open and shut" country to borrow the native name for a certain rug pattern. This consists of rows of diamond-shaped diagrams, end to end, running across the fabric. In likening it to Albania's topography, the diamonds may be said to represent her "open" spaces, while the touching apexes represent the almost "shut" defiles through which one journeys from luxuriant plain to plain.

Modern Albanians will tell you that they represent the most ancient race

A NEW PRINCIPLE IN LIBRARY LIGHTING

Residents of Winchester may well be proud of their new library, which, among its many modern features, has a lighting system entirely different in character and far superior in both appearance and quality of illumination to the general practice in library lighting.

The use of this new type of lighting is due largely to the broad vision of the building committee who desired to have this building anticipate future needs for a long period of years. As a result the two Boston architectural firms—Kilham, Hopkins and Greeley and Robert Coit, who were associated in the work of drawing up plans were enabled to design a building that ranks as one of the finest public buildings in any average sized city or town in the East.

The building is constructed of Townsend granite and follows a modern treatment of English Norman. Located in the center of a spacious plot it has the advantage of excellent daylight which filters in through large steel sash windows.

All agree that a library is used chiefly in the early hours of evening when one feels the craving for some of the latest fiction or a little biography. Students also flock to the library just as the sun is beginning to set and use the facilities for reference work in connection with their studies.

Recognizing this demand for artificial light the architects have made lighting an integral part of the building design. This has been done by using a simple modernistic treatment which has been kept free from old and freakish designs, thus combining in a pleasing and unobtrusive way the old and new in architecture.

This "built in" lighting is first noticed when approaching the entrance. In place of the usual overhead or wall fixtures which merely create blotches of light there are small vertical recesses along both side wall sections in which amber lamps are concealed by glass panels made flush with the wall surface.

In the vestibule a box type cornice reflector with flashed amber diffusing glass and 15-watt lamps on 8" centers is used. The metal frame of the reflector is of satin finish nickel and harmonizes with the chrome stair rail and vertical chrome strips which break the monotony of a plain marble surface.

One first obtains an idea of the decorative scheme on entering the delivery room. Alcoves are edged with mulberry and silver, the walls are in light gray and the stairs leading to the upper floor are in bright blue with the railing in Chinese red except for the top which is of chromium. A chromium lined continuous reflector placed above the skylight glass furnishes the general lighting and six recessed wall panel fixtures lend a decorative touch to this area.

The lighting of the main reading room is particularly interesting, the light coming from oblongs of flashed opal glass inserted in two false longitudinal beams. The lighting has been planned so as to make desk lamps unnecessary and comfortable reading is assured in any part of the room.

Another feature is the combined art gallery, auditorium and exhibition room which is excellently lighted by Kirbylite lenses using 100-watt lamps and spaced 7' apart. This room contains many works of Winchester's former and present citizens and serves as a valuable educational medium to subscribers and visitors.

Ample room has been reserved for book stacks and each aisle is equipped with several Helophane stack lighting units which make the cataloging of books an easier task on the eyes.

In the balcony are the trustees' room and rooms for the fine arts collection and music books. The children's room is in the basement with a separate entrance and is tastefully decorated with maps and pictures which appeal to youthful imagination.

The building committee under whose direction the building was constructed was composed of Ralph T. Hale, M. Walker Jones, James Nowell, Edgar J. Rich and Carl F. Woods.

Frederic C. Alexander was the general contractor; James Wilkinson and Company were the electrical engineers and contractors; Erikson Electric Company furnished the "built-in" lighting equipment used on the main floor and Bigelow Kennard & Co. supplied the other fixtures.—[Edison Service News.]

MANGANESE ESSENTIAL TO HUMAN HEALTH AND THE MANUFACTURE OF FINE STEEL

Manganese, long associated with the manufacture of fine steel, is being studied by scientists for its effect upon human organisms.

Steel mills and chemical laboratories get their supply of manganese from huge deposits found in all continents; men and animals, needing minute quantities of manganese to sustain health, eat and drink manganese in their food and water, while plants absorb the mineral from the earth, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Babies Born With Store of Manganese
Babies are born with a sufficient supply of manganese to last until they are put on a "heavy" diet, for milk does not supply the mineral. Nature stores manganese in seeds, which supply lasts until sprouts can procure their own supply from the earth. Without sufficient manganese plants will not bear fruit. In soil minus manganese, plants perish when the original supply in the seeds is exhausted. Thus, as a fertilizer, manganese is increasingly popular among farmers.

If a radio set is not of the "plug in" type, a manganese compound, hidden in dry cell batteries, helps bring the voice of the radio entertainer into the living room. Press the button on a flashlight and manganese is put to work, and if the doorbell and servants' buzzer are not connected with the house current, dry batteries, containing manganese, are utilized.

Whitens Glass But Colors Cation.

Manganese makes window glass and automobile plate glass white and clear. Most glass-making materials contain a small quantity of iron, which produces a brownish tint in finished glass. Chemical action induced by a bit of manganese causes the undesirable tint to fade. The mineral also colors glass from a pale purple to black, depending upon the quantity introduced. Manganese-colored glass ornaments adorn many American mantels.

When the home owner uses dark-hued paint, manganese may have helped to produce the color of his choice; moreover, manganese may be an element that makes the paint dry quickly. Manganese also helps produce the color in printed calico and polychrome jars.

Permanent of potash, a wood preservative, bleacher of textiles, and a disinfectant, contains manganese.

Purifies and Hardens Steel

Withal, more than 90 per cent of the manganese of commerce is consumed in the steel factory. Metallic manganese is light gray in color. The metal is not used alone, but is mixed with iron and then dumped into a vat of molten steel. It diminishes impurities in steel, rids the molten metal of bubbles that are called "blow holes" when the metal is cooled, and makes finished steel harder.

In the form of manganese-iron alloy and manganese steel, manganese protects thousands of people in a single building with a modern structural steel frame; it passes them on the city streets in the form of automobile wheels, chassis, springs and engines. Manganese steel street car wheels roll on tracks containing manganese. Many parts of locomotives and railroad cars are manganese steel and the safety of commuters is enhanced by manganese in steel rails. In the World War the mineral was a constant companion of the American soldiers in France for it was an ingredient in their "tin" hats, army tanks, and various types of armor plate.

When Nature distributed manganese she was no respecter of continents except that some regions of each continent were allotted a larger supply than others. Mines in the Caucasus Mountains are the world's greatest producers of manganese. Indian mines have jockeyed with those of the Caucasus for first position. Large deposits also are worked on the African Gold Coast, in Brazil, and in the United States.

The first manganese mine in the United States was opened in Virginia 99 years ago. Virginia mines still operate but Montana now leads in production.

Gordon Gillett is home from Bowdoin College for a few days after mid year's. He is to preach at St. James Episcopal Church, North Cambridge on Sunday morning, Feb. 7 at 10:30 a. m.

WINCHESTER YOUNG MAN SOLE SURVIVOR OF MOUNTAIN CLIMBING TRIP

Meanwhile at the Morrison Hospital, Frank H. Higgins of Kenwin road was at his son's bedside. The young man, after a night of delirium and suffering, recognized his father and talked with him during Wednesday afternoon and evening. Mr. Higgins reported him as getting along as well as could be expected and added that the doctors at the hospital are now hopeful of saving his frozen hand, though it is likely that a finger or two will have to be amputated.

The young man suffered intense pain in his frozen hand and in his feet and face which were also frozen. At times he lapsed into delirium, when he lived again his awful experience on the mountain. At his home yesterday it was not known how long it would be necessary for him to remain at the hospital.

Joseph Chadwick was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chadwick of 162 Washington street, Woburn, and besides his parents leaves four brothers and two sisters. He left school during his high school course and became an upholsterer and wood turner in Roxbury, but had been out of employment for several months. He and Higgins were close friends and both ardent walkers, having visited Mt. Washington on Columbus Day. His father, brother and two brothers-in-law, left in an automobile for the White Mountains as soon as word was received that young Chadwick was lost.

Ernest McAdams was the son of Mrs. Inger McAdams, a widow of 8 Falls road, Stoneham. He spent his boyhood in Winchester and at one time worked as a paper boy for the Star. He was graduated from Winchester High School and was an honor student in the senior class of the Tufts Engineering School where he had been recently elected to Tau Beta Pi, national honorary engineering society. He frequently made hazardous mountain trips to relax after strenuous periods of study. Besides his mother, he leaves two older brothers, Robert and Ralph, and a younger sister, Charissa.

Donald Higgins, the only member of the party to survive the rigors of Mt. Washington in winter, has been for years interested in mountain climbing and camping. He had climbed in all parts of the White Mountains with McAdams and Chadwick, the trio pitching a tent as a base for supplies on week-end trips. He was graduated from Winchester High School in 1926 and learned the machinist's trade, having been employed for a time at the Watch Hand factory.

Following is Higgins' story as he told it to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buckner at the Bretton Woods base station:

"We had climbed many of the mountains in New Hampshire," Higgins said, "and had planned this climb of Mt. Washington for several days."

"We left Winchester last Saturday, bringing a tent and plenty of food with us. On Sunday morning, about 8 o'clock, we started out, walking up the cog railroad trestle. The wind was driving in our faces and blowing snow down the side of the mountain, but we thought we could make it all right. It was below zero, too."

"The three of us were at least half-way up the side of the mountain before any of us started to get really tired. We all agreed that we had a good chance to reach the top as the bottom, so we staggered on."

"The climb was much harder than we thought it would be. When we reached Jacob's ladder, about two-thirds to the top, the wind was so strong that it almost blew us over. McAdams was the worst off and Chadwick and I tried to help him along as best we could. At last McAdams staggered and fell off the trestle. Our hands were so numb that we could not pick him up, so we groped ahead without him."

"A little farther on Chadwick fell. I tried to pull him along, but could not. It was well into the afternoon when I reached the shelter at the top. I was too tired to try to light a fire or hunt for food. I was warm with my heavy clothing and slept part of the night. This morning I felt rested and crawled down the trestle, part of the way on my hands and knees."

"We didn't have an idea but we could make the trip up the mountain and back. The three of us had made climbs in just as bad weather several times before. Had we thought the ascent would be so hard, of course we never would have started out."

"The storm wasn't so bad when we started out, although the wind was blowing hard and the mercury was somewhere below zero. But before we had gone more than a mile or two the snow swept down in our faces and the going became harder. By the time we were half way up the wind had increased until it howled and the driving snow blinded us."

"Although it was about all we could do to make progress, we were not worried. It was not until McAdams showed signs of collapsing that we became afraid. We spurred him on the best we could, and told him that we'd make it all right, but he began to lag behind Chadwick and me."

"We rested every two or three minutes, but the wind was so strong and the snow so thick that we could hardly catch our breaths. We had to shout as loud as we could to make ourselves heard. But we decided to keep on, as we knew that there would be shelter at the top of the mountain."

"It was when we were about half way up the trestle that Mac showed signs that he was weakening badly. He kept on for quite a while by himself, and then Chadwick and I held him between us and dragged him along. We gave him all the strength we could spare, but we could hardly hold our own footing. He was a heavy load and within half an hour Chadwick and I were exhausted ourselves."

"We made it as far as Jacob's Ladder before we had to give it up. McAdams couldn't stand it any further and we were so tired out that we couldn't carry him any more. When he finally slipped out of our grasp, our hands were so numb and cold that we couldn't pick him up again."

"He just crumpled and fell off the trestle into the snow. Chadwick and I staggered on. We held to each other and our strength enabled us to make quite a bit of headway. We thought that by clinging to each other we could make it. But I was weakening, too and so was Chadwick."

"Then when Chadwick seemed to stumble and wobble I felt him slipping away from me and he fell off the trestle. I tried to help him, but I couldn't."

"I stumbled along for 50 yards, thinking that he could get up and follow me, but the snow shut him out from sight and I could not see more than 50 yards in any direction. Finally I knew that he probably didn't have enough strength to get to his feet."

"I took off one of my gloves to wipe the snow out of my eyes and the wind wrenched it out of my grasp. Within five minutes my hand was numb. A little while later one of my ski straps broke and the ski was whipped into the storm. But I tried to keep on."

"It must have been late in the day when I saw the shelter on the top of the mountain. It seemed an hour before I reached it. The door was unlocked and I stumbled in. I was too tired to look for firewood or food. I just lay down on the floor and tried to get my breath. I just wanted to rest. I could not have gone 100 yards more."

"Sunday night I slept quite a while. The storm was raging as heavily Monday as it had been the night before. I tried to get back to the place where McAdams and Chadwick fell from the trestle, but I could not force myself down the mountain. The wind blew so hard I could not keep my feet to go more than a dozen yards. I tried to crawl down, but couldn't, and finally I went back to the hut to spend Monday night."

"This morning it was still snowing, but the wind had died down and I thought I could make it. So I started out."

"I was almost frozen before I reached the bottom. My left hand was limp and had no feeling at all. But I knew that if I stopped I would probably be frozen to death, so I kept on."

"All the way down I tried to keep watch for any signs of Chadwick or McAdams. When I came near the place where I thought Chadwick had dropped from the trestle I stopped and rested and tried to find him, but I could not."

"Then I kept on. I had to crawl on my hands and knees because the wind was so strong that I could not keep my feet. Then I came to the water tank, near the place where McAdams stumbled and fell. I saw a dark object in the snow. It was almost hidden, but I am sure it was McAdams."

"I didn't have strength enough to climb down and see if it was him, but I tried as hard as I could to reach the base station to give the alarm that would start out searching parties."

Summing It Up

Infinite is the help man can yield to man.

LEGION CAST SCORED BIG SUCCESS IN "THE MAN WHO STAYED AT HOME"

Running Mr. Hills a close second in all around popular appeal was Nathan Thumim in the comedy role of John Preston, the super-patriotic justice of the peace. He was the crochety, entirely likeable British retired country gentleman to the life, complete with side whiskers, frock coat, newspapers and chip-on-his-shoulder. His every movement on the stage was mirth provoking and his appearance at the closing curtain with a brown overcoat draped over an ample cotton night-shirt got the laugh of the night.

As we indicated before Dermot Townley-Tilson's Percival Pennicuk was entirely true to life and Raymond Hayward's handling of the distasteful role of Fritz was worthy of praise.

Kingman Cass gave an entirely satisfactory portrayal of Carl Sanderson, the German spy, carefully avoiding extremes in his handling of one of the play's most difficult roles. Russell Carroll, Warren Johnston and Otis Leary were convincing British "Tommyes," entering the house with their rifles on their shoulders in the British manner.

Perhaps the finest bit of feminine acting in the play was that of Ethel Goodwin as Miriam Leigh. Her handling of the difficult confession scene with Brent and Molly stamped her as an actress of much ability, an impression which her subsequent scene with Carl further enhanced.

Lucille Townley-Tilson was a charming Molly Preston, good to look at and particularly appealing in her defense of Brent from the slurs of her father and Pennicuk. Her enunciation was unusually clear, adding much to the audience's pleasure.

The Mrs. Sanderson of Pearl Miller and Mary Cameron's Frauline Schroeder left nothing to be desired while the ailments and forebodings of Anna Grosvenor as Miss Myrtle got many a laugh. Ione Dana made the white-leather distributing Daphne Kidlington sufficiently disagreeable.

The production was crammed with tense situations. Brent and Miriam at the German wireless, Carl's discovery that his instrument had been tampered with, Molly's accusation of Miriam, the Germans' toast to the Fatherland and the showdown involving Carl and Brent are a few we recall. Preston's resentment of Fritz's unwanted attention was especially funny as was his steam-engine puffing of his cigar and quarter-deck stride while awaiting his daughter, Molly.

A word of praise for the work of Harry Goodwin as stage manager should be included. Much of the smoothness of the performance was a reflection of his painstaking attention to detail. To Theodore Godwin as general chairman of the play committee much credit must be given, while the excellence of the cast was due in large measure to the skilled coaching of Frank Fowle of Malden.

Music for both evenings was furnished by the high school orchestra under the direction of Stanley Sloiminski of the high school music staff. It is of interest that one of the selections played was composed by a member of the orchestra, Charles Main, and arranged by Mr. Sloiminski. The bugler, off stage, was Henry Fitts.

High School girls included candy between the acts including being the Misses Marjorie Dolben, Peggy Marchant, Anita Wilson, Virginia Small, Ruth Dresser, Mercedes Speedie, Joan Dabney, Dorothy Fancie, Virginia Fancie, Bertha Hitchcock, Alice Welch, Cynthia Robinson and Marguerite Thwing.

P. T. Foley served as head usher and was assisted by John Cullen, Stanley Mobbs, Theodore Lawson, Newcomb Bacon, Cecil Young, Edward Boyle and George LeDuc. Kenneth Hall was in the box office.

Following is the complete cast and list of committees:

WINCHESTER MAN ADVOCATES CANAL TO BOSTON HARBOR

Mr. Edward L. Burwell of this town member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and proposer of the "Burwell Terminal" at the western end of Hingham Bay, Boston Harbor, has revived the project of the canal from Narragansett Bay via the Taunton River and the Weymouth Fore River directly into Boston Harbor. Mr. Burwell contends that this inside waterway would be available in all kinds of weather and would shorten the passage from New York materially.

Steer With Ostrich Tastes

When a three-year-old steer was slaughtered at Smithfield, England, among the articles found in its stomach were seven pounds of rusty nails and screws, a silver brooch, part of a rubber Wellington boot, part of a bowler hat, a shoe buckle and several pieces of copper wire.

STRAND ATTRACTIONS

The feature attraction at the Strand Theatre, Malden starting Saturday, Feb. 6 and running for seven days is "Possessed" in which Joan Crawford and Clark Gable have the leading roles. Wallace Ford, Skeets Gallagher, Marjorie White and John Miljan are some of the favorites in the cast. Miss Crawford is seen as a factory worker who cannot reconcile herself to the poverty and drab existence of her class. Instead, she makes the most of her charm by going to New York where she becomes intimate with Clark Gable in the role of a young millionaire with political ambitions. The love of Gable for Miss Crawford becomes a stumbling block when he aspires to become governor of his state. Joan leaves him in order that he might enter the campaign. But when at the nominating convention her name is made the butt of heckling propaganda.

As a perfect foil for this dramatic smash hit the Strand will offer for four days starting Saturday the world's greatest comedians, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in "Peach O'Reno." As the title suggests, "Peach O'Reno" is a riotous take-off on life in Reno today. This picture will only run four days and will then be replaced by five old time vaudeville acts direct from Boston and New York's leading vaudeville houses. Since the Strand started running vaudeville a few weeks ago the acts have all received an enthusiastic reception from the audiences and the shows have all been said to be the best acts ever put on in Malden.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"Ladies of the Big House" with Sylvia Sidney, Gene Raymond and Wynne Gibson as the featured players will headline the double bill that opens at the big Granada Theater in Malden on Saturday. "Ladies of the Big House" shows how women in prison suffer for their crimes. Miss Sydney plays the part of a girl who goes to prison for a crime committed by her sweetheart. The picture is quite different from the average run and has been one of the most popular attractions released this season.

"The False Madonna" with Kay Francis, William Boyd and Conway Tearle as the stars, will be the second attraction on the Saturday program. Kay Francis plays this part, that of a woman who agrees to impersonate the mother of a dying boy so that her accomplice may get him to sign away his fortune. Miss Francis, William Boyd and Conway Tearle are artists of the first rank who make their parts ring true.

"Delicious" starring Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell continue to attract record-breaking crowds to the Granada where it has been showing this past week.

"Sooky" with Jackie Cooper and Robert Coogan as the stars, a sequel to the famous "Skippy" is the second feature on the current bill.

MALDEN MYSTIC THEATRE

"The Guilty Generation," starring Constance Cummings and Leo Carillo and "Heaven on Earth" with Lew Ayers, will make up the double feature bill that opens at the Mystic Theater in Malden on Saturday. "The Guilty Generation" is the story of two families. Constance Cummings and Robert Young are the lovers. The fathers of the two are engaged in a feud over supremacy in the bootlegging racket. Their practices in attempting to secure control are anything but ethical. As a result, their families live in a constant reign of terror. The boy and girl know that it means death if either parent discovers their love. However, the climax of the story finds the lovers in each others arms. Leo Carillo is said to give a wonderful performance as one gang leader, while Boris Karloff, who played the monster in "Frankenstein" is cast as the rival gangster.

"The Squaw Man," with Warner Baxter and Lupe Velez as the stars will be the second feature on the bill for Saturday.

"Shanghaied Love," with Richard Cromwell, Sally Blaine and Noah Beery, heads the bill that ends its run at the Mystic on Friday.

Those Useless Presents

Six pairs of boxing gloves were among the wedding presents given to George Stockings, pugilist, when he married Norah Thornton in London, England. The bride had insisted that Stockings give up his ring career.

GRACE AND CHARM

By Frances Mandel

The Ways of Speech

There are two rules to keep in mind in correcting one's speech. You must first of all think clearly of what you are going to say. Then speak slowly and distinctly. There is no reason whatever why any woman should have a shrill shouting voice, the kind that we hear so often especially when she is excited. Never shout, especially when you are angry, as that is a sign of low-breeding. Cultivate your speech when you are at home with your family. With concentration and practice, you will be surprised how easy it is to acquire a sweet and pleasing tone of voice.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

For the week of Feb. 8, the Somerville Theatre has again reached into the ranks of stars, and will present one of the best known figures of motion pictures, another who has come through with flying colors on the speaking stage, Beverly Bayne. Miss Bayne, one of the most widely photographed women in the world, comes to the Somerville Theatre in one of the best of the Broadway productions, "Ladies of Creation." The play is a comedy drama of a fine type, clean, wholesome and strong. There is an abundance of the finest kind of comedy, and the strong situations are the natural outgrowth of the plot, and not simply dragged in. Miss Bayne has the character of an interior decorator of New York hence the title, "Ladies of Creation."

Without a star, the play would be successful. With Miss Bayne, it should prove irresistible. Mr. Greenleaf is at last to come into his own, and have a part equal to his attainments. The actor has not been especially fortunate since his advent at the Somerville Theatre, but has always made a great deal out of what he's had to work with. In "Ladies of Creation" he plays opposite Miss Bayne, and his delightful personality, as well as his ability, should give a fine performance.

All of the rest of the company are well cast. Charles Ray is rounding out his second week in a very successful performance of "Cloudy With Showers" with Gladys Griswold playing opposite him.

Sky Thickly Populated

If a person could count twenty-five stars a second, it would take him 700 years to count all of them in the heavens, an illustrious astronomer of the Vatican observatory has figured out. The naked eye, however, only could count about 3,000 stars; the others requiring an instrument of high power.

Announcement is made today by the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway that on and after Feb. 7 children between 5 and 12 years of age will be allowed to ride on all bus and street railway lines operated by that Company in Winchester where it has a 10 cent cash fare for grown-ups. This half rate for children has been in effect during the summer months in former years, but the Company officials explain that they intend to make it good all the year round, if it does not result in loss of revenue.

Symbol of Freedom

The seventeen bronze statue on the dome of the United States Capitol represents the Goddess of Freedom. She wears the famous helmet with an eagle's head and a long sheath of feathers on the crest. The helmet fits closely over her long curls, which fall to the waist.

LEGISLATIVE MEASURES FOR PROTECTION OF CHILDREN DESERVE CONSIDERATION
 Your support of House Bills 167 to 173 and 175 to 178 inclusive, is asked. They are of especial interest to all who believe in preventive legislation. These bills are a follow-up of the legislative measures which were sponsored by the Children's Commission and which passed last year.
 The Children's Commission was a commission appointed by Governor Allen, consisting of Theodore A. Lathrop, executive secretary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children; Herbert C. Parsons, Richard Conant, Father O'Connor and Julius Kiem. After two years of work they made a report and sponsored 32 bills which passed last year. This year the same group of men are sponsoring the above-named bills which will clarify and make possible the carrying out of last year's legislation.
 The first four bills, viz.: 167 to 171 have to do with neglected children.
 Bill 167 provides that the children of feeble-minded parents may come under the care of the Department of Public Welfare.
 Bill 168 provides that a child who has been taken into custody and is awaiting a hearing, if bailed out, shall be in charge of a suitable person or charitable corporation, or in the custody of the Public Welfare Department until such hearing. This prevents his being returned to the same surroundings which have produced his neglect or delinquency.
 Bill 169 provides care for child by Department of Public Welfare Department during appeal, again guarding the child against a return to conditions which have produced his delinquency.
 Bill 170 provides that appeals from an adjudication of a child as a neglected child shall be heard by the Superior Court without juries and legalizes present procedure.
 Bill 171 provides that trials of complaints against parents charged with neglecting their children be authorized in juvenile sessions.
 Bill 172 provides for raising the Maximum Juvenile Delinquency and Waywardness age from 17 to 18 years, raising the maximum age for commitment to the Industrial School for girls from 17 to 18 years and raising the maximum age of continuation of jurisdiction of Juvenile Courts from 18 to 19 years.
 Of nearly 3500 cases examined of offenders between the ages of 17 and 18 years of age, 95 per cent of the girls and nearly 80 per cent of the boys were first offenders. A very large per cent of the offenders were the offences of adolescence. Few of the offences could be classed as gangster offences and only one boy was tried for murder in the second degree.
 Bill 173 broadens the law relative to the prosecution and trial of persons charged with contributing to juvenile waywardness or delinquency.
 Bill 175 provides that criminal proceedings against children between seven and 17 years of age, except for offences punishable by death, shall not be begun unless proceedings against him as a delinquent child shall have been begun and dismissed. The present maximum age is 14.
 Bill 176 provides that women attendants shall be required to accompany women or girls to reformatories or prisons. At present a male attendant may accompany them. This practice is open to abuse.
 Bill 177 provides for clarifying the law relative to the jurisdiction of District Courts over certain felonies committed by juvenile offenders.
 Bill 178 provides for an investigation by a special commission of the desirability of establishing courts of domestic relations.
 Petitions to Representative Batesman and Senator Davis are available for signatures. Please sign them.

FISHERMAN'S SERVICE ON SUNDAY

Headed by "Mike" J. Marr of Marrs Camps, Indian Pond, Me., members of the great fellowship of the campfire will gather on Sunday morning in the First Congregational Church for the tenth annual observance of "Fisherman's Sunday."

The following open letter to the fishermen of the town from Charles A. Lane, who is in charge of arrangements for the service, is self explanatory, and is published because it is impossible to reach individually all those who it is believed will wish to be present on Sunday:

Fellow Fisherman: For the past 10 years the First Congregational Church in Winchester has set apart one Sunday morning each year as a Fisherman's Service. Last year there were 85 fishermen present, coming from many parts of New England, including "Mike" J. Marr from Marrs Camps, Indian Pond, Me., and he will be present again this year.

There are few men better qualified to address a gathering of fishermen than Dr. Chidley. His love for the great open spaces of the North woods and its out-door life is always an inspiration to him on these occasions. Dr. Chidley has chosen for the subject of his address "Wilderness Ways."

As usual, the flowers for the decorations of the church for Fisherman's Sunday are furnished by the fishermen and after the service these flowers are sent to the sick and shut-ins in Winchester.

The front center section of the church has been reserved for fishermen and, naturally, it is most important that I receive word at once from you of your acceptance, that I may reserve the necessary number of sittings. Please be at church as near 10:20 as possible. The service will commence at 10:30.

Your family and friends are most cordially invited.

I await your prompt response.

Sincerely,
Charles A. Lane,

POND NO. 2

There are four major swamp areas along the Aberjona River in Winchester, which are natural breeding places for the mosquito.

The first extends from the dam at the center of the town to Wedge Pond and to Swanton street. The shores of this area are nearly all owned by the town and the few remaining pieces can be readily acquired. It is for the people of the town to say when it shall be dredged and filled. Work has already commenced at the dam.

The second area extends from Swanton street to the main line of the B. & M. Railroad. I purchased eight acres of land on both sides of the stream in this area last year, and this is now either water or solid and well-grassed land. There is still some swamp land owned by the B. & M. Railroad in this area.

The third area is from the main line of the B. & M. Railroad to Cross street. The town owns two portions of land bordering the river on the East side and I purchased the remaining portion last year. I also purchased a part of the land on the West side together with rights to enter upon the shores of the West side belonging to J. O. Whitten Company, so far as may be necessary to improve and keep the stream clean after it is dredged and improved.

The fourth is the area from Cross street to Washington street. I purchased in 1927 about eight acres of this area and later sold it to the town. J. H. Winn & Sons owned the rest and the town purchased it of them at about the same time, so that this area is now entirely in the hands of the town.

The Waterways Committee has planned to dredge and fill this area this year, if the town will furnish them the necessary funds to dredge it and the Committee on the Unemployed will use a portion of their funds to grade and seed the land. This breeding place ought to be eliminated before summer, and in its place will be Pond No. 3 bordered by solid ground and green grassy banks. I sincerely hope the Finance Committee will approve the request of the Waterways Committee and the town will follow the recommendation.

However, I want at this time to call particular attention to the third area or Pond No. 2, as it is called in the map opposite Page 68 in the report of the Waterways Committee, printed in 1927-28. One part of its shores borders on the gravel bank, so-called, belonging to the town and controlled by the Board of Selectmen, a second part touches Leonard Field and is controlled by the Park Board, and I own or control the rest. The Selectmen and the Park Board have granted me permission to clean up this area if I can find the means to do so.

This is a much easier area to improve than the one above Swanton street, finished last year, because with the exception of a strip along the stream the mud is not deep and the bottom is sand or gravel, and if dredged to a depth of three or four feet will make a swimming place adjacent to Leonard Field for the smaller children of that neighborhood and a safe place for skating in winter.

What will it cost to do this work? It has been surveyed and grade stakes set and careful specifications prepared already to begin work at once. The bottom of this area will be the same grade as Pond No. 1 below. On page 67 of the Waterways Committee report, referred to above, the estimate for doing this work is excavation $26,000—engineering and contingencies $5200—total $31,000. I have a bid from responsible parties to dredge, grade, and seed this whole area, the same as was done in Pond No. 1 for the sum of $11,500, including all engineering work, the work to be completed before June 1, 1932. Or the dredging and engineering will be done for the sum of $8350 on or before April 15, so that the grading and seeding may be done by the Unemployed Committee if they have the necessary funds which are not needed elsewhere.

I would be pleased to find some public-spirited citizen who would like to do this piece of work, or if not the whole of it, to take care of the dredging and engineering and let the town men do the rest. Or if there is no man or woman who wishes to do the work alone, perhaps several could club together and so render a real service to the town. This would seem to be the time to make use of labor when men are willing to work for a reasonable price.

I would be willing to take charge of the work and see that it was done economically, if funds can be secured or I would be glad to turn it over to any one who will volunteer to look after it. If the work is to be done this year the sooner the dredging is done, the better, so that the mud may have a month or two to dry out before the grading or seeding is done. Back of this area along Leonard Field and the gravel pit many men could work all winter. Work is already being done on Leonard Field bringing the grade of those two lots down to meet the shores of the Pond so that we would then have either water or grass where now is mud, filth, and the family residence of the mosquito.

HIGGINS IMPROVING

The Star was informed last evening by Frank H. Higgins of Kenwin road that his son, Donald, survivor of the recent Mt. Washington tragedy is showing improvement and that there is good reason to believe that he will eventually recover with all his faculties. Young Higgins is still in the hospital and is suffering intense pain as the circulation improves in the parts of his body which were frozen.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL

Welcome to New Students

On Friday, Feb. 5, at the Nurses' Home of the Winchester Hospital a meeting was held welcoming the new students who started training on Jan. 31.

Members of the Training School Committee greeted the 13 girls who form this spring's class. Mrs. Stillman P. Williams, Mrs. Herbert W. Kelley and Mrs. Harold S. Fuller received the students who were presented by Miss Hilda M. Torpor, Superintendent of the Hospital.

The student nurses in their uniforms, the probationers, their parents and friends and other guests filled the living room at the Nurses' Home. Mrs. Williams spoke for the Training School Committee and Mr. Fuller, the president, spoke for the directors, welcoming these new students to the School of Nursing at the hospital.

The Glee Club, made up of the student body, sang at the opening and end of the meeting and Miss Ethel Shaffer of Boston charmed everyone by her delightful rendering of two groups of songs.

Miss Torpor, with words of deep appreciation, introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Miss Frances Ladd, Superintendent of the Faulkner Hospital, Jamaica Plain.

Miss Ladd spoke to the students of the opportunities open in the nursing profession, and of the value of a nurse as a member of society. Illustrating from her own experiences as a student, she showed her sympathy and understanding with the ups and downs in the struggle of training.

She gave the girls a feeling of the marvel and wonder they would meet in their contact with a life just beginning and a soul passing on through death.

She begged the nurses to keep up their professional training and she told of the joy that a class of eager students can give a teacher, who is always conscious of the potential possibilities in every class for future leadership and development.

In the social hour that followed refreshments were served in the sun parlor of the home to the students and their guests.

The new students are as follows:

Nadia H. Ainsworth, Reading.
Maxine B. Bowen, Berkshire, Ct.
Loretta M. Callahan, Bradford.
Barbara E. Collier, Lowell.
Mary F. Finn, Wakefield.
Norma G. Manning, Somerville.
Elizabeth C. McKinn, Medford.
Adelle Na Deau, Haverhill.
Margery Poland, Stoneham.
Marie E. Ryder, Medford.
Elmi Savchenko, Wakefield.
Madeline E. Sweet, Stoneham.
Charlotte Tonia, Brockton.

MORROW—OSBORNE

The marriage of Miss Flossie Isabelle Osborne to John Henry Morrow of Medford took place on Saturday evening, Feb. 6, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Osborne, 11 Clematis street.

Miss Osborne was attended by her cousin, Miss Reta York of Beverly and Albert Morrow of Medford was his brother's best man.

The bride wore a gown of pale blue satin and pink velvet with a blue lace hat and matching slippers. Her bouquet was of valley lilies and pink roses. Miss York was gown in pink satin and carried sweet peas with roses.

A reception for 150 relatives and friends was held after the ceremony. Upon their return from a short wedding journey Mr. Morrow and his bride will make their home at Medford Hillside.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

The engagement of Miss Anne Zueblin, formerly of Winchester, to Mr. James Forsythe of Philadelphia has recently been announced in Geneva, Switzerland. Miss Zueblin is a secretary of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom at International Headquarters in Geneva. Mr. Forsythe is studying there this winter at the Institute of International Relations. Following their marriage this summer they plan to go to Russia and settle for the present in Moscow.

Mr. Moffatt, organist and choirmaster will preside at the organ and will be assisted by Mr. Homer Humphrey, organist of the Second Church, Boston, Miss Ruth Bailey, organist of the Unitarian Church, Woburn, and Mr. John Hermann Loud of the Park Street Church, Boston. LEXINGTON HERE TONIGHT

Winchester High School, in a top tie with Wakefield as a result of its surprise win over the latter club last Friday faces Lexington High tonight in the high school gymnasium, and must win to retain its standing in the Middlesex League race.

The locals won their previous game with Lexington and have been playing better basketball than the boys from the historic town. They should win tonight unless they become over-anxious. The Stoneham game apparently cured Coach Lindemann's boys of over confidence.

Miss Velma Kelley took part in a pageant, Friday evening, that was given by the School of Design, in Providence, R. I.

LAURENCE G. HOLDEN

Laurence G. Holden of 75 Church street, a resident of Winchester for the past 20 years, died Sunday, Feb. 7, after a brief illness. He was the son of Folwell and Laura Greenbank Holden and was born in Gaysville, Vt., Jan. 25, 1872.

Mr. Holden was long identified with, and widely known throughout the Boston wool trade. After graduating from the Philadelphia Textile School he started his business career with Justice Bateman & Co. of Philadelphia.

In 1902 he came with Dewey, Gould & Co. of Boston and bought wool for them in the West, where he had a host of friends. In 1925 he retired from partnership in that firm and became wool buyer for the American Woolen Company, which position he held at the time of his death. He had a wide acquaintance in the wool business and in manufacturing circles where he was highly regarded for his integrity and exceptional business ability. He was a member of William Parkman Lodge of Masons, of the Epiphany Men's Club and the Winchester Country Club.

Mr. Holden is survived by his wife, who was Lucy S. Lillie of Philadelphia, and whom he married at Williamstown, Aug. 19, 1905. A daughter, Mrs. Nancy Holden Shattford, and a grandson, Lawrence Holden Shattford, also survive.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon in the Church of the Epiphany with the rector, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley officiating. The church was completely filled with friends and business associates from all over the country while the many beautiful flowers bore eloquent testimony to the esteem in which the deceased was held by those with whom he had come in contact. Bearers were Irving Austin, representing the American Woolen Co.; Percy Dewey of Belmont, Willis G. Kimball of Woburn, and Dr. Harold F. Gale, Christopher L. Billman and Dr. Charles W. Kelley, all of Winchester. Alexander S. MacDonald, Preston S. Cotton, Howard A. Morrison, all of Winchester, and Kenneth Hutchinson of Medford were ushers. Organ music was played by Mrs. Lena F. Corthell. Interment was in Mt. Auburn.

CHORAL SOCIETY COMMENCES WORK FOR SECOND CONCERT
The Winchester Choral Society held its first rehearsal in preparation for the second concert of its third season on Tuesday evening in the Calumet Club.

Its recent concert proved conclusively that the local society is deserving of a place in the front ranks of choral groups in New England, a position unanimously accorded it by competent critics who have heard the programs offered by Mr. Wilson and his singers in the Town Hall.

There are many Winchester music lovers who find it difficult to believe that the town boasts a chorus equal to the finest metropolitan organizations, but the Society offers the testimony of veteran soloists and musicians of high standing that such is the case.

It is with a view to bringing the Society's fine work to the attention of more local music lovers that a campaign to enroll new associate members is to be undertaken at once, the Society's directors believing that many who are now unacquainted with the high type of music being offered by this volunteer community organization will welcome the opportunity to support it.

There is still room for singers in all voices, and those interested in becoming active members of the Society may get complete information from the president, George W. Stidstone, Win. 0703.

SUSTAINED BROKEN LEG AT WINTER POND

Sixteen year old Walter Chamberland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Chamberland of 47 Water street, was painfully injured while preparing to go skating at little Winter Pond Wednesday morning.

Young Chamberland, a high school freshman, went to the pond with a friend, Joseph Cassidy. After donning his skates he started to coast on a sled down the hill in the rear of the residence of Mr. Samuel D. Cole on Woodside road. In some unknown manner he caught or fell upon his foot, breaking his leg at the ankle.

Nearby householders came to his assistance and notified the police. Chief William H. Rogers responding with Patrolmen William E. Cassidy and James P. Donaghey. Young Chamberland's injury was so painful that it was necessary to secure the ambulance of the Kelley & Hawes Co. to remove him to the hospital for treatment. His parents were notified of the accident and his father arrived at the pond in time to accompany his son to the hospital.

MISS VINSON THIRD

Competing against the premier skaters of the world in the Olympic competition at Lake Placid this week Winchester's Maribel Vinson, national champion, finished third, in the figure skating tourney.

Sonja Henie, Norwegian champion, turned in the greatest exhibition of her stellar career to finish out in front of the other contestants, just as she did four years ago. Fritz Burger of Austria was second and Constance Wilson Samuel of Canada finished behind Miss Vinson. The other American entries to place were Margaret Bennett of Minnesota, 11th; Suzanne Davis, Boston, 12th; and Louise Weigel of Boston, 14th.

WARRANT FOR MARCH MEETING LISTS FORTY-TWO ARTICLES

The warrant for the March Town Meeting lists among its 42 articles several which are likely to occasion more or less discussion before their final settlement; and, it may be, a referendum or two.

In addition to the routine articles necessary for the transaction of departmental business there are those concerned with the appropriation of $80,522.72 levied upon the town by the County Commissioners as its assessment for the new County Tuberculosis Hospital; with the appropriation of an additional sum for the completion of the work begun on the new high and junior high construction; and with the proposal to set apart a portion of the excess and deficiency account as available funds to be deducted by the Assessors from the amount of taxes required to be assessed in the current year.

There is also an article raising the question of alterations for additional office accommodations at the Town Hall and three articles covering improvements to the town's waterways, substantially between the Mill Dam at Main street and Washington street north of Cross street.

Following the article which seeks the removal of the water tower in the Symmes Park district are those seeking the construction of a recreation house at Leonard Field and the installation of "stop" and "go" lights at the junction of Main, Water and Swanton streets. Articles are also inserted concerning the appointment and removal of firemen by the Selectmen, and seeking to amend the present by-laws which govern swimming at Sandy Beach and in Wedge Pond adjacent to Palmer street.

In addition to an article which seeks the town's opinion of establishing a new method of appointment and tenure of office for the Building Commissioner and Inspector of Wires is one seeking to elect the Collector of Taxes and Town Treasurer for terms of three years. An article seeking to amend the present Building Laws dealing with material used in the repair of roofs in the first district is also included.

It is not likely that any of these articles will pass without debate and in many of them the divergence of opinion is likely to be sharp. Proponents of the movement to remove the Symmes Park Water Tank may be counted upon to wage a real battle for their objective, and it is not likely that those seeking a change in building laws with respect to roof renewal will be any less active in March than they were at the last special town meeting session when this issue aroused a sharp controversy.

There is likely to be considerable discussion of the proposal to effect certain alterations in the section of the Town Hall, formerly used by the library, and if the meeting runs true to form, the article dealing with swimming will not be lightly passed by.

Just how the meeting will react to the proposals of the Waterways Committee is problematical, but in view of what has recently been accomplished it seems likely that these articles will at least get a sympathetic hearing and careful consideration.

Those advocating the erection of a recreation house at Leonard Field may be relied upon to present a strong case as will those who seek the installation of the traffic lights on north Main street.

A resumption of the unfortunate controversy which has so harassed the town in recent years may be expected under the article seeking to appropriate additional funds for the completion of the new junior high school and the addition to the present high school building. Especially will this be so if, as persistently rumored, the amount to be asked for is over $100,000. There can be no question about opposition to such an appropriation.

DR. LINDSAY TO SPEAK

At the second Lenten Vesper to be held in the First Congregational Church, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Samuel M. Lindsay, D.D., pastor of the First Baptist Church, Brookline, will be the speaker.

Dr. Lindsay has spoken in Winchester on several occasions and always to the delight of his audience. Mr. J. Albert Wilson, organist of the church, will give an organ recital from 3:45 to 4:15, and Mr. T. Parker Clarke will sing.

The musical program is as follows:
Psalm Matthews
In Paradisum Dubois
Nocturne in D Faulkes
Solo "Great Peace Have They" Bach
Aria Bach
Requiem Dickinson
Grand Chorus Gullmunt
Prelude and Fugue in A Minor Bach

Wednesday evening shortly before 10 o'clock, police headquarters was notified that a Nash coupe, owned by Mathilda B. Barron of Lockland court, Arlington, had been struck by another car while parked on Main street opposite Black Horse terrace. The operator of the other machine dove off after examining both cars, but without making himself known. The number of his machine was secured and the police learned that the car was registered to Dana W. Kelley of 44 Terrace road, Medford. Serp. Edward W. O'Connell with a Medford Police officer went to Kelley's home where the young man admitted having been involved in the accident. He stated that he believed it unnecessary to make out a report unless there was injury. He was informed of his error and reported yesterday to Police Chief William H. Rogers. Both cars were damaged.

ROTARY CLUB

Three absentees were recorded at the meeting of Feb. 11. Three make-ups are in order.

From far away New Zealand we are informed that the two Rotarians in that district had attained the mature age of 90 years. We have no doubt that records approaching these could be found nearer home. Which, to our mind goes to prove that the average Rotarian does not grow old in Rotary. Rotary has a message for all men of all ages, and few there be who fail to react to the call. Young men are inspired by the deeds and ideals of an older generation. Older men are revitalized by the vigorous activities of youth. And throughout all is the leaven of Rotary working for the betterment of the neighborhood, the nation and the world.

As previously announced, the entertainment at this meeting was sponsored by the Vocational Service Committee.

Two reels of motion pictures were displayed with Irving Symmes at the projector and President "Church" Hines explaining the action as it developed. This presentation was entitled "The Ballyhoo Murder" and was developed by local talent, members of the Winton Club, and exhibited at the recent annual gathering of that club. We understand that Dr. Ordway did the camera work for this production.

Congratulations are due to our committee for securing these excellent pictures for our entertainment hour.

Please bear in mind that our next meeting falls on Monday, Feb. 15 and takes the form of a joint meeting with the Lions Club of Winchester, with the Lions Club acting as host. We are particularly anxious to pay our respects to the Lions Club with a large attendance, and we are not unaware of the advantages to our own club when the percentage of attendance is high. We are therefore asking each member to do his utmost to co-operate in making this meeting a success. The host club is certainly doing its part. We must not fail. Be at the Calumet Club Feb. 15 at 12:15 p. m.

Percentage of attendance, Feb. 4—93.94 per cent.

BAPTISTS IN FAREWELL RECEPTION TO RETIRING PASTOR

With great reluctance the First Baptist Church of Winchester has accepted the resignation of Rev. Benjamin Patterson Browne.

The new church building and parish house is a monument to the foresight and aggressiveness of Mr. Browne.

Although a committee waited upon him and urged him to reconsider his resignation, his commitments to the church at Holyoke prevented his remaining in Winchester.

The well attended farewell reception last evening attested to the esteem and affection in which he is held. Dr. Edward Payson Drew will preach Sunday morning on "Our Fears, Wise and Otherwise." In the evening Mr. Lester W. Kellie of Gordon College will preach.

MORE CANDIDATES LINING UP

In addition to others previously announced, nomination papers are in circulation for Harold V. Farnsworth and Elizabeth C. McDonald for Selectman, for Howard L. Bennett and Jonas A. Laraway for the Board of Public Welfare, and for Edward F. Maguire for Constable. Papers for Precinct members are out for Victor J. Ficciello in Precinct 2; for Jonas A. Laraway and Marion S. Hayden in Precinct 3; and for Joseph W. Perry and Arthur R. Donaghey in Precinct 1.

LEAKY GAS MAIN FIRED BY LANTERN

A tipped over lantern fired a leaky gas main at Palmer street shortly after 7 o'clock this morning.

Town men engaged in digging drain had tunneled under the six inch main which runs from Arlington through the west side of the town to Main and Cross streets and the local gasometer.

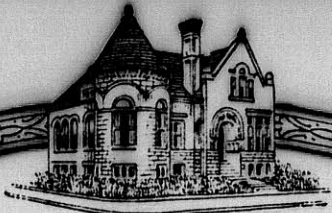

Removing the dirt from under the main caused the pipe to sag slightly and the sagging opened a welded joint, permitting the gas to escape.

When the lighted lantern fell into the trench the gas became ignited, filling the trench with flames. The Fire Department was summoned by an alarm from Box 54, but there was little the men could do except to stand by and send in a hurry-up call for the Gas Company's emergency crew.

LIONS CLUB

The dinner of the Lions Monday noon was another of those "roaring" good times, at which we were honored by guests from the Woburn and Winchester Rotary Clubs, and there was the usual good attendance of our own members. After one of Fred's sumptuous chicken dinners we had the pleasure of listening to a very entertaining and instructive talk on banking and loans by Cashier McDavitt of the Winchester National Bank, which developed into a general discussion of "credits" in which the majority of the members took part. All questions were answered in a very elucidating manner by Cashier McDavitt.

The next meeting will be a joint meeting with the Winchester Rotary Club and the speaker will be the Rev. Garfield Morgan of Lynn. Mr. Morgan is a remarkably interesting speaker and his talks are always extremely entertaining and instructive. The meeting and dinner will be at 12:15 prompt and we advise all members to be on time as Fred says that 12:15 means just that, and it will be just too bad for anyone who is late.

ENGAGED TO WINCHESTER YOUNG MAN

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Rugg of West Medford announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Hazel Rugg, to Mr. Richard Morey Sawyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Sawyer of 12 Dix street in this town. Miss Rugg is a graduate of the Posse Nissen School. Her fiancé received degrees from Lowell Textile School and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He now has business interests in New Bedford.

ARTHUR E. MACBRINE

Private funeral services for Arthur E. MacBrine were held Monday afternoon at his late residence, 12 Brooks street. Mr. MacBrine, who was the son of Mrs. Julia and the late John W. MacBrine, died Saturday, Feb. 6. He was a grain broker and had made his home in Winchester for about 10 years, coming here from Medford.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The regular meeting of the local union will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. A. W. Friend, 45 Wildwood street, on Feb. 19, at 2:30 p. m. An interesting program followed by a silver tea. Members and friends are cordially invited.

A Great Man Speaks

Less than a year before his death Thomas Edison was asked if prohibition had been a help to economic life in America; if it strengthened the industrial standing of our nation abroad. His answer was, "Yes, to a greater extent than is realized." To the question whether or not prohibition had benefited the life and welfare of the children of the nation, and whether as a result of prohibition, children are better fed, clothed, and educated, he replied, "In my judgment, decidedly yes. In support of this opinion and in this connection let me cite my experience as a manufacturer. On pay days before prohibition, hundreds of pale-faced women, shabbily dressed, some with faded shawls around their heads, appeared at our factory in West Orange. They were waiting to get some of their husbands' money before it got to a saloon. Within a year after the amendment not a single woman appeared. Surely we Americans do not want a return of this state of affairs. Undoubtedly the condition of the mother indicates the condition of the child."

Another question which was propounded to the inventor was: "Should the 18th Amendment be retained as a blessing to our American homes today and to those of future generations?" To this he replied emphatically, "Yes, enforcement is getting more practical day by day. We are attacking the large liquor manufacturers right in our midst instead of men with flasks and home brew."

State Enforcement Codes Since 1920

Nineteen states have held their prohibition laws against all attacks.

Twenty-three states have not only held their codes but have strengthened them.

Five states have repealed their codes.

One state has never had an enforcement law.

THE AUTHENTIC ACCOUNT OF THE MT. WASHINGTON TRAGEDY

In an effort to correct some wrong impressions and inaccuracies about his recent experience on Mt. Washington which have appeared in various Boston newspapers, and for the benefit of our friends and the friends and relations of the late Joseph Chadwick and Ernest McAdams, this true account is being written at Morrison's Hospital, Whitefield, N. H., by Frank H. Higgins, as dictated by his son, Donald.

"We left the base station early Sunday in clear, cold weather to go up the trestle, each of us having a roll of blankets and food supplies weighing about 15 pounds strapped to his skis, which we dragged. None of us carried any luggage. We were experienced mountain climbers and were properly equipped and clothed. The going was good until after we passed Jacob's Ladder, when a gale of wind and blizzard of snow and ice came up the mountain after us. We turned to go down but could make no headway even on hands and knees. So we turned to go ahead, and except for the intense cold, had little difficulty on the straight stretches, but on the curves it was terrible.

"We soon abandoned our packs and struggled on. First, Ernest became exhausted and 'Joe' and I helped him as long as he could move, but we could not carry him but a little way as we could hardly move ourselves. Then 'Joe' and I clung together and struggled on. 'Joe's' hand started to freeze and I gave him one of my big mittens. In five minutes my hand was numb and has been frozen ever since. It was only a few minutes and 'Joe' was done, and fell from the trestle."

(That Donald did all he could is evidenced by his delirium of Tuesday night, in which he continually called on them to "Come on, 'Joe.' Buck up, 'Ernie.'")

"I crawled on one hand and knees. I do not know how long, until I bumped into the Summit House, which I could not see."

If Donald's suffering and privation during his two day stay in the cabin alone it is not my purpose to tell; the details are too harrowing. Of the note reported found the contents as quoted were entirely erroneous. I have it and know. That ended its mission with Donald's escape from what seemed almost certain death. He will be obliged to remain in the hospital here for some time.

Too much cannot be said of the courtesy and kindness shown to all concerned by the people of Whitefield. Signed, Frank H. Higgins

ENGAGEMENT OF WINCHESTER INTEREST

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley R. Miller of Beacon street, Brookline, formerly of Winchester, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaretta W. Miller, to Herbert S. MacDonald, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. MacDonald of Uniontown, Pa.

Miss Miller made her debut during the season of 1928-29, and is a member of the Junior League. She was graduated from the Beaver Country Day School, Chestnut Hill, and is now in her senior year at Vassar. Her father served the late war Governor, Samuel W. McCall, as secretary.

Mr. MacDonald prepared for college at the Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and was graduated in 1929 from Yale where he was a member of Beta Theta Pi. He is now studying at the Harvard Law School and will complete his course in June of this year. Members of his family were among the early settlers of Western Pennsylvania and are prominently identified with its legal and banking affairs.

Last Saturday morning Patrolmen James P. Donaghey and John Murray were obliged to make a trip to Cambridge street to stop coasting on the side hills, adjoining that thoroughfare. Several narrow escapes involving children on sleds and motor cars prompted complaints at Headquarters.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF NEWS

The clothing section of the Unemployment Relief Service is functioning with high efficiency under the direction of Mrs. James F. Dwinell and her capable associates, Miss Helen Hall, Mrs. Richard A. Hull, Mrs. Olive Page McLellan, and Mrs. John A. Tarbell. Mr. W. L. Upton, in charge of the clothing section throughout the week, is operating this unit on the plan of a well-ordered modern store, under the general plans of the committee. It is a source of satisfaction to examine the long rows of carefully sized and marked shoes, men's coats, suits, sweaters, women's coats, dresses, etc., underclothing and night clothing, in considerable variety, all well arranged, catalogued and inventoried. Three thousand, five hundred and forty-four units of clothing have been distributed thus far, equivalent to one and one-sixth units for every family in Winchester. The percentage of incorrect placements is undoubtedly small. There is always, in every society, a small element who would take unfair advantage of a situation, but this must be accepted philosophically and is the invariable accompaniment of any kind of activity, whether philanthropic, business or otherwise. The fact remains that several thousand pieces of clothing have brought great physical comfort and protection to several hundred Winchester families who have been caught in the maelstrom of general business dislocation. Distribution hours are 2 to 5 p. m. on Tuesdays and Fridays, at which time members of the committee are always present. Additional clothing can be used, particularly of the weatherproof variety. Rubbers and overshoes of all kinds and sizes can be used to excellent advantage. If anyone desires to send in a cash contribution for this purpose it will be handled by the clothing committee as a special fund.

On Friday morning Winchester was well snowed in. The committee turned over nearly 100 men to the general service of snow removal. It was a quick and effective form of "thank you" to Winchester citizens. The contrast between Winchester square and its approaches as compared with the business sections and approaches of adjoining towns was very notable. It is well to be modest in this connection, but Winchester citizens will appreciate the immediate advantage which was achieved by utilizing our large and efficient force of shovelers as an adjunct to the regular force of town workmen, the combination of which made a rapid and successful onslaught on the snow accumulation. In addition to the above, 37 men were sent out on private snowshoveling jobs. Their services were of course paid for by the parties hiring them.

As this is written Monday morning the weather is rather unfavorable. A light rain and some snow is still falling but a large crew is at work upon the great accumulation of silt deposit filling the Mill Pond basin. A plank fence, which when the dam is closed will be entirely under water, is being used to hold back the deposit, chiefly of leaf mould, which is being placed to create a curving bank on the library side and opposite the high school. This can be planted with rhododendrons and mountain laurel, which will thrive wonderfully in this rich, sour soil. Such planting would make an extension of the foliage already growing on the Main street side at the Parkway corner, of which work will be an extension.

Six different crews are now at work in different parts of the Town. More details regarding this next week.

DeMOLAY HAS ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

How many Winchesterites know that we have a DeMolay Chapter representing this town? How many Winchester Masons know? A Mason's first thought for his son should be to get him into DeMolay. It is an Order that stresses thoughtful consideration towards the home; courtesy towards one's parents; loyalty to one's friends; faithfulness to a comrade; the courage of a high moral standard; patriotism and good citizenship; and stresses against irreverence of all kinds.

There are 750,000 DeMolays in the world, over 550,000 of which are in the United States. There are 35 Chapters in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts alone. Boston Chapter has the distinction of being the first Chapter formed in New England. Stoneham Chapter, of which Winchester is a member, ranks sixth in the long list of Chapters.

In 1919 Frank S. Land, founder of the Order, got together a group of nine men and initiated on that date, in Kansas City, Louis G. Lower as the first DeMolay. In the short period of 13 years DeMolay has increased to the astonishing number of 750,000.

To actuate this wonderful increase Boston Chapter has promoted a 10th anniversary celebration of DeMolay in New England running from Feb. 11 through the 13th. Three big days!

On Thursday, Feb. 11, a gala banquet was held in the Imperial ballroom at the Hotel Statler. The guests of the evening included the greatest aggregation of national, sectional and state Masonic and DeMolay leaders ever to co-operate in a DeMolay function in New England. Melvin M. Johnson 33rd degree Mason and the first active member of the Grand Council Order of DeMolay in New England acted as toastmaster. Other guests included Ernest A. Reed, Grand Master Councilor, Order of DeMolay; Frank S. Land, Grand Scribe and founder of DeMolay; Louis G. Lower, the first DeMolay; Joseph B. Ely, Governor of Massachusetts; Wm. T. Gardner, Governor of Maine; Stanley C. Wilson, Governor of Vermont; Norman S. Chase, Governor of Rhode Island; John G. Winant, Governor of New Hampshire; and Wilbur L. Cross, Governor of Connecticut.

Members and Deputies of the Grand Council from New England present were Chester I. Campbell, Norris G. Abbott, Henry See, C. M. Gardener, George F. Root, Bela Kingman and Harry M. Cheney, Curtis Chipman, Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of Massachusetts; assisted by the York and Scottish rite bodies, was one of the foremost leaders present. A menu was offered that proved very satisfactory to the taste.

On Friday, Feb. 12, an anniversary initiatory degree based on the Grand Council date records, will be worked in the Roxbury Masonic Temple, 171 Warren street, Roxbury and is open to all DeMolay and Masons. All officers participating are those that were the first Master Councilors of their Chapter and their rank as an officer depends on the date of the Chapter's institution. Boston Chapter has first honor and Stoneham, of which Winchester is a member, is to rank sixth in order, Leonard M. Daly, P.M.C., acting as Senior Steward, representing Stoneham Chapter.

On Saturday, Feb. 13, comes the grand finale, the grand DeMolay ball. This is to be the largest DeMolay ball ever held in New England and has the use of the largest and one of the finest hotels in Boston, the Statler. For music it offers the highest priced orchestra ever to play at a DeMolay function in New England. Tal Henry, known as "the Prince of Personality" and his North Carolinians, Radio, Victor record and Vitaphone artists, who are favorites at the college proms of Washington and Lee, Cornell, Bucknell, Penn State, Colgate, University of Alabama and many others. Tal Henry brings with him to Boston, 12 individual, musical artists with astonishing voices, gags, laughs in a truly Southern manner, and dance music, perfect in rhythm, dance music both hot and sweet—waltzes and Tangos supreme—that Southern atmosphere, music that enraptures every dance lover. This band is often hailed as the greatest band south of the Mason-Dixon line. An unusual offer is the probable appearance of Charles "Buddy" Rogers, guest conductor. "Buddy" is a member of the DeMolay, Legionnaire of honor, a DeMolay's highest achievement and a Paramount star. He is to be in Boston with Ziegfeld "Follies" early in February.

If you are a member of the Order of DeMolay, a past member of the Order, a member of the DeMolay Alumni, a member of the Advisory Council, a member of a sponsoring body, a parent of DeMolay, a friend interested in DeMolay, a Mason, a member of the Eastern Star, White Shrine, or Rainbow girls, you are invited to participate in this celebration.

Winchester can consider itself lucky in being able to support a DeMolay Chapter. Masons are urged to allow their sons to enjoy DeMolay dances, football, baseball, basketball and rifle teams and our annual dramatic show with the Rainbow girls. Aside from all this pleasure and relaxation for the boy there is the serious side of DeMolay, its degree teams and its duties. To Masons: DeMolay calls you to lend your ears to boys striving towards manhood to do good and be better.

WINTON CLUB STAGED ANNUAL CABARET

Several innovations marked this year's cabaret, staged by the Winton Club in the Town Hall on last Friday and Saturday evenings for the benefit of the Winchester Hospital.

First of all the show was staged on two nights instead of one and all the acts took place on the floor of the hall. Attractive silver and red screens transformed the small Town Hall into a much appreciated dressing room. Balconies and the stage were also edged with color.

Unusual features of the entertainment were a minstrel show and a clever motion picture skit entitled "The Ballyhoo Murder" written and directed by Mrs. Donald Crowell and burlesquing the activities of a group of Winchester's business establishments. Dr. Clarence E. Ordway was responsible for the clever pictures which were original and amusing to say the least.

In addition to the minstrels and cabaret numbers by favorite local entertainers. The show was staged under the direction of Frederick R. Child, Ruby Newman and his orchestra furnished the music.

Science Unable to Dim
Glory of Harvest Moon
There are countries where it is known as the Hunter's moon, tribute being paid to it for its brilliant nights in which to hunt the denizens of the wild. But the Harvest moon is the name most popularly applied to it by the Anglo-Saxon people, who for ages have regarded it as a gift divine. While science has long since explained the phenomenon, it continues to bear its ancient name in spite of erudite explanation and it will continue to be known as the Harvest moon.

There is a poetic beauty about some of the ancient folklore and beliefs that mankind is loath to part with. One of these is the Harvest moon, which sheds its brilliant rays athwart the earth in the latter part of September, investing the nights with a glorious splendor that all the wisdom and lore of science cannot dim. Nor can mankind forget the devout poetic beauty with which his progenitors invested it; and while he thinks he has grown so much the wiser, somehow he still is thrilled and enchanted by the Harvest moon that makes the late September nights so gloriously resplendent.

No other moon throughout the year can compare with the Harvest moon in point of brilliance. As long as our solar system preserves its present relations, the Harvest moon will return each year and crown with matchless loveliness the beauty of the late September nights.—Boston Herald.

Pint Was Once a "Paint"
It is only of comparatively recent times that a foot or a yard or a quart or some other measure has become standard. People of today think of them only in constant terms, yet it was not always thus. The "foot" of today was once that of the king's or some officer appointed by him. The "yard" comes from an old word meaning a rod or a stick. The "pound" meant originally a pendant. These may first have been carried around the king's girdle or that of his officer. The "gallon" was a large bowl. The "quart" means a fourth part of something, and the "pint" is really "paint" and is probably a reference to a painted mark made on the larger bowl or tankard.

Desert's Formation
The Maine desert was formed by a glacial lake or pool. Such a mass as this must have been deposited in a gradually enlarging pool or lake within the ice sheet. The Maine desert is solid and rather level on top. The smoothness of the surface may be in part due to the waves of the sea sweeping over it, since it occupies a position where it would be much exposed to the waves of the broad bay which then covered the valley of the Royal river, to the south of it.

Calumet Notes
The walls of the club will rock and tremor Saturday evening when the wrasslers start operations in the second big carnival of the season. A picked group of pachyderms will be on hand to strut their stuff and Boris Demitroff, head man of the troupe, promises an evening of action and agony.

Boris, himself, who proved in his last bout at the club with "Ball" Martin that he can take plenty, is going to strive mightily in the main bout with one Jack Albright of California, known in wrassling circles as the man of a thousand holds. Jack's last appearance in Winchester was as opponent for the colorful Count Zary-noff and he gave the acrobatic Russian plenty of competition. He and Boris should keep the customers awake.

Those who yearn to know the difference between a beef headlock and a body scissors shouldn't fail to be on hand Saturday night for Albright is going to explain and demonstrate not only the common variety of holds but also those which many a close follower of the game knows little or nothing about. Jack, as one might suppose from his thousand hold sobriquet, is well able to shed light on the various phases of applied torture used by the wrasslers and his explanations should be very interesting.

In the semi-brawl, the clever and capable Arthur Davis, whom the boys hail as "Professor" because of his long connection with the Tufts Department of Physical Education, will go to the mat with Joe Cook of Australia, well thought of by those who know their scuffling. A preliminary bout or two will be announced from the ringside and will be well worth watching. The public is invited and a mere 75 cents will be assessed to assist in covering the expenses of the show. First bout at 8 o'clock, and an added attraction Gus S. smothering, one time champion of the Bowery stable, and the man who introduced the flying headbutt, has accepted the club's invitation to be present. Now will you come?

Plans for the club's celebration of Washington's Birthday are now complete and should keep every one both gay and busy. First of all there is to be bowling all day from 10 until 6 with special contests and prizes, under the direction of Harry McGrath.

Starting at 2 o'clock in the afternoon there will be the usual entertainment for children with George T. Davidson in charge of festivities. The program includes breath-taking stunts by a magician, moving pictures and of course, ice cream.

Warren Cox is to be master of ceremonies for the evening open house, at which members with their ladies and guests may enjoy dancing, bowling and bridge. There will be good music and prizes for the cards. Plan now to be present.

Thursday, Feb. 18, has been chosen as the starting date for the annual mixed bowling tournament, always among the most enjoyable features of the club year. Teams are to be made up of three couples, and matches are to be bowled under the handicap system, ensuring both good and not-so-good bowlers an even break.

The bowling committee wants every one in the tournament and suggests that complete teams should be sent in at once. If members have no team, they will be assigned to one. All that is necessary is to send in your name along with the necessary entry fee. The usual celebration will be staged at the end of the season with the losing teams footing the bills.

Calumet took 11 out of 15 points to win its closing Middlesex League match from Kernwood at Malden on Monday evening. The locals won seven out of eight in bowling and took all three points in cards. Around the pool and billiard tables Calumet was not so good, winning only three cushions while losing cowboy, straight pool and billiards.

The hope of the club for league honors lays in its crack card combination which at present is running neck and neck with Middlesex of Arlington for top honors. Middlesex has one more match to play and can win, but on the other hand, a reverse will give Calumet top money.

Much interest has been aroused by tonight's match on the club alleys between the Fitzgerald brothers' team and Horace Ford's all stars. The latter have been getting in a bit of secret practice as a tune-up for the match and with the dark horse which "Ben" Hills is springing on the opposition expect to finish out in front. Fred Mitchell and Nick Fitzgerald opine that the later any one laughs the harder he can choke after the match. Do their laughing after the match. The Fitzgeralds, Frank Melly, Joe Mathews and Fred Mitchell comprise the "Fitzies" lineup, but we were unable to get the names of those who will roll for the Fords. There is evidently something funny in the wind, though Joe Mathews claims that the only funny thing he knows about the match is the size of the scores the Fords will total up.

Coconuts From Sea
The white man's first knowledge of the coconuts came from the sea. Early explorers, long before the discovery of America, reported finding coconuts in the ocean hundreds of miles from the nearest land. Later, on South Sea Islands, they found the stately palms that dropped the coconuts into the water.

In many tropical countries the coconut palm is the "family cow" of the natives, furnishing plentiful meat and drink.

Although spelled similarly, coconut and cocoa are entirely different. The coconut is the fruit of the coconut palm; cocoa beans come from the pods of the cacao, or chocolate tree.

No Babies Will Be Born in 1932!

IT'S the depression. There won't be any babies, and so of course there won't be any baby carriages sold. The song "My Baby Needs a New Pair of Shoes" will be discontinued. No kids will go to school, so there won't be any school clothes sold, nor books, nor pencils.

Leaky roofs will be allowed to leak; there'll be no roof patching done. Same way with shoe soles and inner tubes. In fact, things in general will just disintegrate for a while, indefinitely.

Unless someone is crazy enough to keep on selling, crazy enough to keep on telling what they have to sell.

Well we for one outfit are just that crazy; and if you feel silly, too, we'll gladly help you out with your nefarious scheme and give you a boost with an advertisement in the STAR.

The STAR has always hesitated to engage in any controversy over the campaign of any candidates for public office. It respects the individual right of choice and selection. It cannot fail, however, to condemn absolutely stories reaching this office concerning the Town Welfare Board. These stories appear to be absolutely without foundation. The STAR believes that this board functions fair and above-board to the best of its ability and judgment. In such cases as have come to our notice we have noted efficiency only. For some time there has been considerable mud-slinging in connection with the department and bad blood has been evident, and all voters should in fairness to all concerned give careful investigation to these stories and reports before casting their vote for the one vacancy. It is regrettable from every point of view that a contest over this board membership should be waged by word methods, and the STAR again urges every voter to not only weigh the ability of all candidates, but to discount any stories not substantiated by facts.

WHAT BETTER INVESTMENT?

"What will it cost to do this work?" On page 67 of the Waterway Committee Report . . . the total cost is $31,000. I have a bid from responsible parties to dredge, grade and seed this whole area . . . for the sum of $11,500 . . .

The paragraph above is an extract from Mr. Lewis Parkhurst's communication headed "Pond No. 2" printed in another column. It refers to the renovation and beautifying of another section of our river. The interesting point is the great decrease in cost from the original estimate made in 1927-28.

Mr. Parkhurst in his communication calls the attention of our citizens to this fact, signifies his intention of undertaking the completion of this much-needed improvement, and asks for voluntary subscriptions and financial assistance.

A saving of $19,500! Employment given to local citizens! The completion of a project which has been under discussion for years! The work carried on under the supervision of a leading citizen whose integrity is known to everyone and who has the welfare and beauty of Winchester at heart above all things!

What better investment may Winchester residents find to assist the town?

MR. ASSETINE HONORED

Mr. Fred W. Assetine of 7 Cabot street, president of Hill-Welch Furniture Co., of Lynn was elected a director of the National Retail Furniture Association at the third session of their annual meeting at the American Furniture Market in Chicago, Jan. 5.

This is considered quite an honor as Mr. Assetine is the first director elected for New England to this National organization which includes the entire United States.—[From Furniture Aid.

HANDFUL OF AMERICAN POTATOES SAVES LIVES OF A MILLION CHINESE

The Biblical miracle of the loaves and the fishes was somewhat paralleled in real life during the recent famine in Kansu Province, China, according to a communication to the National Geographic Society from William W. Simpson, Tennessee missionary whose son acted as guide and interpreter for Dr. Joseph F. Rock, National Geographic Society explorer.

A handful of potatoes sent from America, 25 years ago, planted and extensively propagated by Christian missionaries in this remote part of China along the Tibet border, saved the lives of more than a million Chinese when the district was ravaged by drought and famine, Mr. Simpson says.

When the first Americans and Europeans penetrated the Kansu Province, and established mission stations in Taohow (Old City), some 40 years ago they found a native Chinese potato which was small, poor, and had a very low food value. The natives of the district, with little regard for the future, had been in the habit each year of eating the best crop and saving the poorest potatoes for seed, the communication continues.

A letter of appeal to the United States brought four Early Rose potatoes from Tennessee, and these were planted in 1897, two in Taohow and two in Minchow. They grew very well and produced many tubers of fine quality in Chinese soil. The missionaries kept all that were produced the first year for seed. The next year, however, the crop was divided with the Chinese, who were taught how to cut up the large potatoes for seed in order to keep up the quality of the crop.

Boxer Rebellion Intervenes

In a few years the new variety spread to several counties of the province, which had a total population of some 10,000,000 people. But the Boxer Rebellion resulted in a recall of all the Christians from the district and while they were away the Chinese fell back into their old habit of eating all the best, and also of allowing the new variety to become mixed with the diseased older type of potato.

The flavor and food value of the potato plantings had so deteriorated when missionaries were again operating in Kansu that Mr. Simpson decided to send for fresh tubers from America. Friends in Massachusetts forwarded a mere handful of Green Mountain potatoes, which were planted in 1903. The experience of American variety helped to speed the distribution of the Green Mountain tubers, which quickly supplanted both the native and the early rose types. In the three years' famine since 1928, one of the worst famines the world has ever known, almost half the population of Kansu, and also of the Province of Shensi, to the east, have died. But where the Green Mountain potato was cultivated the larger part of the population has been able to subsist. It has been estimated that fully a million people have been living by eating these potatoes.

Ate Tree Bark and Insects

Where American potatoes had not been cultivated the people resorted to the bark of trees, roots of grass and insects. As these could not long sustain life the people depending upon them became easy victims of disease and pestilence. In a few limited areas, where wheat and rice had been introduced by missionaries, these cereals proved of great assistance in famine time. In many regions where Chinese wheat had been entirely killed off by blight the newer American varieties flourished, apparently not being susceptible to the same diseases as were the Chinese varieties.

Mr. Simpson's son, William E. Simpson, also a missionary, served as guide and interpreter for Dr. Joseph F. Rock, National Geographic Society explorer, during his search for the Mountains of Mystery in 1929, when Dr. Rock's expedition penetrated the unknown Amay! March range near the China-Tibet border.

Helped End Religious War

Six years ago, when a religious war was in progress between Mohammedans and Tibetans of northeast Tibet, this young man, then only 24 years old, acted as intermediary between the two forces and brought an end to a bitter struggle which had been conducted with great cruelty and inhuman massacres on the part of each side. Between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 people were involved in the negotiations carried on by this young volunteer diplomat, whose only commission was a roving one from American religious organizations. Having spent 27 of his 30 years along the China-Tibet border he is perfectly adapted to the climate and knows the manners, customs and languages as well as the natives of the district.

Mr. Simpson, Junior, is at present in Labrang, Tibet, the headquarters of the Living Buddha of northeastern Tibet, and the site of the largest Tibetan Buddhist temple.

HOKKAIDO: JAPAN'S FRONTIER ISLAND

Hokkaido, the original home of the "bearded lady," figured in the news recently as the scene of great and destructive forest fires. Hokkaido is a sort of frontier island—the Japanese region which corresponds in a way with America's "Wild West" of two generations ago. The island lies just north of what is known as the Japanese mainland, the island of Honshu.

The bearded lady of Hokkaido is not really bearded, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, but she sports on her upper lip a neatly tattooed mustache that reaches almost to her ears. This practice is not in effect among the Japanese women of Hokkaido. It is the habit of the native Ainu women who pay a delicate compliment to their husbands. The Ainu men do not shave nor cut their hair after a certain age, and all the grown males look like animated mops with full beards and bushy heads. The women, who are little more than slaves, simulate this hirsute adornment with tattoo and let their hair grow to shoulder length in a fuzzy bob.

People Who Never Take a Bath

The Ainu are one of Japan's mysteries. Some anthropologists have called them aboriginal Japanese but their theories do not work out. Many of them have distinctly Aryan types of faces. It is thought that they may be a remnant of some neolithic people. They are a gentle, shy and only partly civilized people, who contrast sharply with their Japanese conquerors. The Japanese are rapidly developing Hokkaido and the Ainu are now greatly outnumbered.

Most Japanese bathe daily but the Ainu does not consider himself very dirty if he goes for two months without washing his face. Many of them have never bathed. The Ainu housewife cannot be bothered washing her cooking utensils, and her house reeks with the smell of ancient fish. All the perfumes of Araby could not make attractive to the Western nose the home of an ordinary Ainu family.

Mustache Lifters and Wooden Spoons

The long beards of the Ainu men have necessitated the invention of a mustache lifter when they eat. They also use chopsticks but the women eat with wooden spoons. There are no dining room tables nor chairs, so everyone sits on the floor, which has been covered with a double mat.

The favorite viand on the menu is meat, whenever it is procurable. Bear meat is preferred but the Ainu will eat anything available—fox, wolf, ox, badger or horse. Vegetables, millet, boiled or roast fish, and herbs and roots, complete the bill-of-fare.

The "stove" is a fire set in the center of the room. There is a little hole in the roof for the escape of the smoke but from the odor of a house during the preparation of a meal, very little of it escapes. The two small windows in the houses always face east or south. The east window is considered holy, and gifts to the gods are placed by it.

No Priests or Ministers

Although they have numerous gods, the Ainu have no stable religion and no priests or ministers. When they feel religious, the village chief conducts the ceremonies. The bear is the most important god. He is the king of the forests and when a bear is killed for food, the pious natives usually follow the killing with a big funeral in his honor. The skull of the bear is placed on a palisade in the village and is revered chiefly by a slow rubbing and raising of hands. Many of the Ainu gods are propitiated with offerings of willow sticks whose bark has been whittled into clusters of shavings.

There are only about 15,000 Ainu left. Their chief diversion is drinking sake, the Japanese rice wine. This potent liquor they drink like water, for they assert that the drunker a man gets the more virtuous he becomes.

COMFORT, NOT SHOW, MARKS OLD ENGLISH INNS

Timely discovery of fire in two of England's famous old inns recently saved from destruction the Sun Hotel, in Canterbury, a 16th century inn identified with Dickens' "David Copperfield," and the George Hotel at Pangbourne. Each escaped with only slight damage.

The old English inn still has its sign out. Lacking ostentation, it nevertheless offers ample comfort to keep it a going concern despite the times, says Harold Donaldson Eberlein in a communication to the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Many a Red Lion or Green Dragon can boast of a record of active hospitality dating back for hundreds of years without a break.

Plenty of "Hidden" Retreats

The old inn is a living factor in the scheme of modern English existence. Attracted by its ineffable charm, thousands resort to it for lodging or refreshment, and most innkeepers are fully aware of the advantage they derive by preserving in their premises all the essentials of ancient character.

Now and then it happens that an old hostelry seems to be an idyllic survival from a bygone day, so invested by a mysterious, elusive halo of romance, and so hidden in some out-of-the-way corner that you can come upon it only by the barest lucky chance—a thing whose discovery you must ever afterward cherish in the lavender and rose petals of memory as an experience too rare to befall one mortal twice in a lifetime. But, as a matter of actual fact, old inns are dotted over the whole length and breadth of England.

Most of the Swans and Mermaids, the Mitres, White Harts, and Crowns, are not concealed in remote places, so far off the beaten lines of travel that they have to be made the objects of special visits to be seen. No particularly keen sight is required to discover them. Not a few of them you will find beside much-frequented highways and in country towns, where every day a constant stream of traffic passes them.

"Collecting" Inns as a Hobby
Besides all the old inns you cannot help discovering on the main roads and in the towns, there are those others, of course, on lonely heaths or fronting peaceful village greens. There are likewise modest "ordibaries" by the brinks of little rivers where the disciples of Isaac Walton love to lodge. And there are inns at bridge ends or where roads meet, to say nothing of seaside inns whose windows look out to sea or command busy harbor views.

In short, there are plenty of them of all kinds to offer an admirable field for the collector. And a more fascinating holiday hobby than collecting old inns it would be hard to imagine.

Gratifying this hobby involves no great expense; there is always the lure of wholly fresh discoveries to be made; and of variety there is no end, for no two of these venerable hostelries are alike. Furthermore, collecting inns is not a pursuit merely for dry-as-dust, antiquarian poking and prying; it is alive with human interest—full-running sap of human interest—human interest both past and present—and, if you are a close observer of your fellow men and women, you will draw from it an unfailing elixir of amusement.

Once, on the way home from Liverpool, my wife and I stopped for tea at a tiny roadside inn in Cheshire. When the waitress came along, she asked whether we would have "meat tea or sweet tea." That little inn at Tarporley and that waitress, with her naive rhyming distinction between the moles of tea-serving, have always stuck more vividly in our memories than even the kindly landlord's vast pride in showing all his antique furniture and his old Spode china.

Dick Turpin's Birthplace

Time and again you will chance upon a bit of history or romance and find the local associations with some famous personage proudly treasured by the country-golf. Think, for instance, of dropping into Dick Turpin's birthplace, the Rose and Crown, in the Essex hamlet of Henstead! Think of drinking a toast to the spot to the memory of that doughty knight of the road! His father was the Hempstead publican of that day, and the people thereabout all know Dick's story and can point out to you his cockpit, now marked by a ring of trees, just across the way, beside the stream.

Amid environments no less alluring and highly varied, you can keep company at Portsmouth with Lord

Nelson and the Duke of Wellington; at Grantham with Richard III; at Guildford with Samuel Pepys; at Chigwell with Queen Elizabeth; and at Broadway, if you like the contrast when extremes meet in the same inn, with both King Charles the Martyr, and Oliver Cromwell.

To the George at Portsmouth, famous in the unofficial annals of the British Navy, went Nelson on that September morning in 1805 for a few hours' rest after an all-night post-chaise journey to join his flagship "Victory" for the last time.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

A secret is something that not more than a dozen or fifteen Winchesterites know.

Some people here in Winchester don't vote and then go right out and tell those who have been elected how to run the town.

How many Winchester men and women remember when we gathered around the old organ at home and sang hymns? How we loved "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "Bringing in the Sheaves."

Did you know that a few months from now when the weather will be getting warmer that we'll have fashion shows right here in good old Winchester to show what is going on and what is coming off?

Any Winchesterite who argues that the death sentence exerts no deterrent influence because murders continue has no way of knowing how many men right here in staid Winchester have in their hearts the hate to kill a fellowman but are stopped by fear of the death chair.

Winchester girls are getting wiser day by day. They don't think it advisable to pay a lot of money for silk and chiffon hose. And then cover up with surplus clothes. Unless it happens they are built that way.

A parking place has become the goal of some men in and out of Winchester—in fact, it has become the goal of the majority of car owners in 1932.

We saw an inebriated fellow near the Woburn line the other day and the thought occurred to us that the man who gets drunk is the one who makes prohibition look ridiculous.

'Tis hard to say what will happen after awhile. Our Winchester girls are wearing less and less just to beguile. Not a paragraph would not tell you a naughty fib. But all skirts soon will be a bit. Our Winchester girls won't be wearing much except a smile.

We agree with that preacher who wants to know when civilization is going to begin.

United States Poll Tax

In the United States in the pioneer days every citizen was required to perform a certain amount of work gratis on the roads. That was an economic necessity in a new country where dirt roads were the only avenues of transportation. Later the system was amended so that those who did not wish to perform that sort of work could pay a certain amount in lieu thereof. That was known as the poll tax.

Helping Labor

The savings that people invest in co-operative bank shares are put to work, well safeguarded, right here in this community.

The funds are lent for home building or home improvements, and this means more work for carpenters, masons, electricians and painters.

The co-operative bank is helpful to the borrower, generous to the saver, and beneficial to the community in general.

Fur Farming Old Idea

The keeping and breeding of animals for their fur is one of the oldest occupations. The Chinese have farmed goats and dogs for an unknown number of centuries, using the flesh of the animals as food, and their skins, fur or hair-covered, according to species, for the purposes of trade. If one considers the sheep as a fur-bearing animal, the inception of fur-farming is lost in the mists of antiquity. mh12-4f

"Rags" Own Signature

In the Imperial War museum at London is the first book probably to contain the signature of a dog. It found its way there because it was the war record of a dog named "Rags," which was unofficially attached as mascot to the First division of the United States army. The animal was picked up in Paris and taken to the front. It eventually figured in the casualty list. The size of the book and its binding suggest that "Rags" played the hero's part, and was many times (unofficially) "mentioned." When the book was printed the division was specially paraded at Fort Hamilton to witness the signature of "Rags"—the print of the dog's paw. Half a page is generously allotted to it. mh12-4f

LIAONING, RICHEST MANCHURIAN PROVINCE

Movement of Japanese troops in the direction of Chinchowfu, shifts Manchuria from the province of Heilungkiang, in the north, to the southern province of Liaoning, also known as Fengtien, Shengking, or Mukden province.

Liaoning or whichever name one chooses to call it—province is the smallest but richest division of Manchuria, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. With more than 15,000,000 inhabitants it is by far the most densely populated part of China's easternmost territory.

In Several Ways Comparable to Illinois

In several ways the province might be compared to the State of Illinois. Liaoning has about the same area, some 56,000 square miles; it extends over latitude only a little farther north than Illinois; its climate is comparable, although the winters are a little more severe in the Manchurian province; each contains rich beds of coal; each has a busy railroad network; and many of the agricultural products are the same. At least half of Liaoning is a vast level plain, which in its undeveloped state, resembles the Illinois of a hundred years ago.

Mukden, a metropolis of almost half a million people, is the capital and chief city of the province, and the nominal capital of all Manchuria. China recently set up a temporary capital in Chinchowfu, but Mukden has remained the administrative center of Japanese influence, which now includes all but the southwestern corner of Liaoning.

Mukden is really three cities in one. Modern Japanese business and residential blocks surround the railway station where the traveler from Chosen (Korea), or Dairen, or Peking alights. Bus lines and taxicabs take the tourist through the European quarter to the gates of the high-walled Chinese city two miles away. Japanese, Russians and Chinese meet but do not mingle. Each nation has a city of its own.

Relics of Mukden's Historic Past

Only a few tombs of Manchurian rulers and the huge palace of Genghis Khan remind one of Mukden's past. Modern Mukden is wholly absorbed in trade. Lying in the center of a rich agricultural plain, it forms the meeting point of several busy trunkline railroads. The Japanese section of the city offers a splendid example of colonial efficiency. Streets are broad, straight and paved. There are hospitals, schools, police stations, electric lights, telephones, movies, and fine stores and shops. Over the railroad station is an excellent European style hotel, complete with brass beds and tile baths.

Around Mukden lie the richest and most highly developed sections of the province of Liaoning. Twenty-two miles east of the capital are the bituminous coal fields of Fushun, one of the largest coal pockets in the world. Fushun has been made a model colliery town, with well-built homes for workmen, and its mines, mostly open-pit, are equipped with the latest American machinery, 82 miles of electric railway, extensive coke ovens, and gas and electric plants. Oil shales and iron ore are also found in the vicinity. In the Anshan district, south of Mukden, a large iron and steel works is operated by the South Manchurian Railroad.

With some of the finest agricultural land in the world the province of Liaoning naturally is a leader in farm products. Much of the 221,000,000-bushel Manchurian crop of soy beans in 1929 came from Liaoning. Other cereals, such as millet, sorghum, and kaoliang (a coarse maize) are raised in large quantities. In Mukden and other cities of the district large mills press soy beans into huge cakes for export, or convert them into industrial alcohol.

Source of Pongee

In the eastern part of Liaoning, on the Yalu River, the city of Antung is a lumber and silk center. The lumber is floated down the Yalu River and picturesque caravans bring in the tussah, or wild silk cocoons, from which pongee is made.

Southwestern, and south-central, Liaoning are the most important fruit-raising districts in the Orient. The pears and grapes of this part of Manchuria have both a fine aroma and flavor, and find ready markets in both China and Japan. Around the mouth of the Liao River, which flows southward through the heart of the province, American upland cotton has been grown successfully. The region is no rival of the Nile or Dixie but it produces enough fiber to meet local demands.

During the winter months Liaoning carries on a busy trade in furs. Buyers from the New York and St. Louis fur houses bargain with traders from the north for all sizes and grades of skins from dog to marten, and from Siberian squirrel to Manchurian tiger.

THE INDUS: THE NILE OF INDIA'S "RIVER-RIVER LAND"

The mighty Indus River has been "harnessed."

Recent dedication of a $75,000,000 dam near Sukkur, India, transforms some 5,000,000 acres of arid plains of northwest India into potential farmland. Karachi, famous stone-over and fueling station for Europe-Asia-Australia air pilots, has hopes of having its docks piled high with bags of rice, cotton bales, and wool products for export.

Already, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, the Indus has served India's teeming millions as one of Nature's own mightiest irrigation systems.

Nature's Irrigation Systems

Lay your hand, with fingers outspread, flat on the table before you, and your five fingers will be the tributaries which give Punjab its name, meaning "the land of five rivers." These five great rivers unite in the wrist, which is comparable to the Indus proper, and then they conveniently spread again into a delta, fertilizing a broad span of coast as do the Nile and the Mississippi.

And whence comes this vast volume of water? From Nature's greatest reservoir— from India's northern mountain barrier, the Hindu Kush range, the Pamir, the west Himalayan range— which collects the moisture out of thin air by the tons, stores it up in the form of snow and ice, and filters it down through the Indus, and all across the Indus-Ganges plain which, otherwise, would be as dry and desolate as the Sahara.

The effect of the Sukkur dam is to add to this India prime region an arable area the size of our State of Massachusetts.

In the dry season, the Indus is the only source of water for millions of acres of land which are irrigated by a network of canals.

Then, in March and April, when the warm spring sun melts mountain snows along its upper course, the swollen stream releases an increased volume of water which overflows its banks, drenching adjacent lands and depositing new layers of rich soil.

Often the melting process has been so sudden that the stream becomes a torrent, sometimes changing its twisting course, in its rush to the sea. Whole villages have been swept from its new path, soil has been stripped clean from thousands of acres of fine farm land, and villages near its old course deserted to parch in the hot desert sun.

Level Rises 50 Feet in Gorges

A few years ago, the swollen Indus weakened the walls of a mountain canyon, causing them to crumble and dam the stream. The sheer weight of water finally burst through the barrier, turning loose a wall of water that wreaked havoc in the plains below.

The Indus winds northwestward from its source in the Himalayas to a point near the town of Gilgit, one of the principal mountain steps of the Citroen-Haardt Trans-Asia Expedition with which the National Geographic Society is co-operating. Then it veers southward to the Arabian Sea across the plains of the Punjab and Sind Province.

In the mountains its torrent tumbles through deep gorges in the shadow of some of the world's highest mountain peaks. In flood time travelers have seen the river rise in gorges to upwards of 50 feet.

In its 1700-mile course, the river drops about 18,000 feet. About 16,000 feet of that drop takes place in the first thousand miles, which are in the mountains. Even when the river passes into the plains, it flows for many miles at the rate of more than six miles an hour.

The Indus of the plains flows in a bed ranging from a half mile to a mile wide. The tide is felt for only 80 miles from its mouth but small boats can navigate its channel almost to the foot of the mountains. At normal times it contributes about 41,000 cubic feet of water per second to the Arabian Sea. In flood times, ten times as much water flows through its delta.

Origin of Weathercocks

Andronius of Cyrrhus, a Greek astronomer of about 100 B. C., built at Athens a tower of winds; a brazen teuton on the summit turned around with the wind. From this model was derived the custom of placing weathercocks on steeples. According to some authorities, the cock was used in order to remind the clergy of watchfulness, the thought being derived from the cock's crowing when Peter denied Christ.

Famous Painting

"The first Thanksgiving in America" was painted by Jean Leon Gerome Ferris of Philadelphia. It is one of his series of more than 70 subjects from American history, housed in Congress hall, Philadelphia, in a gallery built for that purpose in 1917 by the city of Philadelphia.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

Beverly Bayne made a fine impression on the theatregoers of Boston and its environs last week. Out of town patronage was very large and the play, "Ladies of Creation," with its whimsical comedy and delightful characters, proved a fine vehicle for the beautiful and talented actress. Ramon Greenleaf had the best part of his career at the theatre, and proved himself a splendid leading man, one with a fine sense of character and comedy.

Gladys Griswold was a delight in her role. Malcolm MacLeod gave a performance in perfect keeping with his record here. "Billy" Dale, Frank Thomas, Elinor Reid and all the other favorites of the company gave fine support to Miss Bayne. The play is wholesome and clean, and was selected for the star by Mr. Luttringer. The clientele of the theatre has given Miss Bayne such a fine reception, artistically and with such splendid financial support that she has been induced to remain for a second week.

After a great deal of play reading, "Skidding," a comedy with a fine Broadway and Boston record, was selected. It is a splendid play in every way, particularly suited to the needs of a stock company, inasmuch as all of the personnel are provided with fine parts. Ramon Greenleaf, Billy Dale, Frank Thomas, Frank Farrara, Gladys Griswold, Elinor Reid, Elinor Reid and Jack Kingston are all well cast. All under the expert direction of Al Luttringer.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

Six of the most popular stars on the screen appear on the double bill that opens at the Granada Theater in Malden on Saturday. "The Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" with Fredric March, Miriam Hopkins and Rose Hobart, is one of the attractions. "Strictly Dishonorable" with Paul Lukas, Sidney Fox and Lewis Stone is the second feature on this special program which is the first of a series of all-star bills which will continue throughout the next two months.

Fredric March as the famous Dr. Jekyll and equally infamous Mr. Hyde gives the finest performance of his career. His change of character from the quiet and kindly Jekyll to the terrifying Mr. Hyde, a change which takes place before the audience's eyes, is a thrill not soon forgotten.

"Strictly Dishonorable" sets a new record for deliciously sophisticated comedy-drama. Paul Lukas is well cast as the Broadway celebrity, Sidney Fox is the little Southern girl on her first trip North who is fascinated by the suave and sophisticated Mr. Lukas even though he tells her frankly that his intentions are "Strictly Dishonorable." Lewis Stone as the Southern judge who likes to get pleasantly "jangled" each evening gives another of his great performances.

"Ladies of the Big House" with Sylvia Sydney as the star, heads the bill that ends its run at the Granada on Friday. "The False Madonna" with Kay Francis and William Boyd as the featured players is the second attraction on the current bill.

MALDEN MYSTIC THEATRE

"X Marks the Spot," a thrilling drama of newspaper life, with Lew Cody, Wallace Ford, Sally Blaine and Mary Nolan as the stars, will head the double bill that opens at the Mystic Theater in Malden on Saturday. The story revolves about a tabloid columnist on a Metropolitan daily. Before reaching this high spot in the sun, while a kid reporter, he borrows a sum of money from a gangster. Years later the reporter discovers that the gangster is a murderer. Remembering his debt to him the newspaper man attempts to help the gangster to escape the police.

"Her Majesty Love" with Marilyn Miller and Ben Lyon supplying the romance and W. C. Fields, Ford Sterling, Leon Errol and Chester Conklin supplying the comedy, will be the second attraction on the Mystic bill for Saturday. With such an excellent cast of troupers "Her Majesty Love" could not fail to be sure-fire screen entertainment. This picture has a bit of everything, romance, comedy, dancing and musical numbers.

"The Squaw Man" ends its run at the Mystic on Friday. "The Guilty Generation" with Constance Cummings and Leo Carrillo as the stars, is the second attraction on the current bill.

American "House of Commons"

The national government never has had a body called the house of commons, but in the early history of North Carolina the lower branch of its legislature was so called.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

Will Rogers dressed in a boiled shirt, as the backwoods American ambassador attached to an etiquette-ridden European court! Such is the guise in which we see the famous comedian in "Ambassador Bill" his latest picture, opening at the University Sunday, as an envoy whose first diplomatic act is to suggest that they call off a special presentation because the queen has "hurty feet!" "Ambassador Bill" is a perfect "hit" for the famous reporter-actor due to the fact that it allows him to "be himself."

"His Woman," the companion feature, co-stars Gary Cooper and Claudette Colbert.

The screen version of "Private Lives," Noel Coward's smart comedy, will open Thursday. Norma Shearer and Robert Montgomery are co-starred in the production in the roles played by Noel Coward and Gertrude Lawrence. Prominent supporting roles are filled by Reginald Denny, Una Merkel and Jean Hersholt. This delicious farce, which depends almost as much for its humor on its amusing dialogue as its riotous action, concerns the diverting complications which arise when a divorced couple make another try at marriage with fresh partners and find themselves sharing adjoining suites on their second honeymoons.

A new Douglas Fairbanks is making his bow to the public in the companion feature. Long the popular exponent of make-believe adventure on the screen, "Doug" at last has taken his love of thrills out of the realm of fancy and into the strange byways of real life. His latest film, "Around the World in 80 Days" with Douglas Fairbanks is a record of adventures which no scenario writer spun for him from imagination. It is a record of the star's actual experiences on a trip around the world.

WINCHESTER WON FROM WAKEFIELD

Knowlton's Long Last-Minute Basket Decided Issue

Those who laughed at Winchester's promise to win its Middlesex League basketball game with Wakefield last Friday evening were forced to revise their opinions as the result of the 20-19 victory over the circuit leading invaders in the high school gymnasium. A big crowd saw the battle which was backed with thrills and any one's game up to the final minute of play. The win gave Winchester a tie with Wakefield for the top rung of the Middlesex League ladder.

Coach Lindemann's charges went right after Wakefield from the opening whistle and had a 6-3 advantage at the end of the first quarter. At the half, however, the visitors were leading 9-8 as the result of some fine sharp shooting by Burbine, their classy guard.

Following half time, Winchester staged a come-back and had an 18-15 advantage as the final quarter got under way. The big crowd was wild with excitement as Wakefield once again surged to the front and held a 19-18 lead with but a minute to play. Several times this season, Coach Lindemann's boys have won out in the closing seconds of play, but never in more spectacular fashion than last Friday. It was Hal Knowlton, great little football halfback, who turned the trick for Winchester. Replacing Noble, as guard and with the battle nearly over he caged a pretty floor basket from mid-court to give the locals the game.

Philbrick was Winchester's ace and the game's high scorer, tallying three times from scrimmage and four times from free tries for 10 points. The locals were outscored from scrimmage but made six of their foul shots good while Wakefield could sink but one of its free tries.

Between the halves of the first team game the Winchester seconds continued to mow them down, defeating the Wakefield Jay-Vees, 15-6. The summary:

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Saturday, Feb. 6, the Bugle and Drum Corps committee, Mrs. Alton Jackson, Chairman; Mrs. John Phelps, Mrs. Albert Wilson, Mrs. Frank Kelley, and Mrs. Truman Godfrey held a successful winter day at "The Cabin." About 150 Scouts enjoyed skiing, tobogganing, snow-shoeing, sliding and building forts. Mrs. Russell G. Mann had charge of the candy table. Mrs. George Stidstone, with a very fine equipment for first aid, donated by Dr. and Mrs. Jackson, was on hand to meet any emergency. It was a glorious winter day and enjoyed by all. Taps were sung and the flag lowered at 5 o'clock. Captain Parker was in charge of games.

Monday, the 8th, the Corps played at the Fortnightly Club and members were most enthusiastic with their praise of the music.

The February Council meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Walter Wadsworth, Wednesday, the 10th, with 14 members present. It was voted to hold a tea-bridge at Mrs. John H. Joy's home in March; date to be announced; also an afternoon tea for parents of Scouts, Captains and Council members in the late season, at the Cabin, the Troop committee chairman, Mrs. Paul Howard and her committee having charge.

June is a little far off, but all who attended the breakfast last year in the Unitarian Church, given by the Scouts, will be glad to know it is to be considered this year.

Winchester Scouts are to give the play, "She Serves Also," for the Metropolitan Older Girls Conference in Lynn, Saturday night, at the English High School. The play was written by Mrs. Paul Dutton, and is being coached by Mrs. Clifton S. Hall. The characters are being portrayed by Alice Welsh, Mary Elizabeth Hall, Anita Wilson, Martha Hill, Eugenia Peppard, Annette Randlette, with Jean Phelps acting as announcer.

The six delegates to the convention, Jean Hinkins, Nancy Jackson, Rosamond Robb, Margaret Millican, Margaret Plumer and Gladys Moulton, will leave early Saturday morning for Lynn, and remain until after "Scouts Own" Sunday.

Have you noticed the publicity in all the Boston papers regarding the Lynn conference? Our own Scout, Virginia Besse has written, and has had charge of all these news articles. We salute Scout Besse in acknowledgment of the splendid way she has handled the work assigned her by the committee.

ALL SCOUT CONFERENCE

Representatives of all the Girl Scout Troops of Metropolitan Boston will hold their 6th Annual Conference Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 13 and 14 in the New English High School at Lynn. More than 300 Scouts will assemble to discuss "Service" as a subject of vital interest in the home, the community, the nation, the world. Influenced primarily by the economic depression, and prompted by the fact that Service is one of the chief motifs in the Scout Laws, Promise and Motto, the Scouts have chosen this as their main theme. Service is the national watchword of the Girl Scouts this year.

The first session will open at 8 o'clock Saturday morning with the registration of delegates, followed by a period of community singing, which will be led by Miss Polly King of Melrose. At 9:30 o'clock Miss Barbara Cherry, chairman of the Conference, will extend a welcome to all, and introduce guests and delegates of the Eastern and Western divisions of Massachusetts. Miss Elizabeth Hodgson, the vice-chairman, will give a short resume of the aims of this conference, and at this time it will be dedicated "To Those Who Serve."

She will then introduce Ruth Salter of Arlington, the first speaker of the morning, who has chosen as her topic, "The Definition of Service, and Service of Yesterday." Other talks will include "International and National Service" by Ruth Newton of Malden, "Service as Shown in the Community and Institution" by Sally Kimball of Lexington, "Service by the Individual as a Training School and the Means of Applying Service," by Pearl Berger of Roxbury. Following each talk there will be an open discussion on these subjects in which the delegates will participate.

After luncheon which will be planned by Mrs. Sarah Lynch, the school dietitian, a recreation period will be enjoyed, followed by the afternoon session from 2:30 until 4, consisting of round table conference groups which will discuss ways in which Scouts may serve. At 4 o'clock the groups will meet in the main hall to report on what they have done. After a short talk by the vice chairman on "What Service Should Mean to You," the meeting will adjourn until the evening at 8.

To the general meeting Saturday evening, the public has been invited. Swampscott's Drum and Bugle Corps will open the ceremony, after which, Winnifred Turner of Quincy, who was chairman of the conference at Malden last year, will speak on "Juliette Low and her Personality." An appropriate play entitled "She Also Serves" will then be presented by a group of Winchester Scouts. This was written especially for the Conference by Mrs. Dutton who has written many plays for Scouts. Mrs. Elizabeth Hall of Winchester has been coaching this play.

The highlight of the evening session, however, will be Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, nationally known consulting engineer, director of courses in Motion Study and the Study of the One Best Way to do Work, who is also a member of the Board of Directors of the National Girl Scouts. She will speak to the delegates on the subject of "Efficiency in Service." At about 9:30 taps played by the State Bugler, Elizabeth Hovey, will bring to an end the Saturday evening session.

The conference will close with a "Scout Own" service which is strictly non-sectarian. This will be held on Sunday from 3 to 4:30 o'clock. Miss Helen Potter, state director, is to be the guest speaker.

Among the invited guests are Mrs. Herbert Hoover, honorary president of the Girl Scouts; Mrs. James J. Storrow of Lincoln and Boston; Mrs. Frederick Edey, National President; Dr. Lillian Gilbreth of Montclair, N. J.; Mrs. Joseph Merritt, regional, New England director; Mrs. Frances J. Sill, commissioner of Eastern Division; Miss Helen Potter, state director; Mrs. Sargent H. Wellman, commissioner of Massachusetts; Miss Edith Sinner; Miss Ruth Stevens, associate director of the Trail Maker and director of the first National Training School.

Those on the executive committee assisting the chairman, Barbara Cherry, are Vice Chairman Elizabeth Hodgson of Wellesley; Chairman of Registration, Virginia Ewart of Newton; Chairman of Publicity, Virginia Besse of Winchester.

Heading other committees are: Housing, Dorothy Swain; Transportation, Marcia Smart; Luncheon, Ruth Leonard; Hospitality, Marian Sanborn; Correspondence, Miriam Cutting, all five of Lynn.

Incidentally there will be a display of the Scout Shop at the high school during Saturday. This shop is located at 143 Newbury street, Boston, and is the headquarters for Girl Scout equipment.

Winchester is sending as delegates to the conference Jean Hinkins, Nancy Jackson, Margaret Millican, Gladys Moulton, Margaret Plumer and Rosamond Robb.

MALDEN STRAND ATTRACTIONS

The hero of "The Big House" plays the father of "Skippy" in a combination that is really an event of the screen season. Wallace Boery and Jackie Cooper appear as two stars in a single picture in "The Champ." M.G.M.'s dramatic romance of sporting life and the human angle behind it, which will be the feature attraction for seven days starting Saturday, Feb. 13 at the Strand Theatre, Malden. Primarily it is a mighty drama of the love of a father and his son. A notable cast appears in support of these two great stars. Irene Rich, an old favorite, plays the divorced wife of the fighter and Roscoe Ates and Edward Brophy form a comedy team as the fight trainer and manager.

On Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, only, the Strand will present as a second attraction "Under Eighteen" featuring a girl who has risen to stardom in less than 12 months, Marian Marsh. "Under 18" is the title of her first starring production. Marian's portrayal of the wistful, wilful and tantalizingly lovely climber in "Under Eighteen" more than fulfills the promise of her earlier roles. On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday the Strand will present another of their great vaudeville shows, which have been acclaimed by those who have seen them in the past few weeks to be the best vaudeville they have ever seen.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE MEETING

The Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League will hold a meeting Thursday, Feb. 13, at the home of Mrs. George H. Grey, 3 Ridgely road, Northeastern University and Mrs. Sanderson of the maternity home in Brighton will be the speakers of the afternoon. Jane Hill, one of Winchester's own favorites will be the afternoon's soloist. Tea will be served.

GRACE AND CHARM

By Frances Mandel

DAINTINESS

Every woman wants to hold some man's love, whether he is husband or sweetheart, and the first requisite is daintiness. Daintiness in a woman is so important. It gives you the power to arouse favor. Men can't resist you when you are sweet, fresh and wholesome. All this especially applies to the married woman. So many neglect themselves after marriage. Why is it that after marriage they appear before their husbands in dirty dresses, hair uncombed and face not powdered and rouged. No husband want to see the girl he was proud to marry look slovenly. He wants everyone to envy him and admire his wife.

Don't neglect yourself, not for one moment. Never permit yourself to become untidy. Keep yourself dainty, sweet and lovely always. Use your powder and rouge often. Take the utmost care of your hands. Have new clothes as often as possible, and always keep old costumes pressed and clean.

If every woman would follow this good advice, she would never need worry about holding the love of her husband, sweetheart, or friends.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

LINCOLN PLAYERS

An Appreciation from the Covenant Club, First Unitarian Church, Woburn

My dear Mr. Rice:

Truthfully, words cannot begin to express our appreciation for what you and your orchestra did for us last Thursday evening. I am sure you would feel at least partially repaid, however, if you could have heard all the nice reports of your concert that I have heard. If my assurance means anything to you, you may feel that your concert was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone and was the means of making our annual Covenant Club night, as reported by many, "The best ever known."

When I speak of "good reports," these apply to the orchestra as a whole, also your soloists—those vocal solos so nicely rendered by Miss Joy Adriance—that wonderful violin solo by Mr. Jones. (Mr. Jones by the way is a patient at the U. S. V. Hospital at Bedford who is interested in the Lincoln Players and enjoys playing with them when possible) the trumpet solo, the trumpet duets, all of which were of the highest class.

I hope that next year we may be able to make arrangements with you to bring your orchestra and soloists to our church under the auspices of our Club for a full evening's concert.

I wish it were possible to thank every one individually for his help in making our evening a success, but this being out of the question, I do hope you will convey to each member of the orchestra and to Miss Adriance our sincere appreciation and heartfelt gratitude, keeping a generous share for yourself, for all you and they did for us.

Most Sincerely,
Chas. W. Wood, Sec.

Compulsory Soldiering

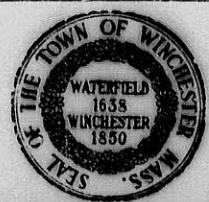

After 1815 Prussia made permanent the system of a compulsory short military service. Every young man at twenty years of age became a soldier for three years and was then dismissed with liability to be recalled in case of war at any time until the age of 36 years. The system afterward was copied by almost all European states except Great Britain.

Paquette of Richardson street. The Chevrolet was damaged but the truck was unharmed.

Kenerson of 14 Brooks street. Both cars were damaged but no one was reported as injured.

Finance Committee members are constantly striving to keep down the tax rate, and never more than in this year of financial woe. As a consequence committeemen are apt to become a bit preoccupied as they wrestle with budgets and appropriations and it was in such a state that one of the committee was driving to the Town Hall for a meeting this week. He had just thought of a frisky scheme to make the tax rate drop, when to his great amazement, something actually did drop from the top of his car to the hood of the machine. With a start he peered forward and found to his surprise that a cat which had evidently been asleep on the top of his car had waked up and decided to get a bit lower in life, possibly to avoid some underslung branches. No harm was done, aside to the feline's dignity, except that the incident drove entirely out of the committee-man's mind the excellent scheme he had evolved to lower the town's taxes.

Locke of 10 Smith avenue, Reading, while going east on the Parkway at 8:18 Tuesday evening was in collision with a Nash sedan, headed north on Washington street and driven by Hollis H. Spaulding of 2 Lincoln road, Woburn. After the collision which damaged both cars, the Essex turned on the icy road striking a Winchester man who had just crossed the street. The pedestrian told the police that his back was injured and Locke's wife and 10-year old son who were riding with him also claimed injuries. Spaulding said that he was unhurt.

The Selectmen have received from the Department of Public Safety the report that the Town Hall is in good condition.

For 25 years he was a member of the Calumet Club, taking an active part in its affairs and in the social life of the community until failing health made further participation impossible.

He is survived by his wife, who was Mary E. Nickerson of Somerville, by a daughter, Mrs. George W. Smith of Winchester, and a son, Edwin W. Southworth, Jr. of Worcester.

I AM A REAL CANDIDATE FOR OUR PUBLIC WELFARE BOARD

Winchester, Feb. 17th—My 61st Birthday—Some Old Boy

To say the least I was surprised to read the very misleading remarks in last week's Star. Everybody knows, from the paper boy to the most distinguished highly paid Winchester official, that our Welfare Board is worse than our Water Board as far as harmony is concerned and while a young man, Mr. Editor, you must know, where there isn't harmony it's next to Hell or worse. Now, I believe the unfortunate of Winchester should be shown some courtesy. I know from personal knowledge some are not receiving as much courtesy as a stray dog would get from a dog hater. Why?

Now I am not seeking glory or graft, "I need neither." I have been accused of being a "dummy" for both candidates. I am not. I will go through no matter who is sponsoring either candidate. When Mr. Deposed Chairman is right I'll be with him. When the present Chairman is right I'll be with her, but I won't stand for any one class or nationality getting all the relief.

I think I know Winchester's deserving as well as any one in town. If you think I'll be fair, vote for me; if not let the row go on.

Yours truly,
J. A. Laraway,
310 Main Street,
Winchester.

41 years day and night in Winchester. "So long Voters."

No trust or combination is or ever did solicit votes for me—J. A. L.

Scouts who were in camp last summer will know what this means.

COMMUNITY SERVICE COMMITTEE OF THE FORTNIGHTLY

WINCHESTER MUSICIANS AT SALEM

A chamber concert was given at the Essex Institute Course Monday evening with the following Winchester players participating:

Mr. Joshua Phippen, piano and cello; Dr. Oscar E. Wasgatt, violin; Mr. John B. Wills, flute; Mr. Francis Gaffney, violin; and Mr. Walter L. Rice, viola. The occasion was especially interesting because of the fact that all the music was selected from the original compositions of the former and present curators, Mr. Arthur Foote and Mr. Phippen. The compositions are all in manuscript except the trio, and the enthusiasm with which this was received seemed to demonstrate that chamber music by American Composers and which is neither of the most modern idiom nor permeated with jazz can still give pleasure today.

The suite (in the ancient style) was written in a simple style but in its simplicity was great. The different moods of the composition were brought out in such a charming manner, and the skill shown in weaving the different parts together, made a composition of artistic beauty. The Sonata for piano and violin written in an entirely different form is a beautiful composition written in a masterly way and can hold its place today among the best of the compositions written in this form.

It was beautifully played by the composer and Dr. Wasgatt.

The group arranged for flute, piano and strings, and the Sarabande, arranged for string quartet, were transcriptions made by Mr. Phippen from piano pieces composed by Mr. Foote.

These pieces written in such a delightful way gave Mr. Phippen an inspiration to transcribe. In so doing, nothing was lost from the original but much gained in their new form.

These numbers were delightfully played.

The trio for piano, cello and violin by Mr. Foote was another great work and like Mr. Phippen's has not been played in public for years, and possibly will not be heard again for years, but its beauty will not be lost, although the composition is laid away until some future day when it will be heard again with all its beauty. In this number we heard a young piano student, a pupil of Mr. Phippen, who is showing remarkable talent as a pianist. His playing of the difficult piano score displayed not only talent but training.

The hall at the Institute was taxed to its capacity. The audience evidenced keen appreciation during the entire evening. The concert was admirably arranged and full of variety that was pleasing to the music lovers present. Mr. Phippen received a gracious welcome upon his appearance on the platform.

The audience was exceedingly attentive and showed their appreciation of the efforts of the musicians by their generous rounds of applause which followed the conclusion of each part of the concert.

The full program is as follows:
Suite in the Ancient Style Phippen
For Flute, Violin, Violoncello and Piano
Prelude, Aria, Minuet, Sarabande, Siciliano

ROY L. HILTON WINS GRAND PRIZE

The private view at Carnegie Institute, preceding the opening to the public of the 22nd annual exhibition of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh, is the one occasion when local artists appear as an united group in the presence of their works.

Over 400 titles are catalogued, including paintings in oil and water color, prints and sculpture.

The prizes are inevitably the news of the exhibition. Eight were selected by this year's jurors, Earnest Lawson, Charles Burchfield and Henry Keller, nationally distinguished painters.

The coveted "Carnegie Prize" with a money award of $250 was conferred upon the group contributed by Roy Hilton, a member of the faculty of Fine Arts at Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Mr. Hilton's four paintings, "A Gentleman of Leisure," "Luncheon Is Served," "Bathers" and "Girl in White," represent the most consistent achievement of any in the entire exhibition.

Obviously interested in the contemporary approach to painting, Mr. Hilton renders the modern desire for animation of form logical by choosing living beings.

He does not use the stage-property still-life objects ritualized by the pioneers of contemporary art.

Mr. Hilton has shown in his groups at the annual exhibition, a progress remarkable in the development of his technical resources to facilitate the visual expression of his keen comments.

His has that seldom found attribute, style. We hope he has a chance to do a moral painting, for that is the direction his talent points.

Mr. Hilton is a former Winchester boy and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Hilton of Myrtle street.

GEORGE S. F. BARTLETT

George Sewell Fenwick Bartlett of 16 Mason street, clerk of the Board of Selectmen and assistant treasurer of the Boston Five Cent Savings Bank, died early Wednesday morning, Feb. 17, in the Palmer Memorial Hospital. His death came as a severe shock to his family and friends as he had been thought to be recovering from an operation, and had been expected shortly to return to his home.

Mr. Bartlett was one of the best informed persons on civic matters in Winchester. He was appointed clerk of Selectmen Oct. 1, 1916, and had filled this important post ably since that time, his knowledge of town affairs enabling him to offer advice and suggestions of value to his associates. He had served the town as a town meeting member in Precinct 2 for the past three years. Flags on the Common and public buildings were placed at half staff in his honor.

For 34 years Mr. Bartlett was associated with the Boston Five Cent Savings Bank, rising to the position of assistant treasurer and being in charge of the bank's life insurance department.

He was widely known in banking circles, a member of the American Institute of Banking and in 1922 was president of the Boston Chapter of the Institute. He served on the Institute's national executive council and was also a member of its national publicity board. He was a member of the American Bankers' Association, of the Bank Officers' Association and was the first man from a savings bank to be elected head of the Institute's Boston Chapter.

His publicity work for the Institute with advertising and publicity work which he did for the American Dental Society brought him in close contact with the newspaper fraternity, and he had many friends among newspaper men, especially among illustrators and cartoonists with whom he had a common interest.

He was himself an accomplished cartoonist and his drawings depicting town meeting events have brought pleasure to Star readers for many years.

Mr. Bartlett was born in Cambridge 51 years ago. He was the son of George Hartnell, and Julia (Smith) Bartlett, and came by his artistic ability naturally, his father having been for many years principal of the Normal Art School in Boston, now the Massachusetts School of Art.

He was graduated from Arlington High School and attended the Normal Art School, later taking numerous courses at the American Institute of Banking.

Twenty-five years ago he married Miss Alice Worcester of Cambridge and made his home for a time in that city before coming to Winchester in 1910. He leaves his wife and a son, George H. Bartlett, both of Winchester. His mother, living in Arlington Heights, and a sister, Miss Ethel Bartlett of Cambridge, also survive.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon in the First Congregational Church with the pastor, Rev. Howard J. Chidley, officiating.

MRS. ALICE JANE BARR

Mrs. Alice Jane Barr, widow of Frank Barr, former vice president of the Boston & Maine Railroad, died suddenly at 3 o'clock this morning at her home, 12 Wedgemere avenue. She had been in poor health for about a year, but her death was wholly unexpected.

Mrs. Barr was in her 77th year. She was the daughter of Warren J. and Elizabeth (Ball) Cooper and was born in Nashua, N. H. where she was educated, giving much time to the study of music, and where on Nov. 11, 1875, she married Frank Barr, then manager of the Worcester-Nashua Division of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Thirty years ago when Mr. Barr was made general manager of the road and transferred to Boston, Mrs. Barr came with her husband to live in Winchester and had since made her home here, being universally esteemed by those with whom she came in contact.

She is survived by a daughter, Miss Marguerite E. Barr of Winchester, and by a son, Robert C. Barr, a member of the faculty at the Ridgefield School in Ridgefield, N. J.

Funeral services will be held at the late residence on this Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be at Nashua, N. H.

YOUTHS STOLE AUTO HERE

Police Headquarters was notified early last Saturday morning that some time during the night the garage of the Winchester Packard establishment on Main street had been broken into and a Packard convertible coupe stolen. An investigation also disclosed the fact that the lock on a gasoline pump had been broken and about 15 gallons of gasoline stolen along with the car.

At 2:15 Saturday morning Sergt. Thomas P. Cassidy and Patrolman Joseph Derro found a Hudson brougham abandoned on Main street to the north of Blanchard's lumber yard, and it was learned that this machine had been stolen in Somerville. It was the property of Robert Scott, Jr. of 24 Stickney avenue, that city.

The authorities believed that those responsible for the theft of the Packard had come to Winchester in the morning and recovered on Main street and their reasoning was corroborated Sunday night when the police of Somerville notified local Headquarters that the missing machine had been found in Somerville.

According to the police it had been stolen by two boys, Cornelius White, 17, of 21 Pinkney street, Somerville, and Francis T. Ellison, 15, of 105 Washington street, Somerville, who were arrested in that city by Sergt. James Fitzpatrick of the Somerville Police.

When taken the boys were riding in a Cadillac which it is alleged they stole from a Somerville garage after abandoning the car taken at the Winchester Packard plant.

In the Cadillac they drove to Pawtucket, R. I., where the police say they broke into a filling station.

They were arrested upon their return to Somerville and arraigned in the District Court on Monday. At that time they were held in heavy bonds until Wednesday when White who had a previous record, was indicted for breaking and entering in the night time and larceny, being held in $10,000 bonds for the Grand Jury. Young Ellison was placed on probation and turned over to Chief Rogers of the Winchester Police who had gotten ten complaints against both youths. He appeared in the District Court at Woburn yesterday morning, at which time his probation was allowed to stand.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Six absentees were recorded at this week's meeting of the club.

Our regular meeting scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 18, was omitted this week, and its place was taken by a joint meeting in which we participated at the invitation of The Lions' Club of Winchester, on Monday, Feb. 15. This meeting proved to be quite as enjoyable as anticipated and we surely appreciate the efforts of our hosts in providing one of Fred's very best dinners as well as an exceptionally effective speaker in the person of Rev. Garfield Morgan.

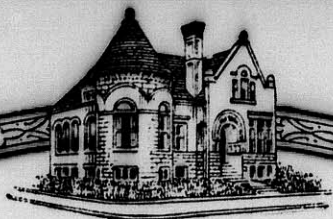

Rev. Mr. Morgan delivered an address based on impressions received from study of the lives of Washington and Lincoln. Much has been said and written by countless speakers and authors about these two great Americans. It is a considerable accomplishment to present this subject in such a manner as to stimulate the minds of those who read or listen. This Mr. Morgan succeeded admirably in doing, his invigorating and obviously sincere words sinking deeply into the hearts of his audience.

We hope that some of our members will find it feasible to make the trip to Seattle in June to attend the convention of Rotary International to be held in that city. Many itineraries have come to the desk of the secretary, all of them delightful and some one of them at least can hardly fail to appeal to every prospective traveler. We shall be more than pleased to give every possible assistance to any member who now or later contemplates the pilgrimage to Seattle.

Please bear in mind that our next meeting falls on Thursday, Feb. 25 and that there will be no meeting on Feb. 18. We are keen for a 100 per cent meeting this month or even two of them. Please be with us.

Percentage of attendance Feb. 11—93.94 per cent.

Mr. Frederic S. Snyder, chairman of Winchester's committee in charge of unemployment relief, has been appointed by President Herbert Hoover to take charge of the anti-hoarding campaign in Massachusetts. He has recently returned to Winchester from a visit to the White House, at which time he spent the day in discussion with the President and the night as his guest.

FISHERMAN'S SUNDAY OBSERVED

Congregational Church Filled at Anglers' Unique Service

"We are all fishermen" said Dr. Howard J. Chidley in his address to 33 anglers at the tenth annual Fisherman's Service at the First Congregational Church last Sunday morning. The big auditorium was filled to the doors, with many finding seats in the balcony and the fishermen occupying reserved pews at the front of the church. The chancel and altar were attractively decorated with beautiful flowers, given by the fishermen who were again headed by M. J. "Mike" Marr of Marr's Camps in the Moosehead region of Maine.

The congregational singing of familiar hymns with the predominant voices of the men was inspiring, and the chancel choir, participating in the service under the direction of Organist and Choirmaster J. Albert Wilson, sang Mendelssohn's "I Waited for the Lord" and "O Send Out Thy Light" by Calkin. As a prelude Mr. Wilson played "The Bells of St. Anne" by Russell and at the offertory, Lemare's "At Sunset." His postlude was Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in B Flat."

After the service the flowers were distributed under the direction of Miss Cassie Sands to families in all parts of the town in which there was illness or some one who was unable to attend church. The hospital and Home for Aged People were also generously remembered.

Doctor Chidley commenced his address by crediting "Fisherman's Sunday" to Charles A. "Charlie" Lane, for many years a leading figure in local fishing parties and the creator, with a little group of friends, of these unique services ten years ago. Their growth and success are due almost entirely to his interest and untiring efforts.

In the course of his remarks, Doctor Chidley told of the joys of a camper's breakfast, prepared by a guide beside a quiet stream in the first flush of a wilderness morning, breaking off abruptly that the appeal to the appetites of his listeners might not overshadow their interest in the body of his address.

Continuing, he said that fishing is something which can be enjoyed by every one. We are all fishermen, though we do not all catch fish. For fishermen are reputed to be liars, and it is always the big fish which gets away.

Many a devotee gets his biggest enjoyment from anticipating the fishing season, experiences his greatest thrill in practice casting before the mirror. Catching fish is not necessary and some of the best fishermen never fish.

Striking a humorous note, Doctor Chidley told of the ancient angler who when asked if the fish were biting, replied that if they were, they were "biting each other." A ripple of laughter, particularly noticeable in the sections of the auditorium occupied by the fishermen, greeted this anecdote.

In serious vein the speaker painted a vivid picture of the wonder of dawn in the Maine woods, of the hush that precedes the first streaks of sunlight and the calls of the birds. This with the other beauties in nature are what fishermen seek on their expeditions in contrast with frequenters of cities who vainly seek distractions which do not distract.

Mary Roberts Rhinehart says that "fishing is a philosophy and not a sport." In this connection, Doctor Chidley stated that many go fishing and catch ideas instead of fish. There is nothing like the fishing camp to provide time for browsing with one's mind, for indulging in the day dream, for all we need so much in this materialistic world.

It is around the campfire in the evening that real and lasting friendships are formed, friendships cemented together by common effort, friendships which overlook the flaws of others; for after all, no good man is perfect.

Pausing for a bit, Doctor Chidley impressively recalled the fact that four fishermen, Charles E. Barrett, Henry Wood, James E. Corey and Ralph S. Vinal, had "gone west" since the last service. Their brother anglers joined him in silent tribute to their memory.

In closing he advised those who hoped some day to enjoy the pleasures of fishing to "do it now" before it is too late. The question to ask one self is not "Can I afford to go fishing?" but rather, "Can I afford not to go fishing?" For life is a river, ever new and yet unchanging.

upon which we all are going to the sea. In the words of the old Latin proverb, "Carpe Diem," let us "seize the day," as it comes to us and not put off our pleasures to a future which never comes.

WINCHESTER VISITORS AT ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

Among the arrivals during the week from Winchester who are enjoying their stay in the Sunshine City are Miss Louise Babin, Mr. and Mrs. C. Harry Bowler, Miss Laura Bowler, Mrs. Franklin P. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. England, Mr. and Mrs. Claude H. Fleming, Miss Myrtle Fleming, Mrs. Lewis Howe, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Snow, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Vanner, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Webster and Mrs. Grace L. Woods.

OBSERVING 30TH ANNIVERSARY

Grace Church at Holyoke, together with its pastor, Rev. Edward Bradford Robinson and his wife, are celebrating this week the 30th anniversary of their partnership. No invitations were issued, but all interested have been most cordially invited to attend any or all of the services scheduled for the seven days ending next Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Robinson is one of Winchester's native sons, the son of the late Edwin and Mrs. Robinson of Vine street. He was born and raised in this town.

In recognition of the importance of his work during the past 30 years at Grace Church, the Holyoke Daily Transcript and Telegram in an editorial says:

In Thirty Years
We have about exhausted our supply of superlatives in paying tribute from time to time to Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Bradford Robinson, who tomorrow will mark 30 years of great and increasingly effective service to Holyoke in general and to Grace Church in particular. Elsewhere in this edition is a sketchy review of the activities of those 30 years which will impress any reader with the tremendous amount of work there is in the building of an institution like Grace Church and the number of points in the community life that Grace Church reaches into and exploits in the name of Christian public service. We challenge any community in conservative old New England to point to another such rapid and yet most sound, development of another Grace Church. Much of it has been pioneering work. Some of the laboratory work done there has left its impress on church work in the country at large.

Thirty years may have silvered the hair and matured the thoughts of Dr. and Mrs. Robinson but they have not lessened by one jot or iota the youthful enthusiasm they brought to their task when they first came to Holyoke. The years have broadened and deepened their ideals and they are today part of the warp and woof of Holyoke itself.

And Holyoke, irrespective of creed, race or fortune, will wish for them long years to continue their work in the Lord's vineyard and none but sunny days and starry nights along their way.

TO BE ASKED QUESTIONS

If you want to flatter anybody, ask them for advice. And in this, your local Edison Shop is no exception. It is delighted to hand it out in small, medium, or large doses. And while what it has to say may not be as spicy as advice to the lovelorn, or hints on beauty, it's always very much to the point...

Which appliances are indispensable? How best to use and care for them? How can electricity be used for greater cleanliness, convenience, freedom, and economy... in washing, ironing, cooking, cleaning, refrigeration... for decorative lighting... for better illumination for the children's home work and reading? How speedy is an electric range? Et cetera.

And don't forget you can pick up very nice appliances here—as well as free advice. We maintain this shop for your convenience—to save you the time and bother of trips to town—though we're frank to admit the other local electrical stores are worth visiting, too.

DISABLED VETERANS' WELFARE GROUP

On Feb. 10 this group was entertained by Mrs. W. E. Chamberlin of 34 Wildwood street. Reports were read covering the Christmas activities in behalf of the veterans and plans discussed for the spring work. The hostess served a most attractive tea and the group appreciated the opportunity of seeing Mrs. Chamberlin's display of souvenirs from the various countries she had visited when she made her trip around the world.

Mrs. Idabelle Winship and Mrs. Elvira Grindle and several ladies of the Co-operation With War Veterans Committee of the Fortnightly were guests.

The next meeting will be the annual meeting and will be held the second Wednesday in April.

WINCHESTER WON FROM LEXINGTON

Winchester High School's fast stepping basketball team stayed in the race for the Middlesex League title by defeating Lexington High at Winchester last Friday evening, 27-14. The locals played good basketball and showed evenly distributed offensive strength. Dolan, Philbrick, Mobbs and Noble each scoring six points. Prichard, visiting left guard hung up eight points for the night's high total and incidentally was the only Lexington boy to cage a goal from the floor.

Between the halves of the first team game the Winchester seconds hung a 24-17 defeat on the Lexington Jay-Vees.

CALUMET NOTES

CALUMET NOTES

Everything is in readiness for another big day at the club on Washington's Birthday, and members are urged to participate in the program of events which extends from 10 o'clock in the morning throughout the day and evening.

Harry McGrath is in charge of the bowling which gets under way at 10 and lasts until 6, with all sorts of special contests and prizes for the winners. The usual afternoon program for the kiddies commences at 2 o'clock with George T. Davidson in charge of arrangements. There are to be several features sure to please the youngsters, including a magician motion pictures and ice cream. Members are asked in this connection to secure their tickets before Saturday, Feb. 20, as the committee must know how many to provide for.

The club will hold open house in the evening with dancing, bowling and bridge under the direction of Warren Cox. Members and their guests may be assured plenty of entertainment and are urged to be present. Prizes will be awarded the winners in bridge.

A goodly gathering of wrestling fans were present at the club's second carnival last Saturday evening, and the bouts lived up to their advance notices.

They were preceded by an explanation and demonstration of the various popular and unusual holds employed by the grapplers, and this feature was very much appreciated by those who attend most of their bouts over the radio.

"Jack" Albright, known in wrestling circles as the man of a thousand holds, was in charge of this feature, and also participated in the main bout with Calumet's old friend, Boris Demitroff, who was in charge of the carnival.

Boris succeeded in defeating the veteran, winning the only fall of the match with a peculiar part arm bar and wrist lock in 26 minutes. Neither Demitroff nor Referee Ralph Dixon could name the hold, but Boris showed how it operated to a curious group of Calumeters after the bout and promised to use it whenever possible in future matches. The burly Albright went down with ridiculous ease when it was applied and was unable to avoid being pinned.

In the preliminary bout, Arthur Davis, the Tufts "professor" proved much too clever for "Joe" Cook, husky Australian, winning the first fall with an inside croch in 15 minutes and taking the second fall in 7½ minutes with a top body hold. "Ned" McKenzie acted as timer.

Horace Ford's All Stars proved as good as their challenge last Friday evening defeating the Fitzgerald Brothers' bowling team on the club alleys amid great excitement and not a little bantering between opponents.

"Doc" Hindes was on hand to see the match, and after laughing himself sore at the general wise cracking and having his hearing endangered by the raucous rooting of Fred Mitchell of the "Fitzies" decided that the latter team was going to win in straight strings and went home.

The "Fitzies" did win the first two strings, but after that the "Fords" commenced to get the range and with manager "Ben" Hills edging them on, Horace's "buddies" began to roll up the strikes and spares.

"Bob" Hamilton and "Doc" Priest, the latter the "dark horse" of the match, were rolling nicely and they were just too good for Fred and "Jimmy Fitz" to balance. Mitchell turned in the high total with 511, having two strings of 118. "Doc" Priest rolled 119 for the high single. "Nick Fitz" was away off form after the first string when he got 111.

Fred Scholl announced after the match that there would be no more free ice cream for the "Fitzies" laying their defeat to excessive girth at the waist-line. The defeated combination, and especially "Joe" Mathews, claimed that they had rolled under wraps in order to kid the "Fords" into a return match. Manager Hills countered with the information that both he and "Bill" McLean had pulled their punches and that if and when a return match is rolled, the result will be more of the same. Both teams are cocky and if a suitable side-bet can be arranged, may be expected to get together again, at least before the baseball season.

Following are the summaries:

SHOWER FOR RECENT BRIDE

Mrs. James A. Cullen of 942 Main street, the former Helen Fitzgerald of Woburn, was pleasantly surprised Monday evening when a group of her Winchester and Woburn friends gathered at the home of her mother, Mrs. Annie K. Fitzgerald of 4 Water street, Woburn, and tendered her a shower in honor of her recently announced marriage.

Mrs. Cullen was genuinely surprised but her sincere appreciation was easily apparent. She was the recipient of all sorts of gifts, dear to the young matron, and after the last package had been opened an entertainment program was staged by the talented Reddy sisters of Woburn and the popular vocalists, John Keady and John Murphy of this town. Mrs. Cullen, an accomplished musician, was also persuaded to add vocal solos to the program, and at its conclusion a dainty collation was served.

LIONS MET WITH ROTARIANS

At the meeting of the Lions Monday noon we had as guests the Winchester Rotary Club with a combined attendance of 46. In honor of the occasion Fred furnished a sumptuous turkey dinner. There was no business transacted but after the conclusion of the repast, the Rev. Garfield Morgan of Lynn was introduced by President Roger, and for half an hour or more we had the pleasure of listening to a fine discourse on Washington and Lincoln. Mr. Morgan is a man of magnetic personality and held his audience spellbound throughout. We have heard him on previous occasions and hope to have the extreme pleasure of hearing him again.

As next Monday is a holiday our regular meeting will be held on Tuesday the 23rd at the usual time and place and we understand that the entertainment committee will have something interesting for us at that time.

Don't forget the date, Tuesday, the 23rd.

A TRIBUTE

In the death of Mr. George S. F. Bartlett, Winchester suffers a great loss: the loss of a most efficient and conscientious town official, and I don't hesitate to say—the best ever. He did his work well and did not advertise it, nor the doings of his associates.

We shall certainly miss him and he will be especially missed by the Board of Selectmen.

J. A. Laraway

Laurence Jones was one of the prep school boys home for the recent weekend. Laurence was a member of the soccer team at Dean Academy last fall and won his "D." The team was considered the New England Prep School champions, having won all their games. Among others they defeated Tech, Harvard and West Point freshman teams. Laurence is the son of Frank W. Jones, who is a candidate for selectman this year.

as may be feasible. To the young we offer a word of friendly warning.

Your use of the hall will depend upon your conduct in it. Any rowdiness will result in prompt cancellation of your

We are glad to hear that the Planning Board is concerned with the need for a playground on the West Side of the town. The rapidly growing hill district and the ever present automobile have increased the number of children and multiplied the danger in playing about the streets.

During the past week we have noted on the police blotter the fact that 18 buildings, largely schools and churches, have been found unlocked during the night time. Nor is this carelessness something recently noted. In these times leaving doors unbarred is inviting disaster, and those entrusted with the care of buildings should be particularly watchful. The police are doing their best to protect property and surely have the right to expect co-operation from owners and janitors to the extent of locking doors and windows when leaving for the night or weekend.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE MEETING

The February meeting of the Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League was held Thursday, Feb.
18, at the home of Mrs. George H.
Grey, 3 Ridgely road. Rev. George
H. Reed of the Unitarian Church opened the meeting with a prayer for peace and understanding among mankind.

Mrs. Sanderson, supervisor of casework at the maternity home in Brip-ton illustrated the work of the league, giving a detailed description of the methods in handling two different types of girls with their different problems.

Dr. Speare, president of Northeast-such a hopeful and inspiring vein that everyone felt eager to push on with the work of the league. He stressed the point, the frailty of men, and that the morals of the nation were in the hands of the women. He urged that every young girl have an education addition of vocational training.

A Non-Profit Proposition That is Profitable

Co-operative banks are not organized by any inside group to make profits for themselves.

Our bank is strictly mutual, organized originally by a public-spirited group of people who sought to arrange the best possible method to help the average family to own its own home.

Whatever fund a person puts into the proposition takes its share of the profit.

We give both the borrower and the saver a better "deal" than is possible under any other plan.

Aztec Civilization
The original Aztec civilization was warlike and Spartan; extreme severity marked the penal codes; intemperance, the consuming cancer of the American Indian races, was severely penalized; they were constantly at war with their neighbors, and needed no better pretext for a campaign than the need to capture sacrifices for their gods.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Winchester Girl Scouts will hold their mid-year rally, Saturday, Feb. 20 at 3 o'clock in the Town Hall. The public is invited to attend. The short play presented in Lynn Saturday night, "She Serves Also," will be repeated. Merit badges, first and second class and golden eagle awards will be given. Bugle and Drum Corps will give a demonstration.

HIGH LIGHTS FROM THE METROPOLITAN SCOUT CONFERENCE

Many fine ideas perfectly usable in the every day world were brought to light by the discussion of "Service" at the All Scout Conference at Lynn, Feb. 13 and 14.

Service was defined by Ruth Salter as the giving of one's self. Service, as a Scout knows it, brings no material reward but reimburses the giver many fold by enriching her character through cheerful sacrifice.

Ruth Newton of Malden brought out the fact that to be of service, one must know the need. The customs and ideas of all parts of our own country as well as the world should be understood to give intelligent service. The best means of obtaining this knowledge in scouting is through camping, for that is the easiest road to friendship. Understanding causes all prejudices to disappear. "Service in Institution" was discussed by Sally Kimball of Lexington. She spoke of the tact and fine feeling necessary to give complete help to those less fortunate.

"Be what the world thinks you" was the tenor of Winnifred Small's address. Scouts especially should set a high standard that the organization's service may be efficient.

Scouting as a Training School was explained by Pearl Berger of Arlington. As a Scout passes from one class to another she not only gains knowledge but puts herself in a position to make that knowledge available to others.

"Juliette Low" was the subject of the inspirational address by Winnifred Turner of Quincy. Establishing the Girl Scout Movement was Mrs. Low's supreme service to humanity. Her personality was the outgrowth of her service and courage. "She led the way."

Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, president of Gilbreth, Inc., nationally known consulting engineer and mother of 11 children who are organized for mutual help and family co-operation just as the mother's great industrial group, could well speak with authority on the subject of "Efficiency in Service." Linking it to scouting, she said that the Scout's job was character building. Her responsibility was to furnish play as well as training for efficiency. Her chief service was keeping up morale. She should not only be able to make plans but be reasonably certain they would work out well.

Miss Helen Potter, State director, made an idealistic address on Sunday afternoon. "See that you deserve to be a giver." "The world needs courage and unselfish vision. Then Faith will carry through."

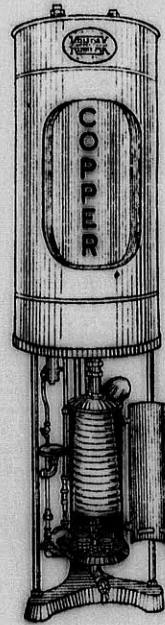

Of great interest to all was the play "She Also Served," put on Saturday evening by Winchester Scouts and ably coached by Mrs. Clifton Hall. From a rich old Revolutionary background the girls finely projected the idea that Service is not a matter of place. The one who stays at home out of the limelight often has opportunity to perform a truly great service. Annette Randlett as John Danforth, the village blacksmith and Anita Wilson as his wife played well their parts. Their daughter Penelope was portrayed by Mary Elizabeth Hall, who did an excellent bit of acting when handling the paper found in the officer's coat. Eugenia Peppard and Martha Hill, looking very quaint in their Paisley shawls took the part of Lucy and Desire, friends of Penelope. As a dashing Red Coat, Alice Welsh strode about, affording much secret pleasure to the little "Spitfire."

This play will be repeated in the Town Hall Saturday afternoon, Feb. 20, at 3 o'clock. The public has been invited.

Troop 8

On Feb. 11, Troop 8 of Winchester Girl Scouts had charades and a sale to raise money for the Troop. There was a white elephant table and a candy, cake and cookie table. Everything was sold. The Troop made about $32.

For the charades, Patrol 1 had "Ingratiate." Patrol 2, had "Caroline Dresser." "Pilgrimage" and "Masquerade" were Patrol 2's choice. Patrol 4 had "Tenderfoot," and Patrol 5 had "Winchester" and "Pioneer."

Priscilla Howard gave a dance that delighted everyone. Rebecca Farnsworth and Jeanne Howard each played a piano selection. Ann Mauldin recited a poem, "The French Doll" and Barbara Hayden recited one entitled "Spring Fever." Margaret Heath was the announcer.

The entertainment was held at the Mystic School.

A "HARTY" WELCOME AT THE MAYFAIR!

One of the hits of the tuncful musical comedy "Everybody's Welcome" at the Majestic is the unusual dancing and comedy of "Tom" Harty, a Boston boy who is showing at the Mayfair, 54 Broadway, every night after the theatre.

Harty is a Boston College boy and his first appearance before the public was when he was cheer leader for Boston College and danced between the halves at the B. C. football games at Fenway Park, in many instances a greater attraction than the game itself. His work attracted widespread attention and as a result he received an offer to join a New York production.

Like the late Jack Donahue, Harty was born in Charlestown and while his dancing is reminiscent of the famed "Jack," he has developed a broad comedy technique and eccentric manner that is distinctive. His "drunk" dance in "Everybody's Welcome" drew raves from the Boston critics and stopped the show. You will only have to see him put this dance over to know how honestly he deserved the praise. He will also appear at the Mayfair every night after the show during the Boston engagement of "Everybody's Welcome."

According to reports from China Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Roberts of this town are among those who have recently left Nankin. Mrs. Roberts, the report says, is associated with the Episcopal Mission in Nankin.

FINE PRESENTATION OF "THE RIVALS" IN LITTLE THEATRE

"The Rivals"—brocade and lavender, knee breeches and dueling pistols—complete with all the appeal of fair ladies and gallant gentlemen. Sheridan's famous farce comedy in five acts and 11 scenes was given on last Friday evening in the "Little Theatre Beneath a Spire" by the Dramatic Society of the First Congregational Church. An enthusiastic audience which completely filled the hall was generous in its applause throughout the entire production which was not concluded until well on the way to midnight. The play was staged under the direction of Mervin E. Stevens, dramatic director of Phillips Andover Academy.

Though entirely different in plot and action, last Friday evening's production was reminiscent of its predecessor, "Tons of Money," presented last fall. The same perfection of lines and mechanical excellence were apparent. Properties were carefully chosen, makeups were artistically done and both costumes and lighting effects were unusually fine. The beautiful flowers, donated by the Winchester Conservatories, greatly enhanced the artistically simple stage settings.

The complicated plot of Sheridan's masterpiece is somewhat difficult to review. It is concerned with the difficulties which arise out of the desire of one Lydia Languish for a romantic love affair, and her determination not to marry any of the suitable suitors chosen for her by her guardian, Mrs. Malaprop. The latter and Sir Anthony Absolute conspire to wed Lydia to Sir Anthony's son, Captain Jack Absolute, with whom the young lady has already fallen in love, though believing him to be Ensign Beverly. When she learns that her lover is that one whom her guardian and Sir Anthony wish her to accept she refuses him point blank, and leads the conspirators a merry dance before surrendering to the Captain's suit.

Meanwhile trouble arises among Lydia's many suitors and one of them "Bob" Acres, urged on by the pug-nacious Sir Lucius O'Trigger, challenges Absolute to a duel, though in mortal fear of everything at all pertaining to a "field of honor." He is delighted to find that Absolute is his friend, Beverly, which fact precludes their meeting, but the war-like O'Trigger suggests that instead of Absolute he fight Faulkland, who is in a huff because his lady, Julia, is able to enjoy herself away from his presence. The terrified Acres and the reluctant Faulkland are about to settle their difficulty when the ladies get wind of the duel and arrive in haste to put an end to the fighting.

A note of cross comedy is introduced by O'Trigger's suit to Lydia which is intercepted by Mrs. Malaprop who in turn dispatches notes which are accepted by Sir Lucius in the belief that they come from Lydia. Learning that he has been duped the wrathful O'Trigger refuses to marry any one, thereby leaving the romantically inclined Malaprop with a most uncomplimentary opinion of all men.

As indicated above, the Dramatic Society's presentation was an excellent one, the actors being well cast and skillfully coached in their respective roles. Individual honors must go to Clifford Cunningham whose Sir Anthony Absolute was a very real person. His splendid make-up and senile laugh will be long remembered.

F. Milne Blanchard was an excellent Bob Acres, his skillful portrayal of the terrified duelist keeping the audience in a state of merriment. There were times when one found it hard to avoid trembling with him. Esther Caldwell's Mrs. Malaprop and the Fag of Mervin Stevens were other strong characters while Oscar Crowers made much of the minor part, David.

Two youthful actors, William Higgins and Betsy Cross won the affection of the audience with their playing of Faulkland and Lucy, the former having a particularly handsome stage presence while Miss Cross's dainty charm made many a mere man envy Fag and Sir Lucius. The remaining parts were well played by Kenneth Caldwell, Dorothy Ostburg, Ellouise Graves, Samuel Graves, George Davidson, Jr. and William Andrews. All the little subtleties with which the play abounds were nicely brought out. The only criticism we would make is directed toward the audience who might well have gotten to their places so that the play, long in itself, could have started more promptly.

Coffee was served in the foyer, between Acts 3 and 4 under the direction of Mrs. Clifford Cunningham. The ushers and candy girls, all of whom were in the costume of the period depicted by the play, were the Misses Janet Smith, Barbara Chidley, May Thompson, Louise DeCamp and Joy Adriance.

SPECIAL MEMORIAL SERVICE

In compliance with the proclamation of President Hoover for a nation wide recognition of the bi-centennial of George Washington, First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester, as a part of this celebration will hold a special memorial service in the church edifice, Monday, Feb. 22, at 10:45 a. m. UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF NOTES

No report has heretofore been published in the Star with references to our pledges. We asked the citizens of Winchester for the sum of $48,000. The pledge list at this moment is $47,316, in addition to which a number of pledges have been canceled, the total of which if added to the above sum would exceed the $48,000 which was the original objective. Up to this time we have collected $27,531. Of course this means that a substantial amount has been paid in advance of due dates. Pledges paid in full amount to $9,331. Our disbursements are now greater than our receipts. The pledge period is for six months and does not therefore mature until and including the month of May. Our citizens and residents making pledges are proving most reliable with respect to the soundness of the pledges as assets. For December and January the outstandings are about $300 as against a total sum due of over $15,000, or approximately one-fifth of one per cent. This is a remarkable record.

As this is written, 194 men are upon the active pay roll. The majority of them have the full five-day week. Others, single men or a man with wife only, are given work for a shortened week, proportioned always to the need of the worker and his responsibilities.

All mathematical calculations indicate that the money contributed by Winchester citizens is being used in such fashion that it is returning to Winchester as a town very high value per dollar.

The rich muck which is being removed from the Mill Pond is said to be worth more than its cost of removal. It is richer than ordinary loam, perhaps too rich, and may require dilution with inferior soil. It will, of course, require lime or other sweetening material, but even with this added expense it will probably prove highly valuable to the town. Six thousand dollars or more was the estimate for the cost of loam for the Junior High School grounds. At least $4000 worth of loam, based upon the usual figure of $2.50 per cubic yard, has already been delivered on the grounds. An equal amount is stored in reserve at the Town Yards. Much more will also be placed in reserve. The landscaping about the Pond, created by the deposit of further loam, which would be expensive to buy, adds still more to the asset value of the service which is rendered by the application of the voluntary subscriptions of our citizens.

The clothing section of the Unemployment Relief work is in great need of boy's suits, sizes 6 to 14, boy's shoes, sizes 1 to 5, men's suits, all sizes, and leather or canvas or other type of coats for men's outdoor use.

Workmen's Compensation and Public Liability Insurance

In answer to questions and to supply information to those who are interested in the subject of workmen's compensation insurance, it will be interesting to know that under the laws of the State a Committee engaged in work such as we are doing is without employee responsibility and also without public liability. The Legislature in its wisdom decided that corporations of such type as the Unemployment Relief Committee should not carry responsibility to either the members of such a committee or to an organization in corporate form which has been created for the purpose of doing this type of work.

Any responsibility which may be assumed is therefore voluntary in character. For this reason employees should make no requests of or claims upon the Committee unless of serious character and they should use great care to avoid personal injury.

The Committee naturally requires of the men on its pay roll a full day's work as the only adequate means of returning to the town an equivalent for the funds voluntarily provided by its citizens for the purpose of dealing with the unemployment situation.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

The regular meeting of the Guild of the Infant Saviour will be held Tuesday, Feb. 23 at Fortnightly Hall. The speaker for the afternoon will be Rev. Edward J. Swift, S. J., who will tell of his various travels and will illustrate his talk with stereoscopic views. Of special interest to the members will be moving pictures which were taken in Winchester last May on the occasion of the lecture given by Rev. Fulton Sheen and sponsored by the Guild of the Infant Saviour.

There will be a musical program and Mrs. J. F. Madigan of Somerville will be the guest artist.

Each member of the Guild has the privilege of inviting a guest to attend the meeting.

The local junior lodges of the Sons of Italy are to stage a big celebration in honor of George Washington in Fortnightly Hall on Feb. 22.

MISS AVERY'S SEVENTH LECTURE

Miss Avery opened her lecture on Feb. 10 with a few words on the Chinese-Japanese situation, before discussing the subject announced for the day, "Gold and Silver."

The Chinese policy has always been against leasing any of her land to foreigners. The Japanese problem, however is her need for land and more land as she is terribly handicapped by the lack of it. And of course the struggle between them today is for Manchuria. At last, however, we have taken a forward step, a step that never before has been taken, in the sending of a league commission with sanction of both China and Japan, to investigate conditions in Manchuria.

Speaking on "Gold and Silver" Miss Avery said that money is a means of exchange with most of us and gold is the basis of the world's money. Money has only two uses, to spend and to create credit, and 90 per cent of the business in the United States is done for credit. And there are two phases of this credit, i.e., the mechanics of credit and the psychology of credit.

The mechanics include the banks and the psychology is the confidence or lack of confidence in its strength.

One and a half billion dollars is now being hoarded in this country and to take the place of this money not in circulation the Federal Government is trying to create a credit in order to inspire confidence.

In each country the social conscience expresses itself in a different way, varying according to the temperament of its people and in the United States it is expressed in capitalist individualism. This calls for a great sense of responsibility and such a sense is lacking in the hoarders. By the hoarding of money they are lowering financial standards and prolonging the depression.

England is now off the gold standard and Germany is nearly so, but France and America are still on. In time all will have to go off or the rest come back on for each country reacts on the other and in order to see better times we must all work together.

Miss Avery will discuss two subjects in her lecture on Feb. 24, "The Arabs of France and Italy in North Africa" and "The First Disarmament Conference at Geneva."

THE YOUTH CONFERENCE

The annual Youth Conference, sponsored by the Division of the American Home of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs will be held Thursday, Mar. 10 and Friday, Mar. 11 at the Hotel Statler, Boston.

An unusually interesting and instructive program has been prepared for you, with Gary Cleveland Myers, Ph.D., head of the Division of Parent Education, Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, as the luncheon speaker on Thursday.

Dr. James Gordon Gilkey, minister of the South Congregational Church, Springfield, will speak during the luncheon hour on Friday. The title of his lecture will be, "The Americans of Tomorrow—Their Advantages and Their Handicaps."

There will be so many worth-while speakers, including Rev. John W. Suter, Jr., Susan J. Ginn, Dr. Karl M. Bowman, Francis X. Hurley, and Leona Samuels that every homemaker should make a special effort to be present.

Before Mar. 5, write to Mrs. Allen E. Newton, 258 Court road, Winthrop, for details about luncheon and registration, or call Mrs. H. H. Ambler, 93 Cambridge street, Winchester, 0518.

The Price of Real Estate

It has been said "There is no price for Real Estate today." We disagree. Continued adverse business conditions have forced the prices of Real Estate below their actual value. Opportunity to purchase wisely and well has thereby been created and in many cases with only a small payment down. Let us show you some real low prices on real good Real Estate.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The Hold Is Still There

The vote taken recently on the resolution by Senator Bingham to announce to the Governors and State Legislatures that the Senate would welcome state referenda on prohibition, resulted in 55 voting No, against 15 voting Yes.

The efforts of some of the anti-prohibition newspapers to minimize the significance of the vote is amusing. The wet Chicago Tribune magnifies the fact that it was a "futile resolution" and that "the dregs pounced upon it and maneuvered it to a roll call." Yet even the Tribune, through its Washington correspondent, acknowledged that on this first test vote in the 12 years of national prohibition the dregs showed a majority of 55 votes against 15 of the wets and no explanations or excuses can erase those meaningful figures, that stand as testimony that the members of the United States Senate with their fingers always on the pulse of the People, responded to a popular demand by voting down a resolution inimical to the prohibition law.

Is it possible that these 55 Senators do not read the wet metropolitan newspapers and listen over the radio to the vociferous wet oratory telling how the people of the United States with the exception of an insignificant minority of dry fanatics, are utterly and enthusiastically in favor of the repeal of the prohibition law. Evidently these 55 Senators have not wasted their time listening to wet propaganda but have been doing much serious thinking on their own and the people's account. The wet newspapers try to make the vote seem of slight importance inasmuch as the 15 "Yea's," represented the populous states, and the 55 "Nays," spoke for the rural commonwealths, which the wets say "contribute Senators and little else to the country's activities." How much will such slurring comments help the wets in the agricultural districts?

But in the conclusion of their little essays on the "futile resolution," they have to admit "the hold (of the dregs) is still there." Some of the papers go even farther and admit frankly, "this Congress is dry and overwhelmingly so. In the Senate vote it merely took advantage of bad strategy by a wet to reaffirm its attitude." Yes "the hold is still there" and the wets have to admit it.

But let us not become over confident because of this little incident in the Senate, gratifying as it is and grateful as we are to our good Senators, for eternal vigilance must still be our motto; and we must not relax for one day our efforts to hold fast that which has been won by the sacrificial service of the heroic champions of the home-protection law.

The Star is informed that William P. Callahan, former Selectman, for whom papers had been in circulation this year, has decided that business pressure will prevent his being a candidate.

W. ALLAN WILDE
CANDIDATE FOR ASSESSOR

I wish hereby to announce my candidacy for the annual vacancy in the Board of Assessors. I do this after serious thought and with a full knowledge of the responsibilities involved both to the town itself and to the individual tax payers therein.

I propose, if elected, to advocate a gradual readjustment and equalization of the valuations on property throughout the town, not necessarily a wholesale reduction, but a general inspection of the present values with the idea of equalizing the tax burden, already heavy enough on most of us. Such a readjustment would undoubtedly result in lowering valuations on certain properties, the saleable value of which is not as high as a year ago, and perhaps in increasing the valuation on the property which is not bearing its proper share of the town's expenses.

My experience of more than 12 years in the real estate business, during which time I have repeatedly qualified as an expert and offered testimony before the Courts of Massachusetts as to the value of real estate, and dealt not only with the sale and appraisal of Winchester real estate, but in nearly every city and town in Greater Boston, justifies my belief that I am thoroughly competent to serve the town and the tax payers efficiently as an Assessor.

Winchester has been my home since childhood. I attended the Winchester schools, enlisted and served in the Naval Reserve force during the World War, am a member of Winchester Post of the American Legion which I served as Commander for two years. I am a member of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., and past director of the Calumet Club and have taken part in many of the town's activities and believe my knowledge of the town and its people is sufficient to cause me to believe I can serve them in this capacity.

A CHANGE IN THE BALLOT

Many of our townspeople had and still have a misconception of what actually occurred and what resulted from last year's court proceedings with relation to the town election ballot. Those proceedings attempting to have our ballot conform to the law were brought as promptly as the statutes permitted. The report of the town counsel to the selectmen, appearing in this year's town book just issued is unintentionally somewhat misleading. It is not accurate to state as appears therein, that a granting of the mandamus petition would have resulted in only two names appearing on the ballot because the second prayer in the petition asked merely for the omission of the unlawful designations, the remedy actually desired by me, and it was so stated to the registrars and subsequently to the court and appears in the court records. The statement that the writs were denied is confusing for, as a matter of fact, both petitions were held by the court to set forth an unlawful practice which, for reasons hereinbelow described, the court in its discretion declined to afford a remedy at that time, the actual entry on the records of the court being "dismissed as a matter of discretion."

The court upheld my contentions as to the illegality of the designations, but stated it would refuse to order the designations stricken from the ballot because the ballots were then in forms for printing and because illegal designations for officers other than selectmen were not attacked. Then the court went further and stated that should the practice be continued another year upon similar proceedings brought, relief might be afforded. If there is any doubt in the minds of the townspeople at this time as to what the ruling was and what the court stated, it should be dispelled by the fact that this case was the precedent for the omission of the illegal designations on the ballot in Brookline last year and for their omission on our Winchester ballot to be used March 7th. The result is that a ballot which conforms with the law has been secured.

I feel that my lack of support last year among people from whom I might otherwise have reasonably expected it was occasioned by a belief that I was making a disturbance without proper cause, and that if what has been accomplished is now sufficiently clear, I may this year be given that support in my candidacy for the office of selectman.

HENRY J. MAGUIRE FOR SELECTMAN

Henry Joseph Maguire was born in Winchester in 1896. He had the good fortune to have as his parents, Michael Maguire, long foreman of the Highway Department of the town, and Mary E. Maguire, a resident of Winchester for nearly 50 years. While still a boy, he had the misfortune of losing his father.

Nevertheless he graduated with honors from the Winchester High School in 1914. He went immediately to work. After incidental jobs he was employed in 1916 by S. S. Pierce Company. By progressive and rapid advancement he became retail sales manager in which responsible executive position he is now and has been some eight years.

The opportunity for further education which he was earlier forced to forego, he seized while carrying on his demanding business duties. He attended summer courses at Pennsylvania State College in 1922 and the Harvard Business School in 1928.

In town affairs he was first a town meeting member from Precinct 2 in which he now lives at 30 Westley street. For the last three years he has been a member of the Finance Committee, of which during his last year he has been vice chairman.

During my service with him on the Finance Committee it became apparent to me and all members of the committee that his training, long residence in town, business experience, and honest mindedness made him constantly alive to the needs of the town as a whole and able to bring to bear upon the handling of its affairs an invaluable fund of information and real judgment.

The town needs on its Board of Selectmen men of his demonstrated ability and integrity, particularly in these trying times. He should be elected.

BASKETBALL AT TOWN HALL

Three well contested games Tuesday evening in the Town Hall opened the basketball schedule being arranged by those sponsoring the recreation center in Winchester. About 300 attended and found conditions for basketball in the hall much better than had been expected. By arranging the baskets to utilize the length of the hall a good sized court was laid out and the view from the balconies proved excellent.

Medford Sons of Italy Juniors won from the Winchester Sons of Italy Juniors in one of the games, after an exciting battle, 11-8. The Winchester Collegians, a combination of ex-high school players, won handily from the Winchester Unemployed, 37-13, and the Winchester Rovers took the night-cup from St. Anthony's of the Woburn Church League, 28-17. FORD LEFT FOR CARDINALS CAMP THURSDAY

Horace Ford, veteran National League shortstop and proprietor of Horace Ford's ice cream and candy shop on Thompson street, left with Mrs. Ford Thursday morning for Bradenton, Fla., where he will report to Manager "Gabby" Street at the spring training camp of the St. Louis Cardinals, the present World's Champions.

Ford was bought by the Cardinals from the Cincinnati Reds during the off season, but refused to sign the first contract sent him by President Branch Rickey. After about two weeks of absolute silence on both sides Ford received a wire last week-end, ordering him to report and stating that his terms were satisfactory to the St. Louis club. He will sign his contract upon his arrival at Bradenton.

Horace is a 10-year man, and cannot be sent to the minors. He was not happy under Manager Howley at Cincinnati, and did little regular playing last season. He refused to accept a substantial salary cut a year ago, and steadfastly maintained that he would quit the game rather than accept a contract which was not satisfactory.

The same went for this season. Ford is a veteran, a fine fielder and a smart ball player who is equally at home on either side of second base. He is never far out of condition and should give the Cardinals just the reserve strength necessary in the infield. With Frisch and Gilbert still unsigned and with High and Flowers no longer in St. Louis uniforms it would seem that the Cardinals will find Horace a handy man to have around. His many Winchester friends will watch his work with the Cardinals closely and will be pulling for another St. Louis start in the next World's Series.

SCOUT CAMP JUBILEE AND REUNION

The parents of all Winchester Boy Scouts are invited to the 1932 camp jubilee and reunion to be held at the Congregational Church on Saturday, Feb. 27 at 8 p. m. It is hoped that every father and mother of a Boy Scout will take advantage of this opportunity to become acquainted with some of the more important and interesting features of life at Camp Kenosha.

In addition to the program already announced, there will be opportunity during and after refreshments for personal talks with the camp director, Mr. French, and his assistants.

Evening Song		Baird

The public is cordially invited.

CONGREGATIONAL MEN HEARD DR. HOLCOMBE

Over 100 leading men of this town after a big dinner in the parish rectory of the First Congregational Church listened to Dr. Arthur Norman Holcombe, Professor of Government, well known authority and author on the Orient, tell the historical, economic, political, psychological and racial reasons for the present Chinese-Japanese crisis. Dr. Holcombe had just returned from Washington where he had been in conference on the subject. He will end the week by addressing the Foreign Policies Association in Boston. Dr. Holcombe was born and reared in Winchester.

A number of men in Winchester who have lived and visited in China and Japan, also representatives of the Navy, and many interested in the study of International Relations were present and entered into animated discussions.

This club this year has adopted an unusually aggressive program that will be varied, timely, and of exceptional quality.

At this meeting a sheet of questions to be checked was given each man in order to find out what his interests are so that he may get together with other men in the town who have the same interests and so that a better organization can be set up to do the many useful and interesting things that the club plans to do. Among other things the club plans to be helpful to each other. For example, men hearing of opportunities in business, will pass that information into a committee who will bring it to the attention of any who are interested and able to follow it up. This is but one reason why men who wish in a quiet way, to serve other men and really enjoy doing it are affiliating with the club. Between 20 and 30 more have joined it during the current week, and it is estimated that the membership will soon be over 300.

John D. West of Central street was elected in the January meeting as the new president. Some of the committees that are being formed are Entertainment, Publicity, Advertising, Hospitality, Business Opportunities, Reportorial (covering personal notes about members), Hobby (to see that men interested in photography, chess, fishing, camping, woodworking, etc., get to know each other—as a feature of one of the meetings, it is planned to have an exhibit of enlarged photographs of scenes taken by members in different parts of the world). Athletic Committee: golf, tennis, hiking, volleyball, squash, ping pong, etc.

The aim of the club is to know each other better and to be of use to each other as well as to mankind in general, which aim is appealing to the men.

Men who wish to receive notices of the meetings or to become one of the members send their names and addresses to Mr. C. G. Young, 48 Water street, Winchester.

ROTARY CLUB

At the regular meeting of Feb. 25 four absentees were recorded.

The March issue of "The Rotarian" gives visible evidence that the alleged wabbling motion of the Rotary wheel tends to give the wheel a push forward. It seems that the Rotary Club of North Worth, Texas, numbers amongst its members six fathers and their sons. This is a substantial reply to those who surmise that Rotary is afflicted with senile decay.

Our latest communication from Rotary International gives advice that Rotary Club No. 3500 has been organized at Sundsvall, Sweden. We expect to announce shortly that other Clubs have been organized much nearer home. There is no question that this growth in the organization is not only steady but also healthy and those in closest touch with Rotary firmly believe it to be a most important factor in promoting the social stability of the world.

At this week's meeting of our Club the entertainment hour was in charge of the Community Service committee, George Davidson, chairman. As its major activity this season, this committee has applied its efforts to the Unemployment Relief movement. In order that the Club might have a more complete understanding of what has been and is being accomplished in this direction, our committee prevailed on our fellow-citizen, Mr. Frederic S. Snyder to address us at this time. Mr. Snyder has been in charge of the movement for the relief of unemployment in this town; he is performing similar service for the City of Boston; for many years past he has, for the most part gratuitously, contributed his efforts to promote the public welfare in the municipality, in the commonwealth and in the nation. The Club was indeed fortunate in being able to avail itself of the authoritative information which Mr. Snyder possesses and we feel that this meeting was of major significance. We are indebted to our committee and to Mr. Snyder for this highly successful event.

Absentees from this meeting are earnestly besought to cancel their delinquencies.

Percentage of attendance, Feb. 15—100 per cent.

MOTOR EXCISE BILLS IN MAIL

The first lot of motor excise bills are now in the mail and this commitment will be followed by another as soon as the Assessors can get it ready. This year for the first time the Assessors have given the make of the car taxed instead of the engine number and the Collector has been pleased to put this on the bills trusting that this will make it easier for the car owner to identify the auto taxed.

FUNERAL RITES FOR GEORGE S. F. BARTLETT

With the flags on the common and public buildings at half-staff, funeral services for George S. F. Bartlett, veteran clerk of the Board of Selectmen, were held in the First Congregational Church on last Saturday afternoon. The pastor of the church, Rev. Howard J. Chidley, officiated, and the services were attended by a large delegation of town officials with whom the deceased had been associated and among whom he was held in high esteem.

The Boston Five Cent Savings Bank, of which Mr. Bartlett was assistant treasurer and manager of the life insurance department, was represented by President Wilmot R. Evans, Vice President Frederic McDuffie, Treasurer Harry T. Van Huse and Assistant Treasurer George A. Kyle, James H. Simpson and Albert B. Merrill.

Pall bearers were Harris S. Richardson, chairman of the Board of Selectmen; Harold K. Barrows, Richard B. Derby, Associate Justice Curtis W. Nash of the Woburn District Court, all of Winchester; and Mark R. Joutett of Newton and Harry T. Van Huse of Weston. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Mr. Bartlett died Feb. 17 in the Palmer Memorial Hospital where he had undergone an operation, from which he had been thought to be recovering. He was 51 years old and had made his home in Winchester for the past 22 years, living at 16 Mason street. He was born in Cambridge and graduated from Arlington High School, later attending the Normal Art School in Boston, now the Massachusetts School of Art.

He had been associated with the Boston Five Cent Savings Bank for 34 years, was a member of many banking associations and had served the American Institute of Banking as president of its Boston chapter.

Mr. Bartlett was appointed clerk of the Board of Selectmen Oct. 1, 1916, and had since served in that capacity. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice Worcester Bartlett, by a son, George H., his mother, Mrs. Julia (Smith) Bartlett of Arlington Heights, and by a sister, Miss Ethel Bartlett, living in Cambridge.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN OBSERVED 89TH BIRTHDAY

Mr. David L. Storey, one of Winchester's remaining Civil War veterans, observed his 89th birthday on last Thursday, Feb. 18, with a family party at his home, 9 Norwood street. Children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren were present, four generations being represented at the party.

The veteran, who makes his home with his daughter, Mrs. Carrie Eldredge, is in excellent health and thoroughly enjoyed the turkey dinner and fine big birthday cake prepared in his honor. He is keenly interested in present day events and enjoys discussing them, as he does the stirring days of '61 when he served with the 27th Massachusetts Infantry, acting as orderly to General Devens during the last two years of the war. He participated in 38 engagements and is able to tell interesting stories of his experiences while serving with "Boys in Blue."

Mr. Storey is a native of Essex, but has made Winchester his home since 1900. The Star joins his many friends in congratulations and best wishes upon his 89th birthday.

GRANGE OBSERVED 18TH ANNIVERSARY

More than 150 members and guests gathered in Lyceum Hall Tuesday evening for the celebration of the 18th anniversary of the Winchester Grange. The hall was attractively decorated with streamers in many attractive shades and the lighting fixtures were also artistically covered. The entertainment opened with an amusing one act play, entitled "Squaring It With the Boss," in which parts were taken as follows:

Jimmy	Wilfred Lafayette
Beth	Rachel Owen
Aunt Clarissa	Blanche Scott
Aunt Hortense	Helen Studley
Mr. Dunn	Winover Robinson
Johnnie Bender	Marjorie Stevenson
Mrs. Bender (the woman next door)	Blanche Drown

Following the play an entertaining skit, comprising vocal solos and "chatter" was put on by Helen Studley and James Mawn. Music was furnished by Joyce's Orchestra and there was dancing and whist from 9:30 until midnight. Several novelty and old fashioned dances were enjoyed.

Mrs. Blanche Drown was chairman of the general committee, assisted by Mrs. Marie Stevenson, Mrs. Ada Wildberger, Henry Drown, Mrs. Elsie Mobbs and Miss Evelyn Fitzsimmons. Mrs. Jennie Roberts was in charge of the whist and the refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Mary Robinson and Mrs. Marion Goodnough.

THE WELFARE BOARD OF WINCHESTER

Welfare work in Winchester is taking on a new significance. Unemployment relief work has overshadowed the normal activities of the Board and made much relief, which would otherwise have developed, quite unnecessary.

The conditions which have made unemployment relief and welfare board work extremely important throughout the State will not disappear during 1932. When the Unemployment Relief is discontinued, the work of the Welfare Board will become more important than at any previous time in its history. A very great increase in the burden and importance of the Welfare Board will then occur.

It is highly important, therefore, that the personnel of the Board be so developed that the work of the next three years shall be upon the highest possible plane of sound business experience and administrative efficiency.

Mr. Howard L. Bennett, Assistant Treasurer of the Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper Co., has been a resident of Winchester for 25 years, a member of the Town Finance Committee for three years, serving as Secretary during the third year. He has consented to stand for election. Upon the ground of the importance of the work to be done, his personal competence, financial training, familiarity with town affairs, and business experience, we recommend his election to the Board.

RESCUED BY WINCHESTER OFFICER

Officer Harry F. Dyson of this town, a member of the Metropolitan District Police, rescued three West Medford children from drowning in lower Mystic Lake yesterday afternoon. The three girls ranging from 7 to 10 years in age, were walking along the ice near the shore when they broke through. Seen by Officer Dyson, who seized one of the rescue ladders placed near the shore, they were pulled to the surface after having sunk beneath the water. Dyson crawled out on the ladder and effected the rescue. Two of the children were beneath the water and the third was clinging to the edge of the ice. They were little the worse for their ducking, thanks to the prompt work of the officer, and were taken to their homes by Patrolman Egan.

BASKETBALL NEXT WEEK

Winchester's new basketball center at the Town Hall is proving very popular, and with the layout the long way of the hall provides ones of the best courts in this district. The one disadvantage is the fact that few dates for playing can be secured.

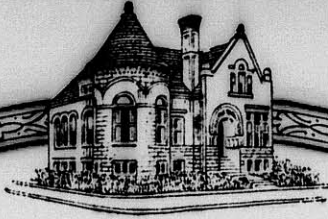

Those available are being snapped up eagerly and on Tuesday afternoon, March 1, there will be games commencing at 4 o'clock, with more games in the evening commencing at 7:30. Wednesday evening, March 2, additional games will be scheduled to start at 7:30. The names of the competing teams can not be announced at this time, but the games will be worth watching, and townspeople, both men and women, are urged to attend and see for themselves how well the center is working out. A nominal charge of 10c will be levied to assist in defraying expenses.

This week's games on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings were well played and handled by "Ed" Godfrey, a professional coach, who acted as referee.

ENTERTAINED AT TEA

Miss Carol Abbott gave a tea yesterday afternoon at her home in Rangleve. Among the guests were the Misses Marjorie Dolben, Betty Proctor, Margaret Nash, Betty Fowle, Helen Barry, Martha Bowden, Virginia Small, Madeline Little, Elizabeth Chamberlin, Frederica MacVicar, Margery Little, Ruth Stevenson, Louise Rollins, Anita Wilson, Jean Thompson, Harriet Johnson, Marguerite Bartlett, Elizabeth Packer, Priscilla Guild and Priscilla Chamberlin, and Howard Crowell. WINCHESTER CURLERS REACH TWO FINALS

Winchester Country Club curlers had a glorious week-end until the rising temperature of the holiday forced them to suspend operations. It was the first time this winter they had a really good surface to play on, and the action was fast and furious while it lasted. The finals were reached in two divisions, but after five ends the surface became too sticky to finish the matches. The Charles W. Young trophy is at stake and it is hoped that the ice will still be had for the windup.

Skip O. M. Flather brought a rink down from Nashua Country Club for an inter-state holiday match, to do battle with Bowen Tufts and his hearties, but after four events Old Sol took command. The summaries of the matches that were completed:

WINCHESTER MEMBERS OF C. A. R. ATTENDED GOVERNOR'S RECEPTION

The Black Horse Tavern Society, Children of the American Revolution paid tribute to the birth of George Washington on the 200th anniversary by attending in a body the Governor's reception also the exercises at the Washington statue in the Public Garden, opposite Commonwealth avenue.

At the reception, Norris Chevalier pinned a boutonniere upon the lapel of Governor Ely's coat while Jeanne Phelps presented Mrs. Ely with a formal bouquet of red, white and blue flowers. Charles Beaudry, and Lucius Smith acted as color bearers, both boys also are Boy Scouts.

Ann Mauldin was aide to Mrs. Carl L. Watson, Chairman of the Daughters of the American Revolution program, and Richard Wain was aide to Mrs. Mary Horton McDowell, State Director of the Children of the American Revolution.

At the Washington Monument the speaker of the day was Attorney General Joseph E. Warner and was followed by an original tribute to Washington by Sue Maxwell Mauldin the 13-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Mauldin of Crescent road and Junior President of the Black Horse Tavern Society. Using as her subject, "What George Washington Means to Me" she said:

"In my mind George Washington stands out as one of the most famous figures in American History. His life was such that his name will live forever. It was a life of service to his country. As a statesman and a soldier, Washington never forgot his love for God and his Country. He once said, 'The love of my country will always be a ruling influence in my life.' Washington's cheerful nature and active brain helped him to overcome many obstacles. At Valley Forge the scanty food, shelter and clothing of the soldiers would have discouraged many of them, but for his example.

"We the younger generations, must remember that this country of ours, for which he fought, is worthy of our love and pride, and we must dedicate ourselves to the purpose of living a life of which Washington would approve. In this way we will keep the names of George Washington and the United States of America glorious in the eyes of the world."

After this tribute, Miss Sue placed a wreath in the name of her Society at the base of the statue.

The Black Horse Tavern Society, the youngest in the State was organized by Mrs. Archibald Campbell Jordan in 1931. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Lucius Smith, 38 Park avenue, Wednesday Mar. 2, at 3:45 in the afternoon.

All children eligible to membership are cordially invited to advise Mrs. Jordan or the Junior President, Sue Mauldin.

Special interest was taken in Miss Vinson, a Winchester girl and recent winner of the National Women's figure skating championship. She gave a superb exhibition both solo and with her partner, Mr. George E. B. Hill.

The committee in charge of the carnival included Mrs. Georgia Farnsworth, Mr. Carl W. Wood, and Mr. James Russell.

Plans had been made for a carnival for the members and their children to be held on Monday afternoon, but due to the ice conditions the affair was called off. Tea was served at the clubhouse and among the guests were Miss Follett, Mr. Parmenter, Mr. Towers, Miss Polly Blodgett and Master Robin Lee, a 12-year old Minneapolis boy. UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF NEWS

Another ten days will probably see the completion of the earth removal from the Mill Pond basin. The untouched section is now an island which is being steadily diminished in size. In previous notes, reference has been made to the value of loam removed. This value has been steadily climbing. A large amount of loam has been removed to the upper end of Judkins Pond and will be used for surfacing and grass growing on a large area which is now the remains of the extensive dumping which has been developed there. More than $4000 worth of loam has been delivered to the Junior High School area and this is being steadily augmented.

Some of the committee made a Washington's Birthday survey of the Aberjona basin to confirm previous studies. It will be necessary in order to carry this filling program forward to extend and correct the location of the surface drainage at the northerly end of Judkins Pond. Pipe must be brought down through the long peninsula of land to a point much nearer the Mt. Vernon street bridge. The present temporary drain will have acres of land built up in front of it. This will eventually make possible a splendid park for high school or other uses. This low land would never be desirable for building purposes.

At this writing 208 men are being employed and paid from the proceeds of the fund. Of this number, 58 are on full time of five days each week, 21 on four-day time, 51 on a three-day schedule, and 78 on two-day schedule. The adjustment of time is of course based upon the thoroughly investigated needs of the worker and those dependent upon him.

Crews are working at the Mill Pond and Horn Pond Brook, carrying forward from the termination of the work by Mr. Lewis Parkhurst. Riprap is used upon this section of the brook in order to prevent erosion. Some 1200 square feet has been placed in position. Another crew is working at Leonard Field. Eight painters are at work on the Cemetery house. Six men are doing special survey work under the direction of the Engineering Department. Four men are working for the Water Works. Three men are cutting brush on town property near High street.

Thirty eight hundred and seventy yards of silt have thus far been removed from the Mill Pond.

Thirty nine hundred and ninety one units of clothing have been issued up to date.

Direct employment work has been furnished thus far to the extent of $18,931.64.

More housework is needed for women. Many apply to us for temporary or permanent work. Telephone Winchester 0793-M, stating your needs for domestic help and the Committee will doubtless be able to supply them.

REPUBLICAN DISTRICT MEETING

A dinner-meeting of Republicans in the Sixth Senatorial District was held at the Calumet Club last week under the auspices of the State Committee, about 70 being present from Arlington, Medford, Woburn and Winchester. Following dinner at 6:30, Ex-Mayor Harold P. Johnson of Woburn opened the meeting as temporary chairman, explaining its purpose as a get-together of interested Republicans for a social and discussion program as part of a statewide organization of Councils, the preliminary meeting in this District having recently taken place at Arlington with Congressman Edith Nourse Rogers as guest speaker.

Ex-Mayor Johnson then introduced J. Ernest Karr, Secretary of the Republican Club of Massachusetts, who spoke briefly on coming political events and the duties of party workers. Attorney Kenneth P. Williams of Woburn was then elected permanent chairman, Philip A. Jerguson of Medford, vice-president; Lillian P. Forbes of Arlington, secretary; and Vincent P. Clarke of Winchester, treasurer; after which a very interesting and instructive discussion on the prohibition issue was led by Attorney Alfred P. Radley of Winchester, urging repeal and Professor George C. Cell of Reading and Boston University who advocated continuance of the constitutional amendment. Several spoke from the floor and the meeting adjourned about 10 o'clock after a vote of thanks to Mrs. Louis K. Snyder, president of the Women's Republican Club who took charge of the dinner assisted by club members and together with Mrs. Sylvanus H. Taylor, Vincent P. Clarke and Kingman P. Cass, had charge of the tickets.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY OBSERVED AT CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

A special service was held on Feb. 22 by the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester, as a part of the nation-wide celebration of the George Washington bicentennial.

The service included an address on George Washington by the First Reader, in part, as follows:

"Unquestionably, George Washington was a man of good character and of good intelligence. The famous hatchet and cherry tree story attached to his boyhood was a fiction invented by one of his biographers. But there is dependable evidence that the companions of his youth regarded Washington as having, as one of them has recorded, 'an extraordinary and exalted character.' When Washington, at the age of 42, was in the Continental Congress of 1774, Patrick Henry said, 'If you speak of solid information and sound judgment, Colonel Washington is unquestionably the greatest man on that floor.' It is such facts as these which explain why Washington was early the outstanding figure in American life, even before his later and greater prominence.

"It can be said of Washington that he served God and men consistently and faithfully, according to what he regarded as his opportunities, that he did this unselfishly, and that no lapse of time is likely to dim either the value or the virtue of his service. The United States of America has been greatly blessed by having had the benefit of Washington's wholesome example and influence, not only during our country's inception, but also throughout its history, even to the present time."

A lesson-sermon prepared especially for this occasion was read by the First and Second Readers. One of the Scriptural passages contained in this lesson-sermon was, "And now, Israel, what doth the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul" (Deuteronomy 10:12).

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, was as follows: "Love inspires, illumines, designates, and leads the way. Right motives give pinions to thought, and strength and freedom to speech and action" (p. 454).

The solo was "How Beautiful Upon the Mountain" and the reading of "the scientific statement of being" from the Christian Science textbook, its correlative Scripture, and the benediction from I Thess concluded the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Dumper of Rangeley left this week on an auto tour to Florida. They will travel by easy stages and expect to spend the most of their time at the resort which most attracts them. They anticipate returning about the first of April.

W. C. T. U. REGIONAL CONFERENCE

Mrs. Ella A. Boole, national president, presided at the conference held Feb. 16-17 in Hotel Statler, Boston.

The conference which was one of 24 held in different parts of the United States, was largely attended. Many ladies from Winchester attended the meetings on Tuesday. At the luncheon held in the Statler on Wednesday, the local organization was represented by Mrs. Alfred Friend, Mrs. George Hamilton, Mrs. Frank Roberts, Mrs. Harry Kempton and Mrs. Ida Belichon.

Chief among the notable speakers were Dr. Richard C. Cabot, Professor of Harvard School of Medicine; Hon. Frederick H. Tarr, U. S. District Attorney Joseph Zottile, Judge Municipal Court; Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, President Boston University. All speakers impressed upon their audiences the fact that the object of the conference was to promote law observance, study the problems of law enforcement; and to make vocal the sentiment in favor of national prohibition.

At the monthly meeting of the local Union held at the home of the president, Mrs. Alfred Friend, the following resolution was adopted and ordered sent to our Senators and Representatives at Washington:

"Congress is faced with the wet proposal for a vote in Congress to repeal the 18th amendment. This is thinly camouflaged as resubmission on referendum: words which, of course, deceive no intelligent person but serve or are supposed to serve as a screen for wavering dry members. It is our intention to support Massachusetts Congressmen and Senators who vote against repeal, and to oppose the nomination and election of all who vote for repeal under whatever name, to the full extent of our ability. If the vote should come on the repeal of the Volstead Act, our attitude and action would be the same."

WEEK-END ACCIDENTS

Several accidents were reported to the police over the holiday week-end. At 2:24 Friday afternoon on Headquarters was notified that a truck had tipped over on Swanton street near the freight house. Patrolmen James P. Donaghey and John Hanlon were sent to investigate and found that a Ford truck, owned by Abraham Luvinsky of 84 Mandaly place, Newton, and driven by Angelo V. Bruno of 24 Chester street, had struck a pole west of the freight house and had turned over. The truck, which was damaged, was headed west on Swanton street when the accident occurred and in some way got out of control. No one was injured.

At 11 o'clock Friday night the police were notified by John F. McGrath of 33 Congress street, Stoneham, that as he was driving his Chevrolet coach north on Forest street at Forest circle south the machine was bumped in the rear by a Pontiac truck, driven by Raymond

T. Robbins of 38 Melvin street, Wakefield. McGrath said that no one was injured but that the rear-end of his coach was damaged.

Saturday evening at 7:30 a Ford sedan, owned and driven by Michael Messina of 107 Ferry street, Everett, while going south on Main street in the Square, was in collision with a Ford coupe, driven by Michael Galvin of 5 Elmwood avenue, who was going north on Main street and turning into Church street. Both machines were damaged, but no one was injured.

DEMOLAY ACTIVITIES

According to "Jim" Mercer, Past Master Councilor, Middlesex Chapter's basketball team has a permanent squad of nine men, and recently took the Reading Independent Team into camp to the tune of 37 to 21. Any DeMolay team or independent clubs wishing games with fellows of the ages 16 to 21 may secure them through Clarence Gay in Reading. His phone number is Reading 6737.

The Camp DeMolay contest is under full swing and petitions for new members are rolling in at a great rate. To those who are not familiar with the rules of the contest, Chester J. Campbell, prominent in the Grand Council Order of DeMolay is offering a week at Camp DeMolay, situated at Jitah Island, on Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H., to the boy getting the greatest number of new members in comparison to the size of his chapter.

Wendell Packard, Past Master Councilor, and Middlesex Chapter's first Legion of Honor member, replaced Hubert Bernard as Senior Councilor at the Anniversary Initiatory Degree Feb. 12, at the Masonic Temple, Roxbury. Hubert Bernard was confined to home because of illness.

As guests of Melrose last Thursday evening, Middlesex Chapter experienced a delightful treat, when the patrol of the Old Colony Chapter of Quincy gave one of the snappiest exhibitions ever beheld by a DeMolay in that chapter.

Middlesex Chapter wishes to express their sorrow for "Dad" Tabor, Advisor of Medford Chapter, who has recently met with an accident while driving his car. "Dad" Tabor may lose the sight of one eye.

Edward Haradon of Stoneham was presented a merit medal by "Dad" Miller, of Governor's avenue, Winchester, for petitioning new members. These medals are given for attendance, merit, ritual, and in being able to petition five new members into the chapter.

Melrose Chapter is to be the guest of Middlesex Chapter, March 9, when they will exemplify the Initiatory Degree. Masons are cordially invited to attend.

CLAIMED CAR WAS STOLEN

At 5:30 on the afternoon of the holiday Police Headquarters as notified that a car was parked in the driveway of a home on Cambridge street and had been there all day. The registration was given the authorities and they learned that the machine was registered to George O'Neil, of 69 Edgar avenue, Somerville, who informed them that his machine was in his back yard.

Meanwhile Sergt. John Noonan and Patrolman James P. Donaghy went to investigate the abandoned car on Cambridge street and found it to be an Essex coach, bearing 1931 plates, with a 1932 plate over the one on the rear. They learned that the machine had been left in the driveway by two young men who said they were out of gas.

The 1932 plate was found to have been issued to O'Neil and the authorities called him to learn how it came to be upon the Essex. He stated that he had lost it three or four days previous and had neglected to report it. The 1931 plates had been issued to Gabriel Del Bene of 7 Jacques street, Somerville, who informed the police that he had put up his car in a garage for the winter. Later he qualified his statement by saying that the car, minus a tire and tightly locked had been left in the rear of a gas station. He said that the machine had been stolen.

It was towed to a garage, the 1931 plates having been removed by the police. Mr. Del Bene was surprised and not a little pained when the authorities refused to give them to him so that he could take his car home. Meanwhile the storage bill is mounting, and of course there is the tow.

CALUMET NOTES

The bowling enthusiasts surely had a day of unalloyed pleasure at the club on Washington's Birthday when a big crowd of members were on the alleys from 10 a. m. until 7 p. m. The ladies took possession in the evening, and rolled for prizes, but unfortunately the winners can not be announced at this time.

Everyone had a good time, and particularly the 200 or more kiddies who were guests of the club at the annual Children's Party in the afternoon. Motion pictures were the feature of the afternoon, but for good measure there were holiday favors, fancy hats and, of course, ice cream. George T. Davidson was in charge of the afternoon party with Harry McGrath looking after the member's bowling and Warren Cox, that of the ladies in the evening.

Speaking of bowling, the mixed tournament is down to start on Wednesday evening, March 9, and the committee confidently expects one of the best seasons ever. The regular Tuesday afternoon bowling for ladies will be held on March 1 at 2 o'clock.

Following are the standing of the teams in the Winter Bowling Tournament complete to Feb. 25. Look them over and see where you stand.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

"Dream Pictures" is the fascinating and intriguing title of a series of living pictures and tableaux to be presented by the Art Committee on Feb. 29 at the regular meeting of The Fortnightly.

The Art Committee's Dream, first on the program, will illustrate an artist's struggle to paint his masterpiece. Inspiration comes to him in dreams and visualization of the works of such great masters as Reynolds, De Vinci, Millet, Sargent, Whistler and even the modern painters. At last the artist realizes his hopes and achieves his "dream," a painting worthy of presentation to the world.

In the second number, Grandmother's Dream, grandmother recalls scenes of long ago; her childhood and youth, a lovely dance, her wedding day and married life.

Finally a colorful tableau will depict an impressive and historically significant scene in the life of George Washington. So we may in this year of his bi-centennial recall and stress the prominent position and lasting greatness of that famous American.

The Art Committee and many other members of The Fortnightly will participate in this program, wearing costumes of the Renaissance, of Colonial days of 19th century Europe and also of modern times. A trio including Mary Witham, Gertrude Hinton and Inez Arvillo, will play timely music during the afternoon and the Glee Club under the direction of Mrs. Mary T. Gherardini, chairman, will sing several songs. There will be solos by Mrs. W. W. Winslip, president of The Fortnightly and by Dana Kelley.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

The Girl Scouts held their mid-winter get-together and court of awards Saturday, Feb. 20, in the Town Hall. A program of much interest was presented. The highest award in Girl Scouting, the golden eagle was given by the Winchester Council and presented by Mrs. Arthur Hart of Brookline, a member of the National Girl Scout Executive Board to Scouts Marie Dresser and Virginia Besse. The golden eagle flag was held by Anita Wilson and Captain Campbell, both golden eaglets. Scouts Besse and Dresser have received their training with Captains Parker and Symmes. Mrs. Hart spoke briefly on the necessary requirements for the award, and brought out clearly the fact that the greatest of these was the spiritual development which takes place as a Scout lives her laws of friendliness, helpfulness, loyalty and true sisterhood.

The Bugle and Drum Corp, Anita Wilson, Drum Major, gave a splendid exhibition of their training and Scouts Phelps, Moulton and Cooper gave bugle and drum solos.

The awarding of badges by the court of awards committee, Mrs. George Stidston, chairman, assisted by Mrs. T. Parker Clarke and Mrs. Cora Cortell Phelps was most inspiring. This is a sort of measurement stick, which proves the amount of road traveled by Scouts, Captains, Council and the entire organization. One first class badge was awarded to Norma Godfrey of Troop 4, Captain Hughes' Troop. Second class awards were given to Nancy Bonner, Ruth LeRoy, Geneva Manning and Martha Herrick of Troop 4; Eleanor Green of Troop 6; Betty Newman, Francis Glidden and Helen Russell of Troop 7 and Lieut. Murray, Helen Murray, Ann Mauldin, Harriett Quimby and Mary Louise French of Troop 8.

Sixty merit badges were given to Scouts from different troops.

A short play, "She Serves Also" was given by seven Scouts: Alice Welsh, Mary Elizabeth Hall, Anita Wilson, Eugenia Peppard, Martha Hill, Annette Randlett and Gene Phelps and received much praise for their interpretation of the characters. The singing of the entire group led by Captain Hughes, was a jolly period and especially delighted were the Scouts to have Miss Amy Sherman Bridgman speak to them after they had sung her song, "The Glorious Name of Washington."

A very lovely "Thank you" pin was presented to Commissioner Hall by Captain Marian Symmes, as a gift from the Captains of Winchester: Captains Parker, Symmes, Hughes, Carruthers, Bratt, Newman, Campbell and MacElwain. It was a surprise to Mrs. Hall and in responding Mrs. Hall thanked the Captains for their gift and kind thoughts, and said that every day a leader receives her "thank you" when she looks into the faces of her Scouts and receives the co-operation of her organization.

Mrs. Phelps received a "thank you" pin from Troop 4 and was taken by surprise. Mrs. Phelps has been assisting with Troop 4 for three years and has taught folk dancing and helped many of the girls to earn their merit badges as well as giving generously of her home studio for meetings, and assisting in other capacities.

of Scout work as well as in this Troop. The Council is glad to acknowledge her faithfulness to Scouting and congratulate her and the troop for their thoughtfulness of her services.

A special meeting on Ways and Means was held at the home of Mrs. John Joy, Wednesday, the 24th.

Two hundred and seventy-eight names were added to the town's voting list at this week's session of the Registrars of Voters.

Nothing new politically has developed in the past few days. Contests on the ballot have developed for the office of Selectmen, for the Board of Public Welfare and for Assessor. Reports that there would be candidates in the field to oppose present members of the School Committee and Moderator Hayward proved without foundation.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin G. Smith of Medford are the parents of a son, born Feb. 24 at the Richardson House in Boston. Mrs. Smith was before her marriage Miss Alice Mitchell of Winchester.

Harold "Lefty" Hatch, veteran porter, was among the pitching candidates to report to Judge Nash at Tufts this week.

The youngster found the friend in President Norman Skene of the Winchester Boat Club who took him to local headquarters where his father, Ben Ross, was soon located through the co-operation of the Boston Police. SAD CHINKIANG, WHERE BRITAIN RETURNS CONCESSION TO CHINA

News of Great Britain's surrender of the Chinkiang foreign concession to China marks the end of a fond hope, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Sixty-eight years ago the British saw in Chinkiang the seed of a great Chinese port. Its site, at the junction of the Grand Canal and the Yangtze, seemed the natural clearing station of the principal east-west and north-south waterways of China. Chinkiang, 166 miles up-river from Shanghai and 60 miles down river from Nanking, just had to grow. But it didn't.

River Deserts Its Island
The year the United States was fighting the first battle of Bull Run, Admiral Sir James Hope, then engaged in opening the Yangtze to foreign trade, sailed his fleet into the channel behind Golden Island near Chinkiang and anchored. Fields of peanuts and corn now thrive where his anchors sank in soft mud. Soon after the British arrived to establish a foreign concession the river deserted the pagoda-crowned, temple-girt green island hill and left it stranded on shore.

Having deserted Golden Island, the Yangtze began to ease out of reach of Chinkiang itself. Travelers visiting the city in the winter season walk along the Bund (quay) and view a dismal sight. A sea of mud instead of a river of water stretches before the eye. Scores of junks, their masts careening crazily, lie in the mud like a herd of giant beasts bogged down in a prehistoric swamp.

Yangtze Coils in New Curves
The Yangtze and the Grand Canal have both failed Chinkiang. Half the population, and now the British, have abandoned the ancient city. Like the Mississippi, the Yangtze coils in new curves. For many years the river's curve at Chinkiang has swung toward the opposite, north shore; toward Yangchow, the city that Marco Polo governed for three years. On Yangchow flats where hunters shoot snipe one year the Yangtze runs 75 feet deep the next. In 60 years the Yangtze "dragon" will coil back to Chinkiang's Bund, so say the engineers.

The Grand Canal has served Chinkiang for 1300 years. Its route runs from Shanghai to Chinkiang, then across the Yangtze to Yangchow and north to Tientsin, a 900-mile waterway. Twenty years ago the building of the Tientsin-Pukow Railroad parallel to the north-south route of the Grand Canal introduced a competitor that dealt a final blow to the town's hopes of prosperity. Pukow and Nanking, on opposite sides of the Yangtze, wax fat on trade the railroad brings them while Chinkiang although it has a station on the line between Nanking and Shanghai, starves for business.

Still Has Walls; Hence a City
Like so many Chinese communities, Chinkiang still is a walled city. The British concession and some of the suburbs lie outside the walls.

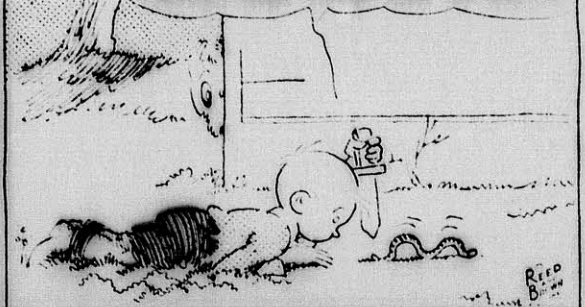

China will find the concession much improved with modern conveniences. A water supply system was installed by the English, houses were built, and a small electric power and light system established.

Traditions of imperial glories remain with Chinkiang amid her ebbing prosperity. In the days of the powerful emperors its citizens crowded the shores to see the three-decked, gorgeously ornamented junks, banners flying, sailing leisurely through the Grand Canal with the Chinese court on board. Between Loyang, on the Yellow River, and Yangchow, on the Yangtze, stood 40 Grand Canal palaces where the emperor, his officials, ladies and attendants stayed for the 40 nights of their triumphal progress. On board the royal junks the court reveled and feasted with an extravagance that vied with scenes aboard Caligula's barges on Lake Nemi.

WINCHESTER DROPPED FINAL GAME TO READING

Defeat Knocked Locals Out of Championship Running

Winchester High School's gallant little basketball team lost its chance to finish in a top tie with Wakefield for the Middlesex League championship when the locals were defeated by a surprisingly good Reading High quintette at Reading last Friday evening, 17-11. The Winchester seconds continued unbeaten in Middlesex competition by winning from the Reading Jay-Vees, 15-6.

The varsity game was no walk-away, as the score would indicate, but Reading deserved its victory. The local players were unanimous in acclaiming Reading as it played last Friday the best combination in the league. Certainly after the opening quarter the victors outplayed the best Winchester could offer, though Coach Lindemann's charges fought to the bitter end.

There was little scoring during the first half, only three floor baskets being scored by both teams. The first quarter ended in a 3-3 deadlock, but Reading had a 7-4 advantage at half time, and increased its lead to six points during the last two quarters.

Gale and Richards, crack Reading forwards, practically decided the issue, their ability to cut around the local defense permitting them each to tally three goals from scrimmage, or enough points to win without Gale's three foul shots and goals from free tries by Bowers and Symonds.

Winchester's sharpshooters, Philbrick and Hamilton were closely covered, and the former's single basket with "Charlie" Dolan's two, were the only goals from scrimmage Winchester could shoot all evening. The locals have played much better ball than they showed last Friday at Reading, and at their best they surely would have had a good chance to win. As it was they lost to a good team after a much better season than any one had a right to expect.

MRS. MARY EMMA SMITH

Mrs. Mary Emma Smith, widow of Sam W. Smith and widely known among older residents of the town, died Sunday afternoon, Feb. 21, at the Home for Aged People on Mt. Vernon street, after a long illness.

Mrs. Smith was born in Boston on Christmas Day, in 1852. Her parents, Andrew T. and Mary (Symmes) Todd, came to Winchester when she was a child and she spent nearly her entire life in this town.

The Todd homestead, in which was organized the first Winchester Hospital, still stands between Governors avenue and Lincoln street, where for years it has been one of the landmarks in that section.

After her marriage to Sam W. Smith of Sanborn, N. H., Mrs. Smith made her home at the corner of Swanton and Washington streets. Her husband was widely known as a provision dealer, operating one of the finest butcher's carts in the district.

For some years after the death of her husband, Mrs. Smith's services were in demand as a nurse and attendant. She entered the Home for Aged People in January of 1924. Surviving is a son, William Jay Smith of Medford.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon in the First Baptist Church of which the deceased had been for many years an active member. Rev. Arthur L. Winn of this town officiated. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Emma Smith After several years of failing health the brave spirit of Mrs. Mary Emma Smith has been released from mental and physical suffering.

She has been a resident of Winchester practically all her life and during her active life was an interested worker in all its activities.

Her friendliness, neighborliness and smile, together with an inborn graciousness of manner, won her the love of a large circle of people with whom she came in contact, and remained as a part of her personality until the end.

WINCHESTER HIGH HAD FINE BASKETBALL SEASON

While Winchester High School did not win the championship of the Middlesex Basketball League this season the locals under their new coach, Ronald Lindemann, made a fine showing, winning 10 out of 14 games.

This record is really excellent when it is recalled that but one letter man was available to start the season, and that because of unfortunate local conditions, the material from which Coach Lindemann was obliged to build his team, in addition to being small in stature, was woefully inexperienced.

The new mentor was anything but sanguine as he viewed his outfit, but he went quietly and effectively to work, and after dropping his first game to a strong Alumni team, or rather two or three teams, announced that his club would play a lot better basketball as the season wore along. It did!

Winning their second game from Woburn, the boys dropped a hard fought game to Wakefield, the ultimate league champions, and from then on played winning basketball all season with the exception of the first game against Stoneham when rank over confidence caused the locals to finish on the short end of a 21-19 score.

Rallying, Winchester defeated Belmont, Reading and Milton before playing its winning return game with Wakefield, a real thriller which Coach Lindemann's charges took by a single point, 20-19.

The victory put Winchester in a top tie for league honors with Wakefield and the locals' wins over Lexington and Stoneham kept them in the running until their final game of the schedule when Reading, playing its best basketball of the season, upset their opponent, 17-11.

The worst the Red and Black can now get in the Middlesex League standing is a tie for second place with Reading, a much better showing than the most rabid supporter would have predicted after watching Winchester against the Alumni group. True to form, Winchester's meager first squad was reduced just before the crucial games of the year when "Hokie" Procopio, rugged guard, was again thrown for a loss by his text books. Dexter Mobbs, who was elected captain toward the end of the season, and played consistently well throughout the year, was under a severe handicap in the last two games, playing while more than half sick with a heavy cold.

In addition to Mobbs, the first team lineup comprised "Shollie" Hamilton, Hal Knowlton, Fred Philbrick, "Charlie" Dolan and Fred Noble. All contributed to the club's success. "Patsy" Tufuri, scrappy little varsity quarterback, managed the team.

No resume of the season would be complete without a big boost for the second team who didn't drop a single league engagement and were defeated but twice all year, both times by Woburn. Included among this scrappy outfit were "Bill" Seaver, Francis Tremberth, "Patsy" Maffeo, Robert Farnham, Lawrence Stewart, Walter Burns and "Tentine" Lentini.

Following is the season's record:

Winchester	10	Alumni	22
Winchester	23	Woburn	22

A MODERN LIBRARY WITH UNIQUE FEATURES

An interior view, from the Delivery Room gallery into the main reading room, of the impressive $175,000 Public Library just opened at Winchester, is shown above.

Note the slanting bottom bookshelves. Human nature being what it is, people will not (perhaps cannot) freely stoop down to inspect or take out books from the usually inaccessible bottom shelf. These title shelves make every book easily visible and accessible.

The lighting system at the Winchester Public Library is said to be entirely new to the United States and far superior in both appearance and quality of illumination to the general practice in library lighting. The light comes from oblongs of flashed opal glass running along the ceiling longitudinally on each side. Desk lamps are unnecessary in any part of the room, so closely does the illumination approximate daylight.

This photograph was taken before the library was ready for use, before the books were all in place, and before the specially designed modernistic andirons had been introduced.

Robert Coit and Kilham, Hopkins & Greeley were the associate architects of this intelligently modern public library, which boasts of a full-fledged art gallery. (From the February number of the Wilson Bulletin for Librarians, the leading library magazine.)

TO THOSE WHO HELPED THE BLIND

Thank you, those friends in Winchester, who helped to make possible the sale for the blind.

The Handicraft Sales committee, and the Massachusetts Division of the Blind, earnestly hope that those who for some reason or another, were unable to attend the demonstration and sale will take advantage of the exhibit, always at 39 Newbury street, Boston.

The store known as Waterfield Restaurant, Common street, Winchester, so kindly loaned through Mr. Holbrook, by Mr. Nelson, made a fine setting for the sale. The volunteers, who helped at the sale, did their best, and the committee feels, considering the year, Winchester did fairly well.

Those who attended the sale, will certainly stimulate interest of others, in work for the blind.

There is a progressive movement, very much being worked upon, by those who are interested in work for the blind, and one phase of the work, is to give more publicity to the needs of the blind—especially those who are capable.

The Boston Committee for the Blind for instance, discovered that if an Ediphone outfit could be purchased, an experienced blind girl could secure a position in refined environment. The outfit was purchased, and the following paragraph from Anna, is one of the reasons for encouraging the chairman, Mrs. Robert E. Naumburg, to attempt to have Winchester enjoy the gratification, such as the members of the committee feel. "To suddenly have an interest in life, to awaken each morning with a feeling of happiness, and to understand the joy of living, that is what I am experiencing now. Life has suddenly become joyous, and I want to thank you for the tremendous part you all have taken in making it so—an entirely new world."

MRS. ELIZABETH O'BRIEN

Mrs. Elizabeth O'Brien, nee Feeheeny, widow of Philip O'Brien of Swanton street, died Monday, Feb. 22 after a long illness. She had made her home in Winchester for about 12 years and had many friends.

She leaves a 3-year old daughter, Elizabeth, living in Framingham, two sisters, Miss Minnie Feeheeny and Mrs. John Sweeney, both of Medford, and a brother, Timothy Feeheeny of Somerville. Her husband died two years ago.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from the undertaking rooms of Eugene P. Sullivan, followed by solemn requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church. Rev. Fr. Conrad J. Quirbach was celebrant, Rev. Fr. John Foley of the Church of the Immaculate Conception was deacon and Rev. Fr. Charles Lynch, sub-deacon. Interment was in Oak Grove Cemetery, Medford.

MALDEN MYSTIC THEATRE

"Guilty Hands" with Lionel Barrymore and Kay Francis as the stars, will headline the bill that opens at the Mystic Theatre in Malden on Saturday. Mr. Lionel Barrymore was recently awarded the medal of the Academy of Arts and Sciences for the best performance of 1931. In "Guilty Hands" Mr. Barrymore portrays Richard Grant, who as a prosecutor, has sent 50 men to the electric chair. As a criminal attorney he has saved hundreds from a like fate. He discovers his daughter, Madge Evans, to be infatuated and under the spell of a wealthy rone, Allan Mowbray plays the part of the libertine. With his background of criminal knowledge, Barrymore plots the death of the man who has ruined his daughter. How this is accomplished makes an intensely interesting screen drama with Barrymore doing superb work.

"The Unexpected Father," a feature length comedy with Zasu Pitts and Slim Summerville co-starred, will be the second feature on the bill for Saturday. "The Unexpected Father" is not all comedy, however. Little Sue Collins, four-year-old girl, does some work that will touch the heart of the most blasé film patron. Others in the cast are Dorothy Christie, Allison Skipworth and Claude Allister. George O'Brien in a talking screen version of Zane Grey's powerful novel, "The Rainbow Trail" tops the bill that ends its run at the Mystic on Friday. "The Secret Witness," a mystery play, with Una Merkel, William Collier, Jr., and Zasu Pitts, is the second feature on the current bill.

GAS EMPLOYEES ASSOCIATION MEETING

The monthly meeting of the Arlington Gas Employees Association was held Tuesday evening, Feb. 23.

A delicious supper was served at 6:30 at Wyman's English Tavern. During the business meeting, Manager Robert H. Patterson expressed his appreciation for the gratifying response received from the employees in regard to the speaking contest which will be held the second week in March. George P. Langton, winner of the local contest last year and winner of the contest in the Northeastern District of the New England Power Association also, said a few words in regard to the knowledge and the value of the experience derived from a contest of this kind.

The attendance prize was won by Thomas Stanton, a foreman in the Street Department. Excellent entertainment brought to a close a very enjoyable evening.

WASHINGTON-HIGHLAND CHAPTER

An attractive entertainment in the form of a George Washington Valentine party was held by the Washington-Highland Chapter of the Mothers' Association in the assembly hall of the George Washington School, Feb. 17. The party was in charge of Mrs. Neil Barker. Mrs. Glen Brown, assisted by Mrs. Carol Hilton, Mrs. Carl Dohr, Mrs. Ove Mortensen and Mrs. Guy Messenger. Candy was sold by three of the fifth grade girls. Betty Newman, Phyllis LeDuc and Dorothy Klvee. Refreshments were served by the committee and tea poured by Mrs. Lucius Smith and Mrs. Earle Andrews.

GLASS-PAPER, NEW SHOW CASE FOR MANY COMMODITIES

It looks like isinglass, or like celluloid, or like a better grade of glassine—but glass-paper's nearest relative is the colorful, glossy rayon, or artificial silk. Glass-paper, also known as transparent cellulose sheeting, now wraps a thousand-and-one commodities, from automobile tires and baked hams, to powder puffs and cigars.

Glass-paper is in no way related to glass, and it is only a distant cousin to paper, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. It is not a new product, but recent developments in the chemical industry have made production possible in quantities and at a price which permits general use. Transparent, thin, tough, and moisture-and-grease proof, it fills a need for a protective wrapping material which, while air-tight, permits the customer to see exactly what he is buying.

Block of Wood or Ball of Cotton
Take a block of wood or a ball of fluffy cotton, and you have either of the bases from which glass-paper is derived. Remove the ash, coloring matter, and other impurities from the wood or the cotton, and retain only the pure vegetable fiber, or cellulose. Treat this compound with caustic soda and sulphuric acid, and the result is "viscose," the liquid which is glass-paper after being forced through a very narrow slit, and cooled. At rayon "threads" are desired the "viscose" is forced through a multiplicity of tiny holes.

Through cellulose, glass-paper is related to many things familiar in modern life. Close cousins are the motion picture film, the powerful explosive trinitro cellulose, molded celluloid articles and lacquers, both the nitro-cellulose for motor car bodies, and the acetate cellulose for giving a shrink-finish to airplane wings. There are many distant uncles and aunts, such as safety glass, where a sheet of celluloid film is cemented between two panes of glass, and synthetic barnyard manure, a decomposition product.

Has Two-Way Benefits
Glass-paper is a versatile wrapping material. In almost all of its uses it can, if necessary, play a dual role. Glass-paper keeps moisture in, or it keeps moisture out; it keeps odors in or it keeps odors out; it keeps air in or it keeps air out; it keeps grease in or it keeps grease out.

It is no more inflammable than ordinary paper, giving it precedence over celluloid films. It is much more transparent than the finest glassine, or waxed paper, and has none of the impurities of mica or isinglass. It can be folded around sharp corners and even overlapped, yet the article within is always clearly visible through the tissue. It is insoluble in water, and can even be eaten without harmful effects, although it is not very appetizing.

Particularly has such a cheap wrapping material appealed to drug store and department store merchants who formerly had to display pillows, powder puffs, pocketbooks, small toys, toothbrushes, etc., on open trays.

GRACE AND CHARM

GRAY HAIR

Gray hair does not hold any place in this youthful world of today. Your first gray hairs will frighten you dreadfully; will make you sad. Although your thoughts and spirit are young, your first gray hairs will immediately make you think of old age. It is true that our hair becomes gray when we grow old, but poor health or a run-down condition are also the cause of gray hair. Gray hair may be the result of a temporary condition, and even though we become well again, the hair still remains gray.

Phagocytes (pronounced Fagocytes) are the cause of gray hair. They are cells similar to white corpuscles of the blood, and when we grow old or are unwell, they feed on the pigments of the hair, causing the hair to lose its natural color, and the result is, gray hair.

If for any reason, your hair is becoming gray, consult an expert beautician who can through the modern method of hair coloring, restore your faded hair to its natural color.

Frances Mandel will answer questions on Grace and Charm if you will enclose a self-addressed envelope to Frances Mandel, 1030 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, Mass.

GREAT GARBO AT THE UNIVERSITY THEATRE

The dangerous but glamorous life of the notorious World War spy, "Mata Hari" is portrayed in the picture of that name which will open Sunday at the University Theatre with the sensational combination of Greta Garbo and Ramon Novarro in the leading roles. The amazing cast of this ambitious production also includes such outstanding screen personalities as Lionel Barrymore, Lewis Stone, Karen Morley and Alec B. Francis, together with a large cast of supporting players. The plot depicts the engrossing career of the fascinating Mata Hari, whose beauty and glamour as a dancer enables her to win her way into the confidence of Allied officers and thus furnish the enemy forces with strategic plans.

That wisecracking, irresponsible pair of gloom chasers, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, poke the merry finger of satire at Reno and the wholesale divorce industry in their newest comedy, "Peach-O-Reno," the companion picture.

Sylvia Sydney, whose excellent work in "An American Tragedy" won favorable comment from the critics, now has the leading feminine part in "Ladies of the Big House," which is scheduled as the feature attraction starting Thursday. It is a gripping romantic drama of two persons who have run athwart the law and presents a cross-section of the real drama of life within the quarters of a great prison.

"The Big Shot," the companion feature starring Eddie Quillan, is a comedy-drama moved around an auto camp. The supporting cast includes Maureen O'Sullivan, Mary Nolan, Roscoe Ates, Ralph Ince, Belle Bennett, Arthur Stone, Otis Harlan and Louis John Bartels.

Flora Bennett and Carolyn B. Cox wish to announce that they have taken over the Shop Unique and will continue the business. They solicit the continued good will of the shop's patrons.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"Hell Divers," most popular of the current screen hits, with Clara Gable and Wallace Beery as the stars, will be the headline attraction on the double bill that opens at the big Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday.

Prized with the co-operation of the United States Navy it presents some of the greatest thrills to reach the screen. Aside from its thrills, including hundreds of planes in sensational evolutions, diving two miles in less than 30 seconds, the landing of a giant Zeppelin on the deck of a carrier, and such details, runs a vivid romance. It tells the story of the struggle between new and old ideals in the Navy, from the viewpoint of the enlisted men. It depicts a romance, which has actually something heroic to it, of a grizzled navy veteran and the keeper of a Panama resort. It is a sensational, realistic, and intimate dramatic sacrifice, and intimate touches of life at sea with the crew of the fleet. Wallace Beery and Clara Gable are supported by Dorothy Jordan, Conrad Nagel, Marie Prevost and Marjorie Rambeau.

William Powell in "High Pressure" will be the second attraction on the bill for Saturday. "High Pressure" presents Powell in a comedy characterization as a blue sky stock salesman, and wildcat promoter, who hits the high spots of the big town, and whether drunk or sober, is nonchalant and enthusiastically on the lookout for new adventures. It is the best thing William Powell has done in a long time and he receives adequate support from Evelyn Brent, George Sidney and Frank McHugh.

Greta Garbo in "Mata Hari" heads the bill that ends its run at the Granada on Friday. "Flying High," is the second feature on the bill now playing.

Love Maxims

"All love that does not uplift, debases; it is a mistake to look for tenderness in love, seek tenderness in friendship; All women without love are the same; A woman is eighteen when she is in love; A hundred when she loves no longer; When a man says: 'You are the companion of my life, my best friend,' look out for your rival; Love is a spring garden where the sun shines between two showers; The joys of love last no longer than roses." These maxims are from the pen of Lucie Paul Marguerite, daughter of the late Paul Marguerite, now lost.

Country's First Paper Mill

The early pioneers of colonial America imported their paper from Europe, chiefly from the continent. The first paper mill was built in 1620 at Germantown, Pa., resulting from the combination of the needs of the Philadelphia printer, William Bradford, and the arrival of an ambitious German papermaker, William Rittenhouse.

A true copy.

THE GARDENER'S CORNER

The late Ernest H. Wilson, who in the opinion of many was the greatest gardener who ever lived, made the following statement shortly before his death:

"That America is making progress in gardening, is thoughtful person will deny. The spirit is filtering into all ranks, from commuter to millionaire. It matters little where we live, gardens are springing up around us. Tin cans and rubbish piles are less in evidence around houses now than at any other period in American history. Undoubtedly much progress is being made, but the need of wise counsel is great. In general, we are largely in the imitative state and have a long road to travel before the creative stage is reached.

"It is immaterial where we begin or with what we begin to garden. The thing is to make a beginning. As leisure and culture spread, so will the art and spirit of gardening increase. The desire for a home exists somewhere in the heart of every man and woman. When properly analyzed a garden converts a dwelling place into a home.

"How much the making of a garden, no matter how small, adds to the joy of living, only those who practice the art can know. My advice to the less fortunate is to go and do likewise. Learn for yourself how great a thing a garden is in rounding out and making life worth while. Its influence develops the best traits of human nature. Man's history began in a garden, and many there are who think it could end in no better place than this side of Paradise."

NIAGARA: HOUR GLASS OF GEOLOGY

A crash of rock which changed the contour of Niagara Falls is a major news event in the eyes of mankind, but is only an incident in the age-old geological history of the Falls, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

For 30,000 years the Falls has been the geologic hour glass for much of North America. By reading the record of the rocks that go through the neck of the gorge, as grains of sand slip through the hour glass, scientists stopwatch the glacier sheets, which were the first plows to furrow the fertile mid-west.

Dates Accurately Fixed

In the sermons of the cataclysm's stones lie the chronology of Lake Algonquin, the predecessor of Lakes Superior, Michigan, and Huron, and of Lake Iroquois, the sprawling progenitor of Lake Ontario. Their dates are fixed almost as accurately as history books report William the Conqueror's arrival in England in 1066.

Niagara is the North American champion in one of the greatest battles Nature ever umpired. Literally scores of challengers sought her crown. More than once Niagara fell almost lifeless on her water-worn rocks. But finally the seekers for her crown gave up; the last not many more centuries ago than the days of Tutankhamen.

Niagara is said to take its name from the Indian title nee-agg-arah, which appropriately means "across the neck." The Niagara River cuts across the neck of land separating Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. Just east of Buffalo the river collects the entire natural discharge of the four upper Great Lakes, rushes it through a narrowing river for 16 miles, pushes it over a sheer drop of 212 feet, churns it seven miles through a canyon, and then carries it gently by seven miles of lowland to Lake Ontario.

The Birth of Niagara

Our Niagara was born when the glaciers melted back, exposing the ridge the water now tumbles down. Like the glaciers of the Rockies, these enormous sheets of ice moving down from Labrador poured out streams of water. These streams collected ages ago at the foot of the huge ice lobes in depressions extending into Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Accumulated water sometimes rose hundreds of feet higher than the present level of the Great Lakes and poured out into the Mississippi near the present site of Chicago and through outlets in Ohio and Indiana.

Finally, as the ice melted northward, prehistoric Lake Tonawanda formed on the edge of the plateau over which Niagara pours. There were then five outlets from this lake—at Hollev, Medina, Gasport, Lockport and Lewiston. The spillway at Lewiston, Niagara, won out. Lockport gorge now contains a flight of steps for the New York barge canal.

Early Niagara Numerous

About the time Niagara was beginning to triumph, the melting glacier moved back to Lake Simcoe, Ontario. The flickle waters of the upper lakes lost little time in finding the Trent Valley, a ragged series of lakes and rivers leading into Lake Ontario. Trent Valley gorges tell of many early Niagaras. At this time only 15 per cent of the present flow went over Niagara, forming the narrow lower gorge. Nature came to the rescue, tipping a great block of land, ever so slightly, but enough to shut off the Trent faucet and make even more water go over Niagara than the spectator sees today.

Niagara was flouted when the outlet shifted to North Bay, Ontario, sending the waters down the Ottawa over the portage which Champlain was to take to discover the huge rock saucer, which has the Great Lakes boulders in the bottom, tipped, leaving Niagara triumphant.

Niagara started to spill over the bank at Lewiston about 30,000 years ago. In 300 centuries it has shoveled its way seven miles. At its present rate of excavation, more than four feet annually, Niagara will dig back the remaining 16 miles to Lake Erie about the year A. D. 21,924. Before this time, however, man may take a hand, since the peril to the famous Horseshoe Falls, by the recent erosion, has brought forth the suggestion of reinforcing the lip of the Falls.

HOWARD L. BENNETT FOR THE WELFARE BOARD

The unusual conditions which present themselves and which are likely to continue for some time in Welfare Work require constructive and highly co-operative effort on the part of those to whom this work is entrusted.

It, therefore, becomes the duty of every one of us to interest himself to the end that those who should have assistance may be aided in the most efficient and sympathetic manner.

Those qualities which make a man a highly desirable member of the Welfare Board are combined in Howard L. Bennett who has lived in Winchester for 25 years, has served on the Finance Committee for three years and was Secretary of the Committee during the third year. I believe he should be elected on Monday.

THE WELFARE BOARD

Why should the voters of Winchester be misled? The present Board of Public Welfare consists of a Congregationalist, an Episcopalian and a Catholic. The paid worker of the Board is a Baptist.

A board of this kind assures all classes a fair deal. This balance should be maintained. Miss Sullivan's knowledge of her people, her experience and her judgment is of great value to all the taxpayers of Winchester and I hope that she will be re-elected.

IRVING L. SYMMES
Candidate for Re-election to Board of Selectmen for Third Term

TO THE VOTERS OF WINCHESTER

My sincere interest in town affairs and my record as chairman of my precinct for the past three years are known to all who keep in touch with the government of our town. I would appreciate your support in my endeavor to be elected to the Board of Selectmen on Monday.

MR. THOMPSON SHOULD BE ELECTED

The underlying principle for having so large a number of Town Meeting Members (33) in each Precinct was to provide a fair representation from all sections.

In Precinct 4 there is a geographically large—and increasingly important—area between High and Ridge streets, without resident representation.

Under this condition Mr. William L. Thompson of 201 Ridge street, Sunset Hill, has consented to be a candidate for Town Meeting Member. He is admirably fitted to serve, being a close student of town affairs and a life-long resident of this Precinct.

He is endorsed by:

Born Sept. 11, 1892 at Littleton, N. H., graduate Dartmouth College and Harvard Law School, commissioned at Plattsburg and served during the war. After admission to the bar was employed with others to codify the laws of the United States. Twelve years in active practice of his profession, and a member of the law firm of Dallinger, Pollard and Richardson. A resident and taxpayer in Winchester since his marriage in 1921.

We believe Gerald K. Richardson is equipped by training, experience and character to properly perform his duties as a public servant, uncontrolled by any person, faction or clique. We recommend his election to the Board of Selectmen of our Town.

THE REAL ISSUE

The Catholics of Winchester have always had a representative on the Board of Public Welfare, and we do not believe that it is fair or just that they be deprived of such representation.

Miss Nellie M. Sullivan, who has been a member of the board for the past three years and has rendered efficient service, is a candidate for re-election.

I believe that she deserves to be re-elected and therefore endorse her candidacy.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WELFARE

The election of the best person available to the vacancy in the Public Welfare Department is of vital importance to the citizens of Winchester. This department has to deal with the less fortunate members of our community—those temporarily in need through no fault of their own and those "who are always with us." The problem before the Welfare Board will always be how best to help each family or individual that may need assistance. The ideal Member therefore, should be one who knows intimately all the persons who may come to the Board for help—those that are deserving and those less so—one who tempers justice with mercy.

We believe that Miss Nellie M. Sullivan, a candidate for re-election, approximates this ideal more nearly than any other candidate.

Miss Sullivan has lived in Winchester all her life.

Miss Sullivan is a taxpayer in Winchester.

Miss Sullivan has been a member of the Welfare Board for the past three years. She has a more intimate knowledge of the people needing assistance than any other member of the Board or than either of the other candidates proposing themselves for election.

We deplore the whispering campaign that is being waged against Miss Sullivan. We believe that there should be only one standard for the selection of our officials—fitness for the office in question. Upon this standard we recommend the re-election of Miss Nellie M. Sullivan to the Welfare Board.

ADDITIONAL PRIZE ANNOUNCED FOR ESSAY CONTEST

American Legion Offers Third Award

Announcement was made this week that an additional prize of $5 has been offered for the Essay Contest which is being sponsored by those interested in establishing a community recreation center in Winchester.

The subject chosen for the contest is "Why We Need a Recreation Center in Winchester." Essays are not to exceed 1000 words and must be handed in enclosed in sealed envelope, addressed to the Recreation Committee, at the Winchester Star, not later than March 12.

Essays must not be signed but must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, attached on separate slips. Essays will be known to the judges only by number.

Three competent judges have been named to decide the contest. Their names however will not be announced until later.

A prize of $5 has been offered by the Community Service Committee of the Fortnightly and another $5 by "a friend" for the two best essays submitted by young people, both boys and girls, not now in school, and between the ages of 15 and 21 years.

The third prize of $5 is offered by Winchester Post of the American Legion and is to be awarded for the best essays submitted by a young man over 21 years.

Those submitting essays should be careful to write legibly and on only one side of the paper. The contest is of course limited to young people of Winchester.

This affords a fine opportunity for wholesome participation in a community activity as well as a chance to win five dollars. Better begin at once as all the essays must be in by March 12.

MRS. MARGARET M. CURRY

Mrs. Margaret M. Curry, formerly of Winchester, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edith Montague in Danvers, on Monday, Feb. 29. Mrs. Curry was the wife of the late Hamilton Curry. Funeral services were held at the Annunciation Church in Danvers, and the burial was at Wildwood Cemetery on Wednesday, March 2.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Hoax Newspaper Says "Hoover Goes Wet"

A newspaper calling itself the "Herald Times" on Feb. 8 issued a special with an eight column streamer reporting on the first page, "Hoover Demands Prohibition Repeal." This paper was sold on the streets of New York, Washington and Philadelphia.

The New York Times telling the story of this hoax newspaper's report, says, "The first the regular papers knew about the entrance of a rival was when subscribers started telephoning to ask if it was true. It was not."

"The 200,000 citizens who almost mobbed the newsboys distributing the paper at five points in the city (New York) failed to see a note at the top—'All Imaginary—More's the Pity.'"

The whole thing was a hoax. The newspaper, which was of four pages, was put out by the Republican Citizens' committee against prohibition, under the leadership of Raymond Pitcairn of Philadelphia. This is but another sample of what the opposition forces will do in their desire to get their wet propaganda before the public. They are leaving no stone unturned, they are using untrue statements in their efforts to swing every election, be it the sheriff or the President of the U. S. And they are not waiting until November to begin their work.

MOROSS-LANHAM

There is Winchester interest in the marriage on Feb. 25 at Waco, Texas, of Miss Martha Lanham, youngest granddaughter of former Governor S. W. T. Lanham of that state, to Francis Chilton Moross of Monroe, La., formerly of Winchester and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Treffe A. Moross who now make their home in Boston. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Gaston Hartsfield, pastor of the Austin avenue Methodist Church, Waco, in the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Howard M. Lanham of 1503 Washington avenue. Mrs. Moross went on from Boston to Waco to attend the ceremony and was the house guest of Dr. and Mrs. Lanham.

The bride wore a beige tulle with accessories of brown and a small French hat of straw. She carried the rose-point handkerchief which was carried by her mother and two sisters on their wedding day. Her bouquet was of talisman roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Moross, having received both B. A. and M. A. degrees at Baylor University, spent last winter in Washington as hostess for her uncle, Congressman Fritz Lanham. Mr. Moross attended both Fishburne Military School in Virginia and Virginia Military institute and is the grandson of the late Boling Williams, state Senator of Louisiana, and the great-grandson of the late William P. Chilton, chief justice of Alabama.

After the ceremony Mrs. S. W. T. Lanham, 2d, poured coffee from a silver service, a gift of Governor Lanham's appointees upon his retirement from public life.

Mr. and Mrs. Moross left at once in their car for New Orleans and points along the southern coast. They will be at home in the Virginia Hotel, Monroe, La., after March 1.

WAS MOTHER OF BURTON L. GALE

Funeral services for Clara A. Gale, mother of Burton L. Gale of this town, were held at the Waterman Chapel, Commonwealth avenue, Boston, on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 27 with the Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the First Unitarian Church of Winchester, officiating.

Mrs. Gale was the widow of Elgin J. Gale and had made her home in Malden during recent years. She was born at East Randolph, Vt., and was in her 82nd year. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. George T. Neill of Malden; two daughters, Mrs. William H. Luckett of Malden and Mrs. Ned E. Wells of Enfield, N. H.; a son, Burton Lewis Gale of Winchester and three grandchildren.

Interment was in the family lot at Barre, Vt.

CURRENT EVENTS LECTURE

Miss Avery opened her lecture on Feb. 24 with a few words about the Washington Bi-centennial, what it should mean to us and the significance of Washington and his contribution to the world. The chairmanship of the Bi-centennial is held by Sol Blume, a Polish Jew, who is preeminently a self-made man.

Washington and Lincoln are both world figures and stand out above all for their character.

Speaking of the Arabs in the parts of North Africa visited by Miss Avery last summer, she said that France governs her Arabs with a gentle hand. She now believes in letting them as much as possible live their own lives in their own way and except for improving the sanitation in their villages has let them remain as they are.

And in Morocco today they live almost as they did 1000 years ago.

In 1912 Morocco has made a protectorate but it was 1928 before it was safe to travel through all of it.

Miss Avery showed some of the Arab handiwork that she brought back with her last summer and some paintings of the people and places where she traveled.

The next lecture on Mar. 9 will be on the "Geneva Conference" and the "American Railroad Problem."

At the meeting to follow, the program will be under the direction of Mrs. Bertram Bernnard, social service chairman. She has secured as speakers on the subject, "Recreation Possibilities in Winchester," Joseph C. Lee, president of the Massachusetts Civic League, and Arthur Ray Wellington, district representative of the National Recreation Association of New England.

The soloist for the afternoon will be Mr. Wesley Copplestone, who is the leading tenor in the Unitarian choir. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar P. Trott of Cambridge street are the parents of a son, born Tuesday afternoon at the Winchester Hospital.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR NOTES

On the afternoon of Tuesday, March 1 members of the Guild of the Infant Saviour met at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and enjoyed a lecture with motion pictures of "The Art of Spinning and Weaving" and "The Silversmith."

The picture of "The Silversmith" showed Mr. Stone of Gardner in his workshop making by hand various objects in silver from the sheet metal. It was most interesting to follow developments from the crude state to the finished product.

"The Art of Spinning and Weaving" revealed the tedious work accomplished by the women of Colonial days in weaving homespun from flax and wool which was used for clothing.

After the lecture the members visited the Colonial rooms in the new wing of the museum.

On Tuesday afternoon, March 8, a meeting will be held by the Infant Saviour Guild at Fortnightly Hall at 2:30 o'clock. Following the business meeting a one-act play called "A Pan of Fudge" will be given by some of the pupils of Miss Dorothy Day of Ridgefield road. Those taking part will be the Misses Mary and Barbara Hickey, Norris Chevalier, Betty Disel and Sue Mauldin of Winchester and Miss Rose Beausang of West Medford.

BELMONT FOLLOWS WINCHESTER

To the Editor of the Star:
By decision of its Board of Registrars, Saturday last, Belmont followed the ruling in the Winchester case and provided for a ballot in accordance with law, fair play and the spirit of our institutions. All citizens believe the ballot is no place for advertising matter, and the public is indebted to the efforts of Gerald K. Richardson, one of our candidates for Selectman, for putting an end to this undesirable practice. If elected, it is fair to assume he will be equally zealous in looking out for the best interests of the town.

DOWNER—LIKINS

Mr. and Mrs. Horace D. Likins of Glen road have announced the marriage of their daughter, Eleanor Phelps, to Mr. David Robinson Downer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Downer of this town.

The ceremony took place at the First Baptist Church on June 19, 1931 and was performed by its recent pastor, Benjamin Patterson Browne.

Mr. and Mrs. Downer will make their future home at 18 Yale avenue, Wakefield.

Special week-end rates at The Tavern, Kennebunk, Me.: rooms with bath, single, $5 per day; double, $8 per day. American plan.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF NEWS

The unemployment relief work will soon enter upon a new stage of development. Warm weather is in the offing. A few men have already secured outside employment. Many more will we hope follow suit during the month of March. The emphasis upon the work of the committee is to be placed upon the word "relief." Employment is the method of supplying the relief. The week is slightly shortened and the wage rate per day is lower than paid in the cities and lower by 50 cents per day than the standard for permanent town employees. It may be necessary to adopt a still lower rate beginning April 1.

We are expending our funds more rapidly than they are being collected despite the fact that the citizens making pledges are maintaining their payments most admirably. The pledge period is set for a greater number of months than will be the period of work. We find that some cities and towns are distributing a substantial amount of money to needy beneficiaries without labor equivalent. This is in part by reason of inadequate planning and in part because it is not convenient to supply a form of labor opportunity which does not require the expenditure of much additional capital in material as a means of utilizing labor. In Winchester we are fortunate in possessing adequate opportunity for labor employment. No one, however, will be sufficiently optimistic as to describe the mosquito breeding areas of the Aberjona valley north of Mt. Vernon street as an unmitigated blessing. This area may, however, be transformed into one of Winchester's major assets. A series of parks which will make all adjacent property more valuable is within easy grasp and at a moderate expense. Low lying land of this type is unlikely to be built up upon a basis which would yield a net tax profit to the town.

Two hundred and eighteen men are now upon the pay roll, employed either part or full time. Crews are working at the Mill Pond, at Horn Pond Brook and Leonard Field. A crew of painters who have been working at the cemetery house have just finished five days' work painting and repairing in the Town Hall basement. They returned to their work at the Cemetery this morning. A small crew is at work on the North Reservoir. Another is clearing brush on town property near High street. Six "white collar" men are doing survey work for the Engineering Department.

Some 4600 cubic yards of silt have been removed from the Mill Pond. Good loam would be valued at $2.50 per cubic yard delivered on any premises. Because of the high moisture content this silt will not pile as high in the trucks as would dryer loam. However, the value is high because of its richness and because of the permanent plant food which it will furnish. A large amount will be symmetrically deposited about the Mill Pond. This will undoubtedly furnish an extraordinarily rich bed for the growth of rhododendrons and mountain laurel. If such use is made of this area it will make this basin one of the beauty spots north of Boston. The cherry trees of Washington are famous. Many visits are made to Washington during the height of the blossoming season for the express purpose of revelling in the gorgeous flower show afforded. A rhododendron flowering time about the Winchester Mill Pond is a rich possibility.

Riprap has been placed at Horn Pond Brook at the rear of the town yard to a present total of 1680 square feet. Three catch basins have also been built there to protect this development.

Clothing has been distributed to date to the extent of 4208 units. This has brought great comfort to a large number of persons and families.

CARPENTERS TO ACCEPT WAGE CUT

The Star was informed this week that the carpenters of Middlesex District, comprising Arlington, Melrose, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Winchester and Woburn have agreed to take a wage cut from $1.25 per hour to $1.10 per hour, to become effective March 1, 1932 and terminate April 1, 1933.

While coming down High street at 9:30 Tuesday morning, a Mack truck, owned by Thomas Quigley, Jr. of 56 Lake street and driven by Sidney C. Erb of 90 Hemingway street, skidded and struck the "stop sign." Neither damage to the truck nor injury to its driver was reported. The sign was bent by the impact.

ENTERTAINED FOR MISS WOODBURY

Miss Ruth Woodbury of Manchester road, gave a farewell party for her sister, Elizabeth, last Saturday afternoon. Miss Elizabeth Woodbury has finished her training course, and has accepted a position as nurse at the Yale Psychopathic Hospital in New Haven, Conn.

The prize winners at bridge were Miss Lillian Livingstone, Mrs. Edgar Hunter and Miss Dawn Kelley. Refreshments were served after the bridge.

Among those present were Miss Margaret Harrington, Miss Dorothy Day, Miss Louise Purrinton, Miss Mary Haley, Mrs. Edgar Hunter, Miss Lillian Livingstone, Mrs. Edith Pistorino, Miss Ada Johnson, Miss Barbara Locke and Miss Dawn Kelley.

PERFORMANCE VS. PROMISE

An Appreciation of Lewis Parkhurst

To the Editor of the Star:

Those who carefully note the comparative lives in a community will soon learn that the element which counts for the most is the subtle thing we call personal influence. One may give much money to religious and charitable objects; another may be an eloquent speaker and his voice may be often heard in public meetings, another may be a writer, an orator on all questions of learning; another may represent the best things in art, in taste—yet not one of these may impress himself on the community, as does some quiet man who possessing this indescribable power of beneficent personal influence, has seen fit to employ it for the improvement of civic life.

Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, acting on the assumption that an acre of performance is worth more than the whole world of promises has quietly extended his particular influence in an effort to relieve distressing conditions. A champion of civic improvement and social reform—a leader in political and financial circles—Lewis Parkhurst has worked unselfishly so that those less fortunate may be contented. His time—his labor—his wealth—always at the disposal of the public. Do we recognize this man's value to our community? The writer feels that we do.

LADIES' FRUITS SOCIETY GIVES ANNUAL PLAY AND SUPPER

On Thursday evening, Feb. 25 at 6:15 p. m., the Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church held its annual supper. Mrs. William B. Wood and Mrs. G. Russell Mann served as chairmen, providing a beautiful and delicious turkey supper to a large number of members and guests.

The evening's entertainment was the amusing country play, "Cranberry Corners" by Arthur Lewis Tubbs. Mrs. Kenneth McLeod, dramatics chairman, directed the play and deserves high praise for the good results achieved by a clever cast. Frank R. Hodgdon was a convincing hero, Richard Barnard was a true man of the world, while Kenneth Hall played well the part of a man greatly wronged by society. Charles R. Carter and George B. Cummings showed skill in the interpretation of two amusing roles. The hired man of George W. Hayden, Jr., was portrayed with rustic humor.

In the feminine roles Margaret Ford was an appealing and winsome heroine, while Anne Norton played capably the part of a haughty, dictatorial New York matron. Thelma Pitman was a kindly active housekeeper for her brother, and Estella Cooper portrayed well the village gossip. Frances Mason and Mary Hodgdon were competent maids.

Kenneth F. McLeod sang two songs and joined Charles Carter, George Byford and James Joslin in a number of old-time songs suited to the spirit of the evening's fun.

The cast of characters for "Cranberry Corners" was as follows:

Tom Dexter, one of Nature's Noblemen—Richard Barnard
Sidney Everett, of the World's Widely—Richard Barnard
Bon Latham, a wanderer—Kenneth S. Hall
Andrew Dexter, Tom's father—Charles R. Carter
Hezekiah Hopkins, fond of an argument—George B. Cummings
Nathan Speck, the hired man—George W. Hayden, Jr.
Carolina Bannister, child of fate—Margaret Ford
Anastasia Bannister, her aunt from N. Y.—Anne Norton
Amelia Dexter, sister of Andrew—Thelma Pitman
Mrs. Maslin, something of a talker—Estella Cooper
P. H. Anne, help at the farm—Frances Mason
Horrie, a maid—Mary Hodgdon

TOWN ELECTION MONDAY

Only Three Contests Appear on Ballot

At the annual town election, to be held on Monday in the town hall, voters will have an opportunity to indicate their preferences in only three instances in the choice of officers to administer town affairs for the coming year. In only Precincts 3 and 6 are there as many as 15 candidates for the requisite 11 town meeting members.

Despite the fact that there are eight candidates for the five places on the Board of Selectmen this contest is overshadowed in intensity of interest by the three-cornered fight for the opening upon the Board of Public Welfare among Nellie M. Sullivan, who is a candidate for re-election; Howard L. Bennett, an ex-member of the Finance Committee; and former Selectman Jonas A. Laraway.

Only three members of this year's Board of Selectmen are candidates for re-election, Chairman Harris S. Richardson and Harry W. Stevens having refused to enter the current campaign. Vincent P. Clarke, William Eben Ramsdell and Irving L. Symmes are the members of the old board seeking re-election, the new candidates being Harold V. Farnsworth, Frank W. Jones, Henry J. Maguire, Elizabeth C. McDonald and Gerald K. Richardson. Of the latter Mr. Farnsworth, Mr. Maguire and Mrs. McDonald are making their first fight for membership on the board this year. Mr. Jones and Mr. Richardson were candidates a year ago.

The other contest appearing upon the ballot is that for the office of Assessor with Frank H. Enman, present member of the board, seeking re-election and being opposed by W. Allan Wilde, local real estate broker and former Commander of Winchester Post American Legion.

Undoubtedly general interest in the election would be keener if there were a contest for places upon the School Committee, but the present members of the committee seeking re-election, George A. Farnsworth and Arthur S. Harris, have no opposition.

Wise Living

The hoarder or miser, who removes money from circulation, is worse than the free spender. The reckless spender may be short-sighted but, at least, he helps keep business good.

The wisest course is to spend thoughtfully and to save intelligently—being sure to invest what you save so that the money will be at work in a field that makes your community more prosperous.

Savings invested in co-operative bank shares pay you a good return and are put to work in financing home ownership. This cannot be excelled as a constructive investment.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Friday, Feb. 26, Mrs. Lillian Whitman, chairman of the Dramatic Committee, gave the club members and their friends another of her treats.

The afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Clara C. Reynolds. Promptly at 2:30 Mrs. Reynolds came forward, looking very lovely in an old Colonial costume, and said, that to celebrate Washington's bi-centennial, she was putting on a two-act comedy drama of Colonial times called "Patriots and Tea" by Anna Phillips See.

She then announced the players and their characters as follows:

Miss Lucania Boltwood, Margaret Winn Betty Boltwood, her niece, Estelle Little Mrs. Cowles, a neighbor, Pearl Miller Mrs. Adams, a neighbor, Mary Alice Fitch Mrs. Strong, the village gossip, Anna Pitman Mandy, slave of Miss Boltwood.

Bonnie Bull Judge Ingram Elizabeth Hall William Dickinson Hazel Cabot

The first act, "Place, the living room of a comfortable village home. Time April 1775 a few days after the Battle of Lexington. The second act, Place, the same. Time June 1775, not long after the Battle of Bunker Hill.

As the curtain went up on the first act, the Colonial atmosphere was emphasized in the living room furniture, and the costumes of the players.

Miss Boltwood, a despotic spinster, is persuaded to join a band of ladies who have sworn to give up tea and all taxed articles until the Revolutionary War is over. The tea habit is too strong for Miss Boltwood and she drinks it secretly. Her niece, Betty, discovers this and uses the information to compel her aunt to consent to her (Betty's) engagement to the young minuteman, William Dickinson.

Miss Boltwood also has a lover, Judge Ingram, a Tory, whom she has kept dandling for years. When he joins the Patriot cause, and she hears a false report that he has been arrested, she finds that she loves him, and becomes an ardent Patriot too. But at the time when the judge decides that their friendship is ideal.

Mandy, the Southern servant and a privileged character, furnished much fun, and was excellently portrayed by Bonnie Bull who is a Southerner.

Margaret Winn, tall and stately, took the part of the despotic spinster in a forceful manner, while Elizabeth Hall as the Judge dressed in Colonial period costume, looked and acted her part perfectly. Estelle Little, the niece, was demure and obedient, but always resolute in her determination to marry the young minuteman, and Hazel Cabot who took the part of the minuteman did it exceedingly well.

The three neighbors, Pearl Miller, Mary Alice Fitch, and Anna Pitman, in their quaint costumes and by their clever acting, captivated everyone.

Between the acts, Carolyn Gilpatrick sang a group of songs. With her usual sweet and dramatic manner, she delighted her audience.

At the close, Lillian Whitman gave a reading called "Penelope's Christmas Dance." She made a charming picture with her powdered hair and white starch gown, and her selection was greatly appreciated by her audience.

Following the reading a Colonial Tea was served, with Mrs. Helene Norris and Mrs. Amy Orpin acting as hostesses and assisted by several of the club members dressed in the beautiful old fashioned gowns of 1775.

The regular meeting of the Fortnightly Club was held on Monday afternoon in the Town Hall. A short business meeting preceded the special program of the afternoon.

Mrs. Kennedy spoke of a meeting of the Literary Group to be held on Monday afternoon, March 7 at 2:30.

Mrs. Appleb urged everyone to attend the Youth Conference March 10 and 11.

Mrs. Ghirardini announced that the regular meeting on March 14 would be under the supervision of the Glee Club, assisted by a flutist and a baritone soloist. She also said that the members would have the pleasure of hearing a new musical instrument called the Therenin which will be played by Mischa Tulin.

After the business meeting was over, Mrs. Margaret Hintlin, chairman of the Art Committee and her assistants presented a very charming program entitled "Dream Pictures." Gretchen West planned the scenes in this pageant. Every part was well taken and the entire program was picturesque and colorful. The pageant, as it was presented before a delighted audience, follows:

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL. 20 YEARS OLD

On Mar. 11, 1912 the Winchester Hospital threw open its doors in welcome to all who desired the services of physician and nurse, working with the facilities of a well equipped cottage hospital. From that day, 20 years ago, to this, a friendly, kindly atmosphere of wholesome hospitality has characterized the institution. The hospital had its genesis in the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association which was organized on the first day of Feb. 13 years earlier, making the organization 33 years old last month. From a very small beginning the Association has steadily grown, constantly improving its methods of caring for the sick, expanding, adopting the latest and best procedures, keeping abreast of the times.

Miss E. C. McArdle, faithful and competent, the first district nurse, was on call night and day at the service of all the physicians in town. As the result of her work, the Association grew in favor and esteem and soon it became necessary to employ two nurses. Miss Tekla Enholm and Miss Bernice Billings followed Miss McArdle. Miss Enholm resigned after a few months and Miss Flora Stevens took her place. Then, for a period of 12 years, Miss Billings and Miss Stevens, first class graduate nurses, worked untriflingly, making a most enviable reputation for skill, efficiency and faithfulness.

There was no hospital, there were no automobiles in those days. It was the time of horses, hitching posts and stepping stones. In cold, winter weather the doctor's horse wore a close-fitting body blanket under the harness, and a large outside blanket was adjusted when a stop was made for a call. In rainy weather a water proof cover was used. Hawes Brothers kept a livery stable at the center on the east side of the railroad tracks and Daniel Kelley on the west side, all the doctors boarding their horses at one stable or the other. When a call came in the middle of the night it took some time to get the team from the stable and go to the patient, especially if the call came from the outskirts of the town.

At that time all kinds of surgical operations were done in the homes of the people. Laparotomies were performed in the middle of the night, if necessary, on improvised operating tables made of the kitchen table or the nearest thing at hand that answered the purpose. In many of the houses there was no electricity and the operating was done by the light of a kerosene lamp held by a volunteer, usually a neighbor. The administration of ether in a small room and operating by the light of a kerosene lamp is dangerous business, but it was done, not infrequently. On one occasion during a night operation at a home on Swanton street the person holding the lamp for the doctors was seen to reel on account of faintness, and quick action by the etherizer who grabbed the lamp in the nick of time prevented a catastrophe.

Miss Billings' method of improvising an operating room in the small house of some poor laborer was a wonderful piece of execution and a joy to witness. With nothing at hand to do with except a kitchen stove, she produced everything necessary as if by magic in marvelously short time. Half a dozen people would be dispatched to different houses in the neighborhood, one for wash bowls, a fourth for pans, a wash boiler and newspapers. In the meantime the kitchen fire was started with dry kindlings, curtains were removed from the operating room along with the furniture, and in no time the floor was covered with newspapers, the improvised operating table draped with clean sheets, towels were in bottles of boiling water, instruments, gloves and sheets were being sterilized in a wash boiler of boiling water and in the twinkling of an eye everything was ready to the last detail: all was spick and span. It was all done without confusion, just a part of the days work, by one who knew how. It all seemed so simple and wonderful.

The next improvement was a portable operating table contributed by Dr. Mead and what a help it was! As the years passed by and healing methods improved, a small hospital was needed to carry out these methods and to meet this want the Nurse Association on Mar. 11, 1912 opened a cottage hospital in the old Todd homestead, then owned by Mr. Philip Blank which still stands between Governors avenue and Lincoln street. There were no pathological or X-ray laboratories, no scientific departments and little of the equipment used today in all modern hospitals. A good practicable operating room with sterilizing apparatus made it possible for the doctors to do good work under better conditions than ever before.

Thus the Winchester Hospital had a good start, a much needed institution was created and it sufficed for a time for all practical purposes. However, the work of caring for the sick increased, larger and better quarters became necessary, and on June 30, 1917, five years after the opening of the cottage hospital, the present building on upper Highland avenue was dedicated, completing one more progressive step in the evolution of our latest institution.

Eleven years more went by during which time one improvement followed another; the hospital grew and won for itself an enviable reputation. To improve and enlarge the various departments a fine addition was dedicated on May 12, 1928, making the institution modern and up to date in every respect. Today it ranks among the best. With first class governing officers it will continue to improve and will be made better and better as time goes on. It has won the confidence of the people, it is a credit to the town and is worthy of the whole hearted support of all.

Next year it will be 21 years old, entitled to the full privileges of citizenship. Let us hope that its next birthday will see it richly endowed with ample funds that the officers who are directing its affairs may not be hampered in the work they are so capable of doing and so willing to perform. The greatest good comes of doing good. No one can give his money to a worthier institution, or spend it where it will do more good.

LECTURE TO AID IMMACULATE CONCEPTION PARISH

On next Monday evening, March 7, Mr. Francis X. Rooney of Somerville will present an illustrated lecture on the Laper Colony of Molokai in the Hawaiian Islands.

The lecture will be given in the Immaculate Conception Church on Sheridan circle, Winchester, and marks the formal opening of the auditorium as a social center for the parish. He has been heard as a soloist previously in Winchester but this is his first appearance on the lecture platform.

Mr. Rooney is a Boston College graduate, receiving degrees in 1926 and 1927, and at present is instructor of English in Somerville High School. Having travelled extensively through the Far East, Hawaii and the Philippines, where he taught school in Manila, he is well qualified to present an interesting talk.

The affair is sponsored by a group of ladies in the parish with Mrs. Thomas W. Conlon as chairman, assisted by Mrs. John McCarthy, Miss Marion Noonan, Mrs. Arthur King, Miss Mary Martin, Miss Mary Donaghey and Mrs. Nora O'Melia, all of Winchester; Mrs. Theodore Livingstone, Miss Mary McLaughlin, Miss Rose Desmond, Mrs. Mary Garvey and Mrs. John J. Sullivan of Woburn.

WINCHESTER WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Republican Club was held Wednesday, Mar. 2 at 3 o'clock at the Town Hall. Following the salute to the flag the secretary's report was read and the membership chairman Mrs. Scales reported nine new members. Mrs. Dabney, chairman of education explained the Glass-Steagall bill recently signed by President Hoover enabling the banks to borrow money more easily from the Federal Reserve and she also told of other bills about to be passed by Congress.

The afternoon's entertainment was given by the Washington Players who presented "Two Women and Washington" by Gladys Black Wilcox. Historians tell us that if Washington had married Mary Phillips he probably would have returned to England with her and history might have been written very differently. Act 1 of the play portrays the Mary Phillips story and subsequent events as they might have happened. Act 2, the story of Washington and Martha, is entirely historical.

The Washington Players, Miriam Hendrick Cahalin, Sarah Merriman Powers and John K. Winner showed marked ability and interesting characterization.

The characters presented included George Washington, Mary Phillips, Hannah, Martha Washington and A Revolutionary Soldier. Act 1, "It Might Have Been," included Scene 1, New York, March 1788. Scene 2, England, winter of 1776. Act 2, "It Was," included Scene 1, Mount Vernon, Autumn of 1774. Scene 2, Valley Forge, February, 1778. Scene 3, Mount Vernon, April, 1789.

During the acts Mr. Edward Hale of Arlington and Boston sang a delightful group of songs which were especially appropriate for the Washington period.

WINCHESTER ROTARY MEETS

The regular meeting of the Rotary Club of Winchester was held yesterday noon at the Calumet Club, one of Fred's chicken pie dinners making the event of more than usual note. The club was favored also by a good visitation of out-of-town Rotarians.

President Church Hines presided, although his right-hand assistant, Frank Knight, secretary of the club and a 100 per cent member in attendance, was absent owing to illness. Frank's absence was noted by all, the club unanimously wishing him a speedy recovery.

Through the efforts of "Doc" Sheehy, together with Mike's ghost, the dinner was most pleasantly digested.

PAY

We're inclined to believe even the most punctilious of billpayers once in awhile have a bad moment and feel like dropping their monthly bills into a waste basket. However... bills will be bills. Ignore them and they'll bob cheerily up again... pay them, and they quiet right down.

So, to help you get this once-a-month duty out of the way as expeditiously as possible, we have a nice pleasant cashier in our Edison Shop in your neighborhood—who'll be glad to handle these bills, if it's more convenient for you to pay them in person. No need to go into town on this matter.

And when you do visit our local shop, look around at the new appliances... there are lots of interesting ones on display right now—that will help you out of many an irksome task—all they ask is the chance. See them too in the shops of the other electrical dealers nearby.

THE GARDENER'S CORNER

Now is the time to plan your garden for the coming year. You should decide what annual flower seeds you require, and order them early in March. They should be started in a hot-bed or in a window-box. There are many residents of Winchester who feel that there should be ten times as many flowers grown in this town of ours as are grown.

If the time comes that I am no longer able to tend my garden, I shall hire the work done, of course, because the home would not be complete without it, but I trust that I may be blessed for many years yet with the strength to do the work myself. In no other way, it seems to me after years of experiments, can one get the full measure of enjoyment from a garden.

People come into the yard and exclaim over the flowers, and then say, "But, what an endless amount of work. I don't see how you get time to do it."

That always amuses me because we all find ample time to do the things we particularly enjoy and we don't get tired doing them, but if the task is too heavy, it is easy to be too busy to attend to it.

Isaac Hicks, of Hicks Nurseries, says, "If you love a plant, you can make it grow anywhere."

There is a certain vigor that comes from having one's hands in the soil. A garden is a place for clean thinking and spiritual uplift. In the presence of so much beauty it could scarcely be otherwise. And, despite all the labor that has to go into its making, a garden is the most restful spot on earth.

Cardinal Newman once said, "By a garden is meant a place of spiritual repose, stillness, peace, refreshment and delight."

Children instinctively love gardens and should be encouraged early to participate in a small way in the making of them. Besides awakening in a child a love of beauty it teaches him care and protection for the helpless little plants, and as he learns more and more about the mysteries of plant growth, a garden opens up a veritable storehouse of wonders.

So, if you love flowers, just try making your own garden. Plan it, dig it, tend it yourself, and then when you know of a heart that is heavy somewhere, you can gather some of your own flowers and feel that you are really giving something of yourself. You may never know how much happiness you have brought to others less fortunate than you are.

If you learned of an investment in which dividends were sure to be increased year after year, would you invest? If your answer is "Yes," then buy some perennials this year.

Be sure to attend the Spring Flower show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, at Horticultural Hall, Boston, on Mar. 10 to Mar. 14.

GRANADA THEATRE, MALDEN

One of the best programs of the season will open at the big Granada Theatre in Malden on Saturday when Marie Dressler in "Emma" and "Dance Team" with James Dunn and Sally Eilers open a seven day engagement. In "Emma," Marie Dressler plays the role of a devoted family servant who mothers the children of a rich inventor as though they were her own. Her subsequent transition from housekeeper to step-mother gives rise to a number of dramatic problems which reach a climax in a sensational court room sequence. The picture is dramatic but not devoid of comedy moments and there are hilarious incidents of family life in which movie-goers may enjoy the familiar Dressler humor. The star is supported by Richard Cromwell, Myrna Loy and Jean Hersholt.

James Dunn and Sally Eilers flashed to fame over-night through their work in "Bad Girl" and "Over the Hill." In "Dance Team" they have the same type of role they had in their previous successes, the human flesh boy and girl whom you meet in the ordinary walks of life. The story is a simple and human tale of two youngsters who on a cash capital of a dollar and ten cents, start out to become Broadway's premier dancers. And the kids put it over to the vast enjoyment of the audience.

"Hell Divers" with Clark Gable and Wallace Beery as the stars, tops the bill that ends its run at the Granada on Friday. "Hell Divers" is a picture that has been drawing capacity houses to the Granada, the past week and is a thriller with the U. S. Navy for a background. William Powell in "High Pressure" is the second feature on the current bill.

Mr. Frank H. Knight, proprietor of Knight's Drug Store, is ill at his home.

The Price of Real Estate

It has been said "There is no price for Real Estate today." We disagree. Continued adverse business conditions have forced the prices of Real Estate below their actual value. Opportunity to purchase wisely and well has thereby been created and in many cases with only a small payment down. Let us show you some real low prices on real good Real Estate.

GOLD-SIZED VOTE CAST IN TOWN ELECTION

Former Selectmen Re-Elected with Maguire and Farnsworth

Miss Sullivan and Egan Re-Elected

Approximately 90 per cent of Winchester's voters went to the polls at the Town Hall on Monday and cast 3129 votes for officers to administer the town's business for the ensuing year. The total, which is 410 less than a year ago is considered good in view of the stormy weather and the fact that there was no contest involving the schools. No opposition to the re-election of present School Committee members resulted in the voting in Precincts 3, 4 and 5 being relatively light when compared with Precincts 1 and 6. Unusual interest in the contest for membership on the Board of Public Welfare undoubtedly helped to get out a respectable vote. Even the contest for the Board of Selectmen was overshadowed by the intensity of feeling aroused by the

WINCHESTER YOUNG WOMAN APPOINTED

Miss Elizabeth Woodbury of Manchester road who has recently completed her course in the Yale University School of Nursing, from which she will be graduated in June, has been appointed to the nursing staff of the Yale Institute of Human Relations, and commences her new duties at once. RUN AWAY HORSE

It's not so often in these days of automobiles that one sees an entry like the above on the Police blotter, but yesterday afternoon, shortly after 1 o'clock Headquarters was notified that a horse attached to a tipcart, the property of Thomas Quigley, Jr., local contractor, had run away from Leonard Field and gotten into trouble when the wagon hit the Cross street bridge.

Patrolmen James P. Donaghey, John Murray and James F. Noonan were sent to the scene and found that the wagon had tipped over after striking the bridge and was holding the horse a prisoner.

It was necessary to cut the harness from the horse who was somewhat cut about the hind legs. The wagon was not badly damaged. Alfred Marquand of 69 Sylvester avenue, the driver, was not injured.

Miss Marjorie French, a member of the junior class at Radcliffe College, is on the Dean's list for this semester.

STRAND THEATRE, MALDEN, CHANGES ITS POLICY

Beginning Mar. 17 the Strand Theatre in Malden will change its present policy of running its feature picture a whole week to two changes weekly, with five acts of vaudeville on Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays. On Sundays, Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays two features with News, Comedy and Short Subjects will be shown, and new picture program with vaudeville on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

It will be remembered that before talking pictures replaced vaudeville in Malden, it was not unusual to meet hundreds of Winchester show lovers enjoying the variety of vaudeville and pictures at the Strand, and the management having this in mind have arranged a complete new show including the best in vaudeville for the last three days of the week with three complete shows on Saturday.

The popularity of vaudeville is returning throughout the country and with the availability of a large number of excellent acts, no more enjoyable an evening can be spent by seeing this combination of pictures and vaudeville. Everyone enjoys a good laugh, and plenty of comedy is assured, as on practically every bill there will be at least two acts of the comedy variety.

There are many who believe that acts playing the suburban theatres are inferior in quality but all acts booked at the Strand are regularly playing the best New York and Boston Theatres on the R. K. O. Circuit.

The management is anxious that every family in Winchester become familiar with the excellence of these shows and next week a coupon will be printed in this paper that will be good on Thursday or Friday for one admission with ten cents in the afternoon and 25 cents in the evening.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING ON MARCH 21

A Massachusetts Supreme Court decision handed down in 1877 makes it necessary for Winchester to call a special session of the town meeting on Monday, March 21, during the current meeting which opens on March 16.

In 1877 the court decided that a town could not accept an act of the Legislature which had not been enacted at the time when the warrant for the town meeting at which it was accepted was issued.

Article 13 in this year's warrant calls for an appropriation for the town's assessment for the cost of the Middlesex County Tuberculosis Hospital and to see if the town will take advantage of a statutory provision whereby the County will find all the assessments not paid by the cities and towns within the district and assess them annually for 15 years for their proportionate shares of the cost of the hospital and interest, so that it will not be necessary for the cities and towns, unless they so elect, to borrow money on their own credit to meet the assessment.

This act did not become effective until Feb. 9, and the warrant for the annual meeting was issued Feb. 1. If the town is to take advantage of this funding provision, it must vote to do so and notify the County Commissioners before March 25.

As our annual meeting will undoubtedly not be dissolved before March 25 and as ordinarily votes are not effective until the expiration of five days after dissolution, it would seem that this is one of the rare and unusual occasions in which the use of the emergency preamble is justified.

Having determined to issue this warrant, advantage of the occasion was taken to insert a new article for the Forest street and Highland avenue alteration because of a technical inaccuracy in the similar article which appears in the warrant for the annual meeting. It will be seen, therefore, that no new business is brought before the town and if the meeting of March 16 votes to adjourn to about 7:55 or 8 p. m. of the night of the 21st, no extra time or attendance at town meetings should be required of the voters.

WINCHESTER COACH AD-DRESSED N. A. A. F.

Problems in various sports and recreational activities among girls' schools and clubs in this vicinity were ably presented to members of the Boston group of the women's division of the N. A. A. F. by four well known leaders of a group meeting at Posse Nissen School, Tuesday night.

Margaretta Centervall, director of physical education in Winchester, Ruth Bass of the Girl Scouts, Marjorie Woodhead of the physical education department at Girls' Latin and Elizabeth Wellman of the Sargent School, each presented some phase of recreation. In the case of Miss Centervall, Miss Bass and Miss Woodhead, each was reporting the findings of her particular committee, which since the first of the year has been investigating the problems to which it was assigned.

Track and field activities and swimming, particularly in the competitive field have been looked up by Miss Centervall and Helen Libby. Although Miss Centervall was free to admit that her investigation was in no way complete, her findings so far show that while much emphasis is necessarily laid upon competition by the Greater Boston clubs affiliated with the A. A. U., much time and thought is being spent on giving novices training and an opportunity to take part in the contests.

As an example, Miss Centervall cited a recent Boston park department meet in which nearly 60 novices were entered in one race. A questionnaire which Miss Centervall has planned to have filled out by each club has been abandoned. Most of the clubs feeling they could not give full justice to themselves by answering stereotyped questions.

Miss Centervall also emphasized the good behavior, good sportsmanship and good health of the competitors in A. A. U. meets so far observed by her committee.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF NEWS

The great storm which moved up the Atlantic coast did little damage in Winchester. It did, however, furnish the first serious interruption to the steady operation of the Unemployment Relief working program. Our good neighbors of Woburn, because of imminent danger of high water in Horn Pond, raised the flash boards at the Horn Pond outlet, with the result that the Aberjona waterways were running spring high. On Tuesday, the subsidence of water, occasioned by the lowering of Horn Pond and the partial restoration of the flash boards, taken together with the cold weather, has provided a remedy. At this writing on Wednesday morning, there has been a subsidence of three-quarters of the excess water as measured at the Mill Pond. Work can be resumed shortly upon something approaching a normal basis.

There are 218 men on the pay roll, ranging in labor time from two to five days each week. During the last week 360 additional loads of silt have been removed from the Mill Pond. A total of 2400 loads have been delivered to the Junior High School grounds.

A new area on the Aberjona, between Cross and Washington streets, has been staked out by the Town Engineering Department. As soon as water conditions permit, removal of soil from this area will begin and the product will be delivered to the Intermediate High School grounds. It is hoped that at least 2000 cubic yards may be made available. This will have the direct effect of keeping the tax rate down through a reduced appropriation for the necessary purposes linked with the completion of the Intermediate High School program.

Work has been started on the repairing and painting of the house owned by the town on Linden street, which at this time is occupied by the custodian of the town stables. This is another direct contribution to the improvement and protection of town property.

Two "white collar" workers have been added to the survey crew working under the direction of the Engineering Department. This makes eight men in this particular survey group.

Crews are at work at Leonard Field and will be returned both to the Horn Pond Brook area and the Mill Pond as soon as the water conditions permit. A crew of seven painters have been working between the cemetery house and the Town Hall. Five men are still busy at the North Reservoir. Four others are working upon the brush at High street. Yesterday while work was stopped at the Mill Pond and Horn Pond Brook the crew at Leonard Field was practically doubled.

Many contributors have not seen the handling of their donations of clothing to the clothing section of the relief work. The old library provides an excellent store. Properly sized shoes are well arranged. Clothing of all kinds are subdivided as to size, use and warmth. Up to date 4375 units of clothing have been distributed. It is worth while repeating for the uninitiated that a unit is a suit, a pair of shoes or stockings, etc.

The unemployment program made possible by the unemployment relief contributions has happily reduced the great demand which would have been made upon the Welfare Board. It is too early to appraise with any degree of accuracy the probabilities with respect to the winter of 1932-33. The experience of this year will, however, greatly simplify the handling of any problems which may arise.

One of the most remarkable features of the entire canvass is the fidelity with which subscribers have met their obligations. Out of some $24,000 due for the months of December, January and February, all has been collected except the sum of $379. The foregoing is a most remarkable record and one of which every citizen of Winchester may well be proud.

HAD NO LICENSE TO DRIVE

It cost Arthur McGann, 16, of 66 Washington street, Woburn, just five dollars to borrow the family automobile and take a drive into Winchester without a license.

On Tuesday evening about 7:30 Patrolman James E. Farrell noticed an automobile approaching him along Washington street with improper lights. He stopped the machine and upon asking the operator for his license was informed that the youth had never had one.

Officer Farrell took McGann to the Station where he stated that he had taken the car from the family garage without the knowledge of his father. The latter was notified and came to Headquarters for his son.

The $5 fine was levied by Justice Jesse W. Morton in the District Court at Woburn on Wednesday.

RT. REV. WILLIAM LAWRENCE

For the first time since January 1925 Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, retired Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts, will visit the Church of the Epiphany on Sunday morning, Mar. 13.

Comparatively few parishes in the suburbs enjoy the privilege of having Bishop Lawrence in their pulpits and members of the Epiphany are looking forward to hearing him on next Sunday. All members of the parish are urged to be present, and a cordial invitation is extended the public to hear this distinguished churchman. The service will commence at 11 o'clock.

On last Sunday morning Bishop Babcock visited the Church of the Epiphany and confirmed a class of 21 who were presented by the pastor, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley. The Bishop preached an inspiring sermon on the text, "Jesus of Nazareth Passeth By" and the vested choir under the direction of organist and choirmaster, Enis J. Held, sang.

Mar. 15 is an important date for the Church Service League and for all friends of the Sailors' Haven in Charlestown.

Mrs. Wallace M. Leonard, who has devoted her time and strength with untiring economy to this work ever since the World War is to tell in detail what is being done for those who come to the Port of Boston. Everyone may have a share in the extension of friendliness and Christian cheer to lonely men whose lives are bleak and full of temptation. Members are cordially urged to come to the luncheon at 12:30, or to the talk following at 1:30, and to bring any interested friends.

ENTERTAINED MEMBERS OF PAGEANT

Mrs. George W. Elwell of Governor's avenue, entertained several of the young ladies who took part in the Fortnightly pageant presented at the Town Hall on Feb. 29 at her home on Tuesday evening. Bridge was played early in the evening and later games were enjoyed.

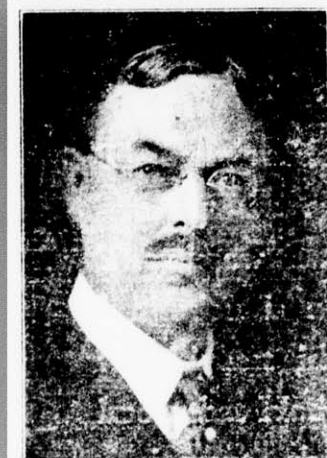

Delicious refreshments were served and the house was attractively decorated in green. Among those present were Mrs. Mann Cox, Miss Catherine Henry, Miss Mary Whittaker, Miss Virginia Wadsworth, Mrs. Cary Cass, Miss Virginia French, Mrs. Lillian Howe, Mrs. Muriel Trout and Mrs. Lars Sandberg.

MR. ERNEST SPIGULIS TO SPEAK AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

battle waged for the vacancy on the Welfare Board among Nellie M. Sullivan, seeking re-election; Howard L. Bennett, ex-member of the Finance Committee; and former Selectman Jonas A. Laraway. Mr. Laraway issued a statement on last Friday, withdrawing from the contest, but evidently many did not take him seriously for he polled 128 votes, and conjecture has been rife since election as to what the outcome would have been, had his name not appeared upon the ballot.

Miss Sullivan was successful in her contest for re-election, polling 1414 votes to Mr. Bennett's 1313. Close followers of local politics stated that a definite trend toward Miss Sullivan was noted a few days prior to election.

WILLIAM E. RAMSDELL
Re-elected Selectman

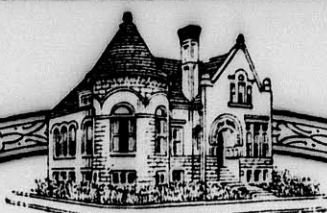

Many "wise ones," in advance of election, were freely predicting the defeat of William E. Ramsdell, and the election of Henry J. Maguire with a vote at or near the top of the list. The "dope" was completely crossed in the case of Mr. Ramsdell, who was re-elected with a lead of 88 votes over Mr. Maguire, who in turn ran seven votes ahead of Harold V. Farnsworth, the fifth man on the new board.

WINCHESTER S. P. C. A. AUXILIARY NOTES

The March meeting of the Winchester S. P. C. A. Auxiliary was held on Friday, Mar. 4 at the home of Mrs. Richard Taylor, 137 Mt. Vernon street.

The increase in attendance and in membership bears witness to the growth of the organization.

A message was received during the afternoon from Dr. Frances H. Rowley, President of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, urging the members of the Auxiliary to attend a hearing at the State House, on Monday, Mar. 14 at 10:30 on House Bill 498, which bill, seeks to nullify the new anti-steel-trap law. It asks for an amendment to this law which would permit setting steel traps within a radius of nearly three miles from any building or cultivated plot of land. Such an amendment would of course kill the anti-steel trap law.

A report of the recent hearing at the State House on the anti-vivisection bill was given by one of our members who attended the hearing. The great question on which there is such bitter difference of opinion is whether the scientific knowledge gained through animal experimentation is of sufficient benefit to mankind to justify the cruelty to animals which is involved.

The next board meeting of the Winchester Auxiliary will be held at the home of Mrs. Richard B. Derby, 184 Mystic Valley Parkway, and in April, the Auxiliary will hold its regular monthly meeting with Mrs. Samuel C. Wiswall, 21 Park avenue.

ESSAY CONTEST CLOSING MAR. 14

The committee in charge of the essay contest for which the subject is "Why We Need a Recreation Center in Winchester" has set the dead line for the receipt of essays as Monday, Mar. 14.

Essays must be mailed to or left for the Recreation Committee at the Winchester Star Office not later than that date. The papers must be in a sealed envelope and must be accompanied by the name of the contestant, which, however, must not be written upon the essay. Papers must be legibly written upon one side of the paper only and must not exceed 1000 words in length.

Two prizes of $5 each have been offered by the Community Service Committee of the Fortnightly and by "a friend" for the two best essays submitted by a boy or girl, not now in school, between the ages of 15 and 21 years. Another prize of $5 has been offered by the Winchester Legion for the best essay submitted by a young man over 21 years.

Three competent judges have been secured to select the winners of the contest and it is hoped that many young people will be interested to participate.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

A meeting of the Winchester Branch Guild of the Infant Saviour was held Tuesday, Mar. 8 at Fortnightly Hall. Following the business meeting a clever one act play entitled "A Pan of Fudge" was presented by pupils of Miss Dorothy Day of Ridgefield road. In the cast were: Elizabeth ... Betty Dissel, Patricia ... Barbara Hickey, Pauline ... Sue Mauldin, M'Le Doure ... Norris Chevalier, Rita ... Mary Hickey, Rita ... Rose Beausang.

Ten was served, the hostesses for the afternoon being Mrs. J. H. Ahern, Mrs. A. I. Beausang, Mrs. F. H. Brown and Miss Mary Lyons. Miss Marie Ahern poured. Assisting the hostesses were members of the Junior Guild: Miss Betty Dissel, Miss Barbara Hickey, Miss Sue Mauldin, Miss Norris Chevalier, Miss Mary Hickey and Miss Rose Beausang.

Misses Edith Lee and Grace Edwards of this town are among the delegates from the industrial department of the Boston Y. W. C. A. to the industrial mid-winter conference being held in Brockton Mar. 12 and 13.

A Ford coach, driven by Michael Colucci of 18 Chester street was in collision shortly before 11 o'clock last Sunday evening at the traffic beacon at the junction of Washington and Mt. Vernon streets with a Reo sedan, operated by Edward D. Carpenter of Mill road, Wilmington. Both cars were damaged and Rita Croft of 936 Main street, riding in the Reo, claimed injury to one of her fingers.

The police were called Sunday afternoon to the new high school building where a group of boys from 10 to 12 years of age were busily engaged in throwing bricks from the roof to the ground. They had the bricks pretty well cleaned off the top of the building when the police arrived. Their names were taken.

Making Money by Lawlessness
Kidnapping for ransom is a hard crime to deal with. Nevertheless, it is one crime for which no punishment is too severe. Bandits who capture a child, or a business man, and demand $50,000 ransom are not hungry victims of the depression. They are organized enemies of society. When crime becomes an organized industry for one sort of lawlessness, it will inevitably extend its activities. The bootleg rings are not crusaders for "personal liberty." They are business men making money by lawlessness.

What is the remedy for this sort of lawlessness? "Repeal prohibition," some people say. But, that cannot be done. The test vote in the Senate the other day showed that it cannot even be started. The other remedy is possible or impossible, according as we make it so, that is to break up the most profitable branch of organized crime by refusing to patronize it. There can be no bootlegging without customers. It is not the alcohol-thirsty, who "must have their drink," that keep the bootlegger going. It is the law-defiant, who are accustomed to laws to interfere with the other fellow, but who resent law when it interferes with themselves.

If the social class will set the example of law obedience, it will be contagious, among those who (usually mistakenly) imagine themselves their inferiors, make it less "smart" socially to deal with outlaw bootleggers and you will also have less kidnapping, robbery, murder, arson, rape and other crimes.

"CASEY TURNS THE TRICK" MAR. 17

St. Mary's High School Alumnae will present their annual play on Thursday evening, Mar. 17, in Winchester Town Hall at 8 o'clock. Such interest and enthusiasm in this play has been manifested by the entire town, that without a doubt the hall will be filled to its capacity. Indeed those who attend will not be disappointed, for not only will they find this comedy of three acts one continuous laugh after another, but they will agree that the cast is exceptionally good. The following are the members of the cast:

Patrick Casey M. Roy McGrath
Mary Anne Helen A. Carroll

Kathleen Elizabeth N. Hallahan

Eileen Susan G. McPartland

The play is under the direction of Miss Ann M. Gurney. Joyce's Orchestra will furnish musical entertainment between the acts.

WINCHESTER COUNTRY CLUB CURLERS END SEASON

Play Finals at the Brookline Country Club's Indoor Rinks

The advantages of having an indoor artificial ice rink never has been set forth more advantageously than in this winter which has been so lacking in cold weather and outdoor ice. None know that better or more disappointingly than the curlers of the Winchester Country Club, who began their season with plans on a more elaborate scale than at any time since they took up the Scottish winter game, only to have their program knocked in the head by the elements. What that means, undoubtedly, is that there will be a growing sentiment at the Winchester club for an artificial ice rink of their own. The time may not be ripe for it next winter, but there is every reason to believe that when times warrant there will be a movement to that end, for the "bite" of curling is almost as bad as that of golf. Some of the curlers would go further than that in expressing their zeal for the game and that goes for a number of the Winchester club's devotees.

They count themselves fortunate and are deeply appreciative of the Country Club's invitation for them to use its rink for their finals in the Charles W. Young trophy and the consolation cup for match play which were to have been played on their own outdoor rink Feb. 22. Everett C. Litchfield, chairman of the Country Club curling committee was on hand to act as host the night they visited Clyde Park, when the rink comprising J. R. Livingstone, A. A. Kimball, E. B. Badger and H. V. Farnsworth (skip) triumphed over Dr. M. Fisher, Bowen Tufts, G. L. Barton and W. D. Eaton (skip), 18-13, after an interesting session. A team made up of L. L. Wadsworth, P. A. Goodale, J. P. Carr and R. F. Guild (skip), won the consolation after an exciting 11-10 match with H. H. Whitcomb, H. Bates, D. T. Morse, Jr., and G. C. Neiley (skip.)

BOSTON MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Sold More New Insurance in 1931 Than 1930

The officers of the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company have a right to be pleased with the figures they were able to report at the annual meeting on Jan. 27. The Boston Mutual Life fared very well indeed in 1931, for it issued the largest amount of life insurance in that year of any year in its history. The total amount of insurance in force on Dec. 31, 1931 was $71,139,902, a net increase over the previous year of $2,802,610, or 4 per cent, represented by 238,687 policies.

Its officers were also able to report that policyholders found the service of this company to be prompt and dependable in this trying year. Altogether it paid them $1,848,449 for one just cause or another, such as death claims, or endowments that had come to maturity, or the benefits due them for disability or double indemnity, or the dividends that their company had earned for them by prudent conduct and wise investment of funds. These payments of $1,848,449 represented an increase of $331,000 over the payments in 1930. The dividends to policyholders amounted to $161,533. The policyholders also found that the promise of this company to lend against policies is a dependable source of relief to policyholders in distress, for the company took prompt care of every application of this sort.

The company closed the year in splendid financial condition. After caring for every reserve requirement that the exacting laws of Massachusetts and the actuaries called for, the company had a net surplus of $527,220, as a protection against every possible contingency. In fact, if one adds to the surplus the funds held for meeting the dividends that are to become payable during 1932, it had a gross surplus of $704,471. This was after setting up a special reserve to meet any possible losses from real estate acquired by foreclosure. The comment of the officers that the company's results for 1931 were highly satisfactory appears to be well within the facts.

Despite the fact that the vote cast in this year's town election is generally thought to be a good one, the fact remains that only 58 per cent of those qualified to vote went to the polls. The greater part of the 42 per cent who did not vote were not sufficiently interested, and they surely have "no kick coming." The limited town meeting sessions are to commence next Wednesday evening, and it is to be earnestly hoped that all precinct members who possibly can do so will be present. The precinct member is in a different position from the citizen who voluntarily attended the former open town meeting. Formerly those who did not attend failed to avail themselves of the privilege of participating in town affairs. Those who now absent themselves deprive their precinct of representation which is its due. Town meeting members, when they consent to become candidates, accept the responsibility of acting for the citizens of their precinct whom the limited town meeting has deprived of their vote. The latter have a right to expect their representatives to attend meetings and to inform themselves rather more carefully than under the old system on matters to be acted upon. The reason most often advanced for accepting the limited town meeting act was that under the old system meetings were limited without being representative. It is up to the precinct members to prevent the charge that the present representative meetings are becoming altogether too limited.

WINCHESTER'S WATER WAYS

The water ways of Winchester are a shame and a disgrace. One would think a town so beautiful would want to hide its face. When it gazes on the muddy streams flowing beneath its bridges. And the dear old Aberjona. And filled with weeds and sedges.

Just here I began to wonder how I could end my poem, when our good citizen Mr. Lewis Parkhurst came to my rescue and began his operations. Now thanks to him, we hope for better things; that the stagnant pools will become beauty spots and that we may once more point with pride to the cleansed and purified dear old Aberjona.

TRUCK TIPPED OVER IN COLLISION

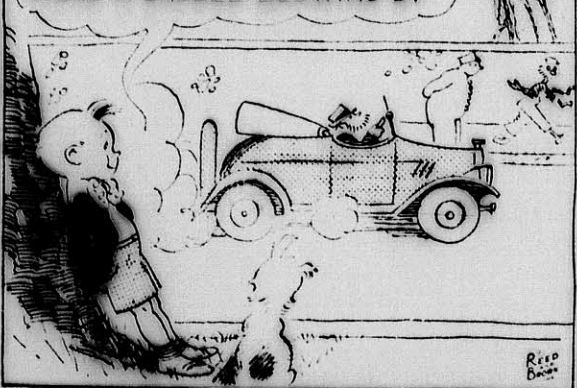

A Ford ton truck, driven by Emilio Luongo of 23 Irving street, was tipped over on its side as the result of a collision with a Hudson coupe, driven by Glenn F. Barclay of 5 Edwin street, Dorchester, last Saturday night shortly after 10:30 o'clock.

The accident occurred at Symmes Corner where Barclay was driving south on Bacon street and entering Main street while Luongo was entering Main street from Grove street. Both the truck and the coupe were damaged and Luongo claimed injuries to his right arm.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The regular meeting of the Literature Committee under the leadership of Mrs. May C. Kennedy was held Mar. 7, at Fortnightly Hall.

The afternoon was in charge of Miss Alice Shovelton and Mrs. Agnes H. Carrier who showed deep thought as well as profound study of the work chosen for discussion, "Japan: An Attempt at Interpretation" by Lafcadio Hearn. In the books by Hearn which have been previously studied, he has been shown as a seeker of Truth and Beauty, but in this book is found his love and understanding of the Orient.

Miss Shovelton's first paper gave clear and vivid glimpses into the past development of the fascinating Japanese empire which history covers a span of 27 centuries. She traced the growth of the race from its early beginnings with the arrival of Chinese and Koreans up through the periods of slavery, of primitive existence, of religious conflicts, of the beginnings of education and improved buildings. Then followed the peaceful era when there was prosperity and happiness with the marked development of Japanese art and literature, and through contact with western civilization which caused the rise of Japanese women.

Mrs. Carrier gave a most illuminating paper upon the Japanese religions and especially the influence which Shintoism has had upon the character of the people, and upon home, community and national life. She showed all the good points of this cult as well as its weaknesses. When Confucianism and Buddhism followed, they built upon this foundation their own teachings.

Miss Shovelton brought out in more detail what each one of these systems had done for the two classes into which all Japan was divided. The great Emperor who was called "The Saviour of His Country" helped not only the class of the Rulers, but also the class that was ruled. Under him the best of Japanese culture was preserved, the best of Japanese art encouraged, and courtesy, cleanliness, and industry were actually enforced by law.

In closing, Mrs. Carrier brought us in touch with modern Japan and showed the vast strides she has made in a short period of 20 years, not all of which have brought happiness to the masses. Sudden intellectual and individual freedom needs the restraint of a very profound wisdom to keep a nation well balanced.

There was a stimulating discussion and an opportunity to examine the very remarkable collection of photographs and prints.

On Monday afternoon, March 14, a concert will be given by the Fortnightly Glee Club and Mischa Tulin, theremin soloist. Mr. J. Albert Wilson is the director and Mrs. Mary Ranton Witham will be the accompanist.

The Glee Club program consists of a group of songs as follows:

Fair Wind and Weather A Mexican Song by Bryceson Trehanne
Star Lullaby A Polish Song by Bryceson Trehanne
Private Dreams Charles Hueter
Pan's Flute A Cantata for women's voices by Carl Busch

In the latter number, the Glee Club will be assisted by Mr. Kenneth McLeod, baritone, and Mr. Verne Powell, flutist.

Mischa Tulin is a virtuoso of the theremin and his program promises to be delightful. This will be Mischa Tulin's first appearance here in Winchester. He has played with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and also the Cleveland and Detroit Symphony Orchestras.

The directors of these great orchestras are loud in their praises of this new instrument which possesses tones of thrilling beauty. The instrument was first conceived by a distinguished young Russian scientist, Leon Theremin. The theremin has no keyboard, strings, reeds or other mechanical aids or sources of sound. Its tones are produced by exclusively electrical means. In the lower range its tones partake of the quality of the bassoon, string bass and other low pitched instruments. Further up the scale the tone is like that of the cello; still further up the quality of the viola, violin, and flute are present. Toward the upper end of the scale the theremin can with an amazing versatility represent the soprano human voice. The chairman, Mrs. Mary T. Ghirardini, hopes all members will come and hear this marvellous new instrument.

ATTEMPTED TO CASH WORTHLESS CHECK

After attempting to cash an alleged worthless check in a local restaurant and pharmacy a Roxbury woman was taken into custody Monday evening by Sgt. Thomas F. Cassidy of the Police Department.

At Headquarters where she was questioned by Chief William H. Rogers and Lieut. John Harrold the woman gave her name as Mrs. Pierce Moore of 73 Walnut street, Roxbury. The check which was for $4.50 was on a Westmorland, Va. bank and was signed Mary Q. Marshall, said to have been Mrs. Moore's former name. After being questioned she was warned to leave town by the officials.

THE GARDENER'S CORNER

Garden covers from all parts of the East are flocking to the exhibition of the Boston Society of Landscape Architects at the Museum of Fine Arts, 465 Huntington avenue, Boston. The collection of photographs of beautiful gardens is a notable one, and should not be missed. There is no admission charge and the exhibition lasts until Mar. 18.

A good time to start early plants in a cold frame is the latter part of March. You should be getting the soil enclosed in the frame ready for use by breaking it up, and mixing some stable manure with it. When the soil is fairly well dried out, sow seeds in the frame or in flats which are later to be placed in the frame. The seedlings will make slow but sturdy growth and will be in splendid condition for transplanting into the open ground about May 20.

To prevent plants from making a spindling growth, the seeds must not be planted too thick, and the bed must have good ventilation and not be kept too warm during the day. At night it must be covered with a mat. Annuals are splendid for combining with perennials to help carry color into spots in the garden that otherwise would be bare. Our August and September perennial gardens would not be very bright if annuals were omitted.

Here is a good alphabetical list of worth while annuals. Ageratum, alysium, antirrhinum, asters, calceolarias, candytuft, coreopsis, centaurea cyanus, cosmos, cynoglossum amabile, dianthus, gypsophila, larkspur, lavatera, lupine, marigolds, mignonette, myosotis, nasturtium, petunias, poppies, salvia, stocks, sweet peas, and last but not least, zinnias.

A successful garden is made much as the old fashioned cook concocted her delectable dishes—just a little of this and a little of that with a dash of something else. Repeated tending secured the desired results. Gardens are made much the same way. Each year something new is added. Something different is tried, and the same mistake is not made twice. There are no defined limitations in gardening, and no two gardeners build exactly the same way. There are, however, certain rules and general principles which must be followed.

The question of the location of the hardy border is of paramount importance and since this is to be a perennial or continuous garden, the elements of sunshine and shade must be given careful study. At least three-quarters of our hardy flowers require sun for the greater part of the day. Next in importance is the size of the border, which may be from four feet to ten feet wide and of any desired length. The outlines may be straight or irregular as one's fancy dictates, but it will certainly pay you to give careful thought to this subject.

By repeated and painstaking study of the seed catalogues we learn that certain things may be depended upon to bloom over a period of several weeks beginning in March, while others will give a succession of bloom for July and August and so on through the list until we find ourselves swamped and bewildered, but by working out a rough sketch on paper, with here and there a change suggested by some garden loving friend, we are launched upon our big adventure.

At the end of the first year, a certain amount of experience has been acquired and a deep bond established between the gardener and every spring of life for which he is responsible. An overwhelming desire to improve and create perfection lies close to the heart of every man or woman who has progressed this far.

WINCHESTER BOY SCOUT NEWS

Camp Staff

Winchester Scouts will be glad to know that Mrs. Casey has again signed up to serve as chef at the summer camp. This means, as all those who have been to camp know, that the Commissary Department will be efficiently handled and that good food properly prepared will be served. During the winter months Mrs. Casey serves as chef at a fraternity house at Harvard, and is as well liked for her work there as she is for the splendid manner in which she cares for the Scouts at Camp Fellsland.

Camp Committee Meets

The Fellsland Council Camp Committee met at the Council office Tuesday evening to discuss plans for the coming season. Freeman Miller of 28 Crescent road, represents Winchester on the Camp Committee.

Hike Saturday

Scouts of Winchester are to go on a hike to Camp Gleason tomorrow, leaving the headquarters of Troop 3 at 10 a. m. Francis Butler will be in charge. In case of bad weather the plans will be changed. A trip to the Charlestown Y will take the place of the hike. In this case, Scouts should be at the Winchester Railroad Station at 9:45 a. m.

Camp Saving Stamps

Winchester Scouts may purchase the Camp Saving Stamps from their Scoutmasters or from Field Executive Edward R. Grosvenor. Many Winchester Scouts are saving through this system for the coming camp season.

DR. BARRON ATTENDED CONVENTION

Dr. George A. Barron, optometrist, attended this week the annual convention of the New England Council of Optometrists, of which he is a member. This convention takes the form of a concentrated post-graduate course, teaching the latest developments in the science of eye examination, diagnosis and treatment of ocular defects. The council was honored this year by being invited by President Karl T. Compton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology to spend an entire day at Technology where the members were given lectures by President Compton and other educators from various scientific schools and universities.

The special feature of the convention was the offering of the entire research group of the Department of Physiological Optics of Dartmouth Medical College, who presented in detail their most recent discoveries, their theories, failures and accomplishments. Their work is done in laboratory and clinic and in giving their developments to the New England Council of Optometrists they appreciated the fact that their work could thus be intelligently and efficiently put into practice for the betterment and preservation of human vision. To the Dartmouth group was awarded the gold medal of the Distinguished Service Foundation in Optometry for 1932.

MEETING OF LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

Last Tuesday, the Ladies' Friendly Society held their monthly meeting in the Unitarian parish house. Following the board meeting held in the forenoon a dainty luncheon was served under the direction of Mrs. Fred Hollins and Mrs. A. S. Hollins. Despite the roar of the wind outside, the spirit of spring prevailed within with the tables bright with spring flowers and green candles.

Mrs. E. Bertram Boardman, chairman of Social Service, planned the afternoon's program. Mrs. Arthur Ray Wellington, district representative of the National Recreation Association was the speaker of the afternoon. From his brief trip about Winchester, Mr. Wellington declined to state just what the town needed in public recreation centers. But he told how initial steps should be taken and stated that the present crime rate was between 16 and 20 years and public recreation centers would give youth of that age healthy occupation. The audience was enthusiastic over the following program offered by Wesley Compton, solo tenor accompanied by Mrs. Frederick Alexander:

One Star Bennett
A Flower Schumann Charming Chime German
Friend O Mine Sanderson
On Wings of Music Mendelssohn
A Love Life Manna Zucca

GOOD SIZED VOTE CAST IN TOWN ELECTION

Irving L. Symmes, candidate for reelection, polled the high vote for Selectman with 1977, six votes more than the total polled by Vincent P. Clarke, re-elected for his fourth term. The defeat of Frank W. Jones was a surprise to many in view of his good showing a year ago. The failure of Gerald K. Richardson to poll a higher vote in Precinct 2, and the fact that he ran but fourth in Precinct 6 undoubtedly hurt his chances badly. Elizabeth C. McDonald, the second woman aspiring to the Board, at least had the satisfaction of running first in her own Precinct.

Two hundred and seventeen votes was the margin by which Frank H. Enman was re-elected to the Board of Assessors over W. Allan Wilde, low votes in Precincts 2 and 3 counting heavily against the latter.

Once again Police Chief William H. Rogers had the distinction of polling the highest vote cast in the election, his 2424 topping that of his fellow candidate for election to the office of constable, Michael J. Foley, by 20 votes. Samuel S. Symmes had 2399 for third place. None of the high vote men had opposition.

It is of interest to compare the number of blanks cast by Precincts in the contest for Selectmen. In Precincts 1 and 6 there were respectively 1052 and 1489 blanks which would seem to indicate that, despite the fact that the total ballots cast in these Precincts were higher than elsewhere, that voters there were either bulleting or voting for perhaps two candidates. The total number of blanks cast in Precinct 2 was twice as great as in the next nearest Precinct.

In this connection the total number of ballots cast in the six Precincts follows:

Precinct	1	2	3	4	5	6	Total
Precinct 1	688						688
Precinct 2	589						589
Precinct 3	487						487
Precinct 4	510						510
Precinct 5	448						448
Precinct 6	698						698

Following are the results of the complete ballot which were made public at 9:15 Monday evening by the veteran election official, Robert H. Sullivan:

CHANCEL CHOIR TO SING ENGLISH COMPOSERS' WORK

To Present "The Darkest Hour" on Palm Sunday

In accordance with the usual custom the Chancel Choir of the First Congregational Church under the direction of Organist and Choirmaster J. Albert Wilson will sing a Lenten oratorio on Palm Sunday afternoon, Mar. 20 at 4 o'clock.

The work chosen for this year's presentation is "The Darkest Hour," a little known oratorio by the English composer, Harold Moore, who has written a score full of drama and sombre beauty, particularly in the passages for men's voices, with which the work abounds.

Those who have so greatly enjoyed the presentations of the "Seven Last Words" by Mr. Wilson's chorists will find "The Darkest Hour" in every way a worthy successor. George Boynton, one of New England's finest tenors, has been secured to sing the tenor role and the other soloists, all of whom are members of the choir, are Isabelle H. Winslip, soprano; Josephine Taylor, contralto; Kenneth McLeod, baritone; and Clifford H. Cunningham, bass. The choir will be augmented for the presentation by members of the Winchester Choral Society.

The Star was told by one of the veteran ice boat skippers of the Medford Boat Club Sunday that last Saturday night marked the first time this winter that Mystic Lake had been completely frozen over.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB ACTIVITIES TO BE INCREASED

Plans have already been formulated for some new and interesting activities to be put into the 1932 schedules of the Winchester Boat Club which will open for the season on April 19.

Various meetings have been held during the winter months in which improvements have been discussed and although nothing official has been announced, already the talk of handball and volley ball courts, wrestling match and Sunday afternoon concerts is being talked of among the members.

Announcement is made however of a concentrated membership drive to increase the club roster and open up the club advantages to the residents of the town. Also for the benefit of the high school students, for this year only, the board of directors have seen fit to create a new junior membership classification that joins entirely the initiation fee and cuts the dues in half. This was done so that the young people might enjoy the club's advantages without suffering financially.

The following team captains have been selected to act in this membership drive: Oscar Crowers, Team A; F. Milne Blanchard, Team B; Andy Skilling, Team C; Harry Gardner, Team D; William Miller, Team F; James Russell, Team G. Members of the club have been assigned to each team and already there is considerable interest to see which team will come out with the most new members on June 1 when the drive ends. Harry Gardner starts in the lead for he already has a couple of new members signed up, but the other say he will not keep that lead long.

Winchester residents who are interested in learning more about the Winchester Boat Club facilities should get in touch with any of the above team captains or with the Membership Committee which consists of Daniel F. Barnard, chairman; Kenneth Pratt and Oscar Crowers.

Among the dinner guests at The Tavern, Kennobunk, Me., last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Stone and daughter, Gretchen Stone of Edgell road.

TO SING "THE CRUCIFIXION" AT EPIPHANY

On Palm Sunday afternoon in the Church of the Epiphany for the choral evensong service at 5 o'clock the combined choirs of the Epiphany and of Grace Church, Medford, will sing Stainer's cantata, "The Crucifixion," one of the beautiful musical works appropriate to the Lenten season.

The cantata will be sung under the direction of Enos Held, organist and choirmaster of the Church of the Epiphany and Miss Ann Everett, organist of Grace Church, Medford. The entire service will be devoted to this musical story of "The Passion," and the public is cordially invited to attend.

It was necessary to provide additional seating facilities for the large congregation that greeted Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, retired Bishop of the Diocese of Massachusetts, at the Church of the Epiphany last Sunday morning.

Bishop Lawrence preached a most interesting and vigorous sermon on Christian Courtesy, taking his text from St. Paul's words, "Be Kind and Considerate." He also paid tribute to the Epiphany's rector, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, who was a student under the Bishop at Divinity School and whom the Bishop ordained.

The vested choir of the church, under the direction of Organist and Choirmaster Enos Held participated in the service and sang a specially prepared anthem.

ELMER P. RANDLETT

Elmer P. Randlett, prominently identified for many years with the wholesale fish business in Boston, died Friday morning at his home, 2 Lagrange street, after a short illness.

Mr. Randlett was born July 26, 1867, in Belmont, N. H., attending New Hampton Preparatory School, Tilton Seminary and Bryant & Stratton Commercial College. After graduation he entered the fish business with F. E. Hardin Company of Boston, spending his entire business life with this house which largely through his efforts has become one of the leading wholesale fish concerns in Boston.

He was widely known in business circles, having been for several years treasurer of the New England Fish Company of Boston and a director of the Boston Fish Market Corporation. He was a Mason, a member of William Parkman Lodge of Winchester and of St. John's Lodge of Boston; also of DeMolay Commandery, K. T.; St. Paul's Royal Arch Chapter and of Aleppo Temple of the Mystic Shrine. In Winchester, where he had lived since 1904, he was a member of the Caumet and Boat Clubs.

WINCHESTER SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT CHAIRMAN

Superintendent James J. Quinn of the Winchester School Department is chairman of the State Committee on Schools which is functioning as a branch of the State Anti-Hoarding Committee of which Frederic S. Snyder, also of Winchester, is chairman.

Mr. Quinn's committee is working under Payson Smith, State Commissioner of Education, and met on Wednesday at the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Views were exchanged and from the opinions advanced it is to be issued a bulletin which is expected to be helpful to teachers in such phases of anti-hoarding education as may apply to school children.

In speaking to the Star on Wednesday, Mr. Quinn stated that the work which can be done with children in school is necessarily limited. His committee proposes to correlate its anti-hoarding instruction with other extra-curricular education such as that offered in safety, health and savings. It is planned to stress the wise saving, spending the utilization of money.

Other members of Mr. Quinn's committee include Paul E. Elicker of Newton High School, George McPheters of Melrose High School, Miss Elizabeth M. Briggs, principal of the Ingraham and Donaghy Schools of New Bedford; Miss Mary A. Weaver of Springfield, Rev. Richard Quinlan, supervisor of Parochial Schools for the Diocese of Boston; Burr F. Jones and Frank P. Morse of the State Department of Education.

GLEANINGS FROM THE WORK OF THE WATER DEPARTMENT

Forestry Work

The usual forestry work has been carried on around the reservoirs. There were 12,500 trees planted this year to fill in the open spaces on the shores. Our regular plan for thinning of the hardwood trees has been carried on. About 36 cords of wood were cut. We propose to carry out the policy of thinning the hardwood trees so that the pine trees will receive the necessary sunlight for their growth and not uncover the land too rapidly so that an excessive evaporation will occur. This plan has been approved by the State Forester. Wood has been sold to the value of $280.

Cleaning the Shores of the Reservoirs

The mud has been dug out of one cove at the North Reservoir for which the town appropriated $1500. This money was not enough to complete the work necessary for this area. The Committee on Unemployment volunteered to furnish the labor necessary to finish the work. The total cost was about $2600. This work has improved the appearance of the cove but we are advised by water works engineers that it will not help the quality of the water, which is usually excellent, nor will it add to any extent to the capacity of the reservoirs. We are of the opinion that the town should not spend any more money at present on this kind of work as the results will not pay for the expenditure.

Pollution of the Reservoirs

The most important matter under consideration is the menace to the water supply by people coming to the reservoirs to pick berries and mushrooms. The pine trees are so thick on the water shed that persons attend to the wants of nature on the shores of the reservoirs and cannot be seen by the police. This causes a very serious menace to the water as a typhoid germ might start an epidemic in the town. We will soon be obliged to fence in a great part of the water shed. As a precaution, we have placed a great many "No Trespass" signs so that it will be easier for the police to enforce the regulations as made by the State Department of Health. More policing will be required as time goes on.

Removal of Trees From South Dam

This summer the trees on the upper part of the South Dam were removed and those on the lower part were thinned out. A number of citizens drew the attention of the Board of the danger that might occur to the dam from these trees in a high wind. Not feeling competent to pass on this matter ourselves, we requested X. Henry Goodnough, the retired chief engineer of the State Department of Health who had charge of all water supplies in the State, to give his opinion of the matter. He advised that the trees be removed as the town could not afford to take a chance as these trees grew larger, and we followed his advice.

Police Work at the Reservoirs

Fifteen arrests were made during the year: three for fishing, five for trespassing, one for larceny of trees, and six for bathing. Nine lost children were cared for. Six fires were sighted from the lookout; all but one were on Metropolitan territory.

Four of these fires were put out by the Water Department equipment.

Testing Meters

A systematic plan of testing meters has been adopted and the results show that an increased revenue will come to the town by this method.

In 1915 the Board made a very careful study of the water meter situation. At that time, there was a number of different makes of meters in use, necessitating the carrying of a large assortment of repair parts. It was voted by the Board to make standard a house meter manufactured by the Pittsburgh Meter Company as it was a high grade, simply constructed and accurate meter and had a great many users in New England. This policy has been carried out over the last 15 years and they have proved very satisfactory at a very low repair cost.

MRS. IDA LORETTA BARKER

Mrs. Ida Loretta Barker, widow of Dr. Frank J. Barker and a former resident of Concord, died suddenly Thursday night of an acute heart attack at the home of her niece, Mrs. Norman Brooks, 86 Woodside road.

Mrs. Barker was born in 1866 in New Brunswick but spent most of her life in Concord, from which town she came to Winchester five months ago. She was the daughter of George A. and Isabella (Wells) Pelton, and leaves a brother, Fred A. Pelton of Haverhill, and a sister, Mrs. S. R. Watt of Calgary, Alberta.

Funeral arrangements are not as yet complete. Burial will be in Mt. Feake Cemetery, Waltham.

MISS MARY E. NORCROSS

Funeral services for Miss Mary E. Norcross, who formerly made her home in Winchester on Lagrange street, will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 in the Forest Hills Crematory Chapel. Miss Norcross died Thursday morning in Melrose after a long illness. She was in her 89th year and was a member of one of Winchester's old time families. Surviving is a sister living in Swampscott.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Marriage intentions have been filed with the town clerk as follows:

Robert Stokes Apsey of 19 Symmes road and Dorothy Williams Bonia of 3 Newport road, Cambridge.
Edmund Titus Nuttle of 9 Jones avenue, North Woburn, and Elvera Bruno of 24 Chester street.

Mr. George F. Purrington of Fryburg, Me., formerly of this town, is in Winchester visiting friends.

HOLD FIRST SESSION OF TOWN MEETING

Additional Money for Schools Appropriated—Appropriation Total More Than a Million

With 183 out of 228 members present the first session of the annual Town Meeting got under way Wednesday evening in the Town Hall. Everything was harmonious and the meeting moved swiftly through the first 19 articles of the warrant, almost all of which were accepted without opposition or even debate. A total of $1,028,048.43 was appropriated, of which $73,000 is by bond issue.

After the opening and the usual swearing of newly elected officials, the meeting stood for the reading by Chairman Vincent P. Clarke of the Board of Selectmen of a resolution upon the death of George S. F. Bartlett, for 16 years clerk of the Board.

Routine consideration of the first two articles in the warrant, and the appropriation respectively of $92,438.98 and $123,441 under Articles 3 and 4 pertaining to payment of town bonds and notes, and to meeting an overdraft incurred in 1931 for contagious disease, brought the meeting to the consideration of Article 5, the long article dealing with appropriations for the various town departments and expenditures.

Item after item was accepted by the meeting and appropriations made in strict accordance with the recommendations of the Finance Committee until the heading "Contagious Disease" was reached.

Here Doctor Blaisdell entered the lists to ask for an increase in the appropriation from $1500 to $5000, stating that tubercular patients, trouble with rabies and patients in contagious hospitals would use up $4000 of the latter figure, leaving only $1000 for current expenses.

The doctor also championed the purchase of a new truck for the collection of garbage, saying that only the tender care of the "town scribe," Patrick F. Craughwell, had enabled the ancient vehicle to keep going at all.

This was the high point of the meeting, Mr. Worthen, harking back delightfully to the days when he and Doctor Blaisdell had debated the need for a new horse in the Health Department, and Mr. Maguire adding appreciably to the sparkling repartee.

It was suggested that a smaller figure be voted than that asked for by Doctor Blaisdell and that the balance be met, if necessary, by an overdraft, but Mr. Larned felt that when the exact amount needed by a department is known it would be foolish to appropriate less than the necessary figure.

The $5000 was voted and once again the items slid quietly by until the $700 recommended for Memorial Day was raised by $50 to provide new grave markers for the American Legion.

A reduction of $296 was made under Pensions for Police, but the police appropriation was raised $250 to make provision for the dog officer. Under the heading "Snow and Ice" the appropriation was increased from $10,000 to $12,500.

Under Article 5 a motion was introduced by the Finance Committee and passed by the town, making provision for the possible reduction of town salaries at any later date during the year.

The next four routine articles were quickly disposed of and under Article 11 Robert F. Guild was re-elected Director of County Aid to Agriculture, his own being the only dissenting vote.

Article 12 resulted in the meeting accepting the reports of the Insurance, Library, Building, School, Building, Safety, Eastern Boundary Line, Additional Water Supply and Waterways Improvement Committees as printed in the town report. It was also voted to establish a committee of 11 citizens, one to be a Selectman, and the others chosen by the Moderator, to be known as the "Committee on Housing of Town Activities." Its duties are to consider proposed alterations of the town hall for additional office space, procure plans, etc.; to consider the use or disposal of the Wadleigh School building when it shall no longer be needed for school purposes, to consider the desirability of demolishing the Legion headquarters and providing new quarters for the Post, to hold one or more public hearings and to report finally to the Town Clerk on or before Dec. 31, 1933, said report to be included in the annual Town Report. The sum of $1000 was appropriated for the use of this committee.

An amendment to the original motion providing for the committee was offered by Mrs. Lorence M. Woodside who asked that the paragraph giving to the committee the right to consider the necessity or desirability of providing facilities for indoor athletic and recreational activities be stricken out since a separate article dealing with this matter had been inserted in the warrant for consideration. The meeting sustained her and her amendment was accepted.

Also under Article 12 another committee was established to be known as the "Committee on Revision of the Building Laws," to consist of seven members, and to consider the necessity or advisability of revising the town's building laws.

Action on Article 13 was postponed until after the special session of the Town Meeting on Monday evening.

Article 14 brought the meeting to the consideration of the motion to appropriate additional funds for the completion of the high school addition and the new secondary school on Main street. It had been thought in advance of the meeting that opposition to this article might arise, but such was not the case.

THOMAS P. DOTTEN

Thomas P. Dotten, retired police officer and the first man to be appointed a patrolman in the Winchester Police Department, died on Tuesday, Mar. 15, at the Newton Hospital in his 89th year. Since leaving Winchester in 1926 he had made his home in Auburndale with his daughter, Mrs. E. C. Gage, until the latter's death about a month ago. He had been ill since that time.

Mr. Dotten was the son of Joshua and Nancy (Patterson) Dotten and was born in Wallace Harbor, N. S. He came to Winchester in 1869 and for a time was employed in the leather factory of Mosely & Dunn in the Cutter Village section of the town. Later he served as janitor for the School Department and it was while in this capacity that he was appointed to the Police Department by the Selectmen in 1885.

As the first regular patrolman in the department he replaced the late Andrew Todd who had patrolled the town at night as a constable. J. Winslow Richardson, for many years Postmaster of Winchester and now deceased, was chief of the department at the time of Mr. Dotten's appointment. The station house was located in what later became the Water Works shop on Vine street, recently removed to make room for the new Co-operative Bank building.

Mr. Dotten went on duty at 6 o'clock in the evening and remained until 6 o'clock in the morning, receiving for his services $1.75 per day. From the day of his appointment he had an unbroken record of service, unblemished by black mark or reprimand, until he was retired on a pension June 10, 1916.

For several years Mr. Dotten was a member of the Fire Department and was foreman of the old J. W. Huse Hook & Ladder Company, a position which he relinquished when he was appointed to the Police Department. It is also of interest that when the Star was first printed in the old Miller Block by the river in 1880 he turned the wheel of the old hand press, continuing to do so until the paper moved into the old school house, then located on the site of the present Ames Building, when a water motor was installed.

Dec. 11, 1893, Mr. Dotten was married and for many years made his home on Reservoir street where in 1918 he observed with his wife the 25th anniversary of their marriage. Shortly after the death of his wife Aug. 19, 1926, he left town to make his home with his daughter in Auburndale. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Annie Singer and Mrs. Minnie Lawrence, both of Auburndale, and by one son, Fred H. Dotten of Winchester.

Funeral services were held on this Friday afternoon in the First Baptist Church at 3 o'clock with the Rev. Arthur L. Winn of Winchester officiating. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE

On two occasions recently signal honor has been paid a distinguished Winchester resident. The tributes paid Mr. Charles T. Main were of the highest order and were testimonials of appreciation of a distinguished career and an international reputation.

On Feb. 19 a group of engineer friends of Mr. Main tendered him a birthday party at the Engineers' Club in Boston. Mr. Charles L. Edgar, president of the Edison Company, presided, and among the distinguished persons present were Mr. Calvin W. Rice, secretary of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers; Mr. John R. Freeman, one of America's foremost engineers; Gen. R. C. Marshall, head of the construction division of the U. S. Army during the war; Mr. Frank M. Gunby, Mr. Waldo E. Buck, and Prof. H. J. Barrows. Mr. Freeman and Mr. Buck were classmates of Mr. Main. The addresses and testimonials were tokens of the high esteem in which Mr. Main is held by those who know him best.

On Wednesday night, March 16, the Boston Society of Civil Engineers, the oldest organization of its kind in America, elected Mr. Main an honorary member, the highest honor conferred by the society. A diploma of honorary membership was also conferred upon Dr. Karl T. Compton, making four honorary fellows in all. There are about 1000 members in the Boston Society of Civil Engineers. Quoting from the diploma we read that the award was made by directors of the Board of Government "In recognition of his great attainments as an Engineer during more than half a century of busy and useful engineering service, his helpful labors as president of this society, and the high ethical and professional standards which he has advocated and practiced." Charles Thomas Main has been duly elected an honorary member by the Boston Society of Civil Engineers.

The people of Winchester who have known and respected Mr. Main for many years, pay him honor and add their tribute to that of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers.

OBSERVED 25th ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave A. Danielson of Forest street observed the 25th anniversary of their marriage last Saturday evening in Veterans' Hall, Woburn, where 200 relatives and friends gathered to do them honor. The occasion had double significance for Mr. Danielson, who is a well known local builder, since it marked also his 50th birthday.

Mrs. Danielson received in an Alice blue lace gown with a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Herbert J. Dyson of Winchester acted as hostess and was assisted by Mr. Arthur Lovgren, also of Winchester.

Mr. Nils Hultgren of Woburn and Winchester acted as master of ceremonies, and an unusually fine entertainment program was enjoyed under his direction.

Included were tenor solos by Mr. A. Gustafson of Somerville, accompanied by Mr. Levanti of Harvard; accordion solos by Fred Housen of Winchester, and an original poem written especially for the occasion and read by its author, Mrs. Caroline Nelson. A feature of the entertainment was a clever mock marriage with Mr. Hultgren acting as clergyman.

Dainty decorations were served from tables decorated in pink and white and gay with pink roses. An orchestra furnished music for dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Danielson have made their home in Winchester for the past 20 years. They have one daughter, Mrs. Alice Lundin, who was among the guests at the party with her husband and two children.

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE TOWN

In order that I, as chairman of the Board of Selectmen, may be the more readily available to the citizens of Winchester, I am planning to be in the Town Hall, in the Selectmen's office, on Saturday mornings from 8 to 11 o'clock, and shall be pleased to confer with anyone at that time on any matter relating to the welfare of the town.

I appreciate this opportunity to be of service, and sincerely trust that you will feel free to call upon me and make any suggestions which you think are helpful to the town and its citizens.

FREDERICK MANLEY IVES AT PRECINCT 1 MEETING

Those who braved the cold and came out to hear Mr. Frederick Manley Ives on Town Meeting procedure in the George Washington School, Tuesday evening, enjoyed one of the most interesting and helpful events which have taken place in the district.

Equipped with years of experience and extensive knowledge regarding his subject, together with a keen sense of humor, Mr. Ives treated troublesome questions in such a simple, friendly and informal way that no one could fail to understand and all felt free to ask questions.

Precinct 1 is greatly indebted to Mr. Ives. What a fine thing it would be if Mr. Ives would give a series of these talks in some central place where members from all Precincts might attend.

if means Intestinal Flora, tiny plant organisms which live in the digestive tract. The friendly acidophilus type helps normal elimination. The putrefactive type hinders it. Restores a proper balance or looks and health will suffer.

It's a fact—your doctor will agree—that your attitude toward things in general is largely influenced by the condition of your intestinal tract. A sluggish colon can literally "poison" your whole point of view.

Here's a good suggestion, which many doctors also endorse—Drink Walker-Gordon Acidophilus Milk—a preparation of pure, fresh Walker-Gordon milk, cultured with a hardy strain of acidophilus bacilli. These friendly bacilli—introduced into the intestinal tract with the milk—fight the germs of decay bred by our modern diet. As they gain the ascendancy, the intestinal condition is "sweetened", absorption of poisons is checked and elimination tends to become regular and natural.

Try this sensible method of regulating your intestinal habits for 30 days and see if you don't feel better—and brighter!

RADIO STARS AT BOWLING DINNER

Many prominent radio stars, well known to all listeners, will feature the entertainment program of the annual bowling dinner at the Calumet Club this Saturday evening. The 10 teams standing lowest in the tournament will provide the feast and program.

The tournament closed last week. This is the feature event of the winter on the Calumet alleys, and nearly 100 members of the club participated. At the coming dinner the prize winners will be announced and the awards made.

Featuring the entertainment will be such well known radio stars as Lonnie Weeks, Morton Downie, Hum & Strum, Bennie McLaughlin (piano), Ronnie & Van and Billie Payne. Lillian Tashman and Paul Whiteman have also been prominently mentioned, but the committee, through the assistance of Mr. George C. Wisswell who has made the program possible, declines to definitely announce their attendance. In addition to the entertainment program, an elaborate dinner will be served.

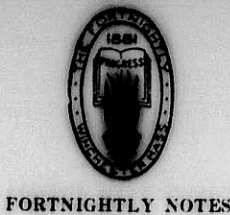

No less than 13 prize awards will be made to the skillful winners, this feature of the affair, together with the dinner arrangements, being in charge of Chairman Harry A. McGrath of the club's bowling committee. Chairman McGrath has been assisted in the conduct of the tournament by the following members of his committee: Alan Hovey, James J. Fitzgerald, Jr., Harry L. Pilkington, Dr. Emerson C. Priest and Ralph L. Purrington.

MR. JERE A. DOWNS WINS GOLD MEDAL

One of the most beautiful exhibitions ever made by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society closed last Monday night at Horticultural Hall in Boston. There were many notable exhibits and choice plant specimens. The highest prize for cultural excellence, the gold medal offered by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society for cultural excellence, was awarded to Mr. Jere A. Downs, Mr. Downs' gardener is Mr. G. Henry Eaton, formerly assistant gardener at Warwick Castle, England. Mr. Eaton is considered one of the ablest plant growers in the country, and has just been made a life member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. Mr. Downs received the gold medal for a superb exhibit of orchids containing perfect specimen plants.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Wood of Highland avenue held a bridge party at their home on Saturday evening. Mrs. Wallace Cooper of Myrtle terrace won the first prize. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Cooper, Dr. and Mrs. Harrie Y. Nutter and Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Howard.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

There was a large attendance at the regular meeting of the Fortnightly, Monday, Mar. 14, at 2:30 o'clock. After singing "America the Beautiful" and saluting the flag, the following chairmen of the standing committees gave notices.

Mrs. Grosvenor, Federation Secretary, announced the conference, Mar. 16, at the Reading Woman's Club. Mrs. Grindle, chairman of the Co-operation with War Veterans, asked the members for used playing cards to take to the Veteran's Hospital. Mrs. Whitman, chairman of Dramatics, gave the names of two plays to be given in Fortnightly Hall, Friday, April 1. They are "Sunny Morning," a Spanish play, by Quintero and "Happy Day," a humorous sketch by Octavia Roberts. Mrs. Wright, Chairman of Education, gave an invitation to attend the conference on education to be held at the Hotel Statler, Boston, Mar. 24. Mrs. Snyder, Chairman of the Club House fund, committee, announced that a progressive luncheon was to be given Monday, Mar. 28, for the benefit of the Scholarship fund. The first course is to be served at the home of Mrs. Albert K. Comins, 407 Highland avenue and the second course is to be served at the home of Mrs. Walter E. Chamberlin, 34 Wildwood street. After that bridge will be played at Fortnightly Hall. As there can be but 150 people accommodated, Mrs. Snyder urged everyone to buy tickets early.

The president introduced Mrs. Anna Grosvenor and Mrs. Blanche Barnard who reported on the mid-winter meeting of Women's Clubs held Feb. 18 at Hotel Statler, Boston. Mrs. Grosvenor gave an interesting account of the morning session. Mrs. Barnard gave a clear report of the afternoon session.

After the business meeting the program for the afternoon began at 3:15 p. m. Before the entertainment, the president, Mrs. Isabelle Winship, paid a tribute to Mrs. Margaret Hintlian, chairman of the Art Committee, for the production of "Dream Pictures," which so delighted everyone at the previous meeting of the Fortnightly, Mar. 7 and to Mrs. Anita McGaraghe for giving her time and help so unsparringly. Praise was given Mrs. Mary Ghirardini, chairman of the Music Committee, for doing so much in making the Glee Club self supporting, and then, in a cordial manner, Mrs. Winship presented Mrs. Ghirardini to an appreciative audience.

Mrs. Ghirardini introduced the artists as follows: Mr. J. Albert Wilson, the director of the Glee Club, one whom we all know and appreciate; Mary Ranton Witham, the accompanist, who received honors in music in 1925 from Harvard University; Radcliffe; Kenneth McLeod, a most unusual baritone, who reaches his high notes with such ease; Verne Powell, a world known flutist of great note; Mischa Tulin, the marvelous player of the new instrument, the theremin, which has recently made such a sensation.

The program follows:

- Glee Club
 - Fair Wind and Weather (Mexican)
 - Star Lullaby (Polish)
 - When the Roses Bloom
 - Pirate Dreams
- Mischa Tulin
 - Theremin Selections
- Glee Club
 - Pan's Flute (Cantata for women's voices with baritone and flute solos)
- Mischa Tulin
 - Theremin Selections
- Glee Club
 - The Fortnightly Song

GLEE CLUB
First Sopranos: Grace Aseltine, Christine Clarke, Ruth Ferguson, Mary Ghirardini, Annette Hughes, Blanche S. Barnard, Gertrude Barnes, Beatrice Budd, Ruth Cunninghamham.
Alto: Alice Abbott, Florence Henry, Susan Dodge.
Second Sopranos: Olive Page McLellan, Alice Murphy, Gertrude Murphy, Adel Williams, Isabelle H. Winship, Mary Sexton, Gertrude Trout, Ada von Rosenzinge.
Tenors: Mary Kelley, Anna Lockman, Helen McDonald.

Notable was the sense of style and full tones of the Glee Club voices in perfect unison. In "Pan's Flute" written by Carl Bush of the Philharmonic Orchestra in Kansas City, the sweet notes of the flute and the brilliance of the voices, full of life and spirit were praiseworthy. An encore "Little Banjo" with its playful tones was charming.

The sensation of the afternoon was when Mischa Tulin stood before the new instrument, the theremin, and explained it thus: the theremin, a new and unique instrument, appeared late in 1929; and was named for its inventor, Leon Theremin, a young Russian scientist.

The instrument has no keyboard, strings, or reeds, but employs radio tubes, with two metal bars as antennae and a loud speaker. One antenna, a straight, perpendicular bar, controls the tone pitch or "voice" of the theremin. The other antenna, a looped horizontal bar, controls the volume. As the hand approaches the antenna, the pitch of the sound becomes louder, as the hand is withdrawn the pitch becomes softer.

Mr. Tulin was accompanied on the theremin by Tules Wolfers. His selections were:

Calm on the Night: Bohm
Ave Maria: Schubert
Estrellita: Ponzo
Si Vous Loviez compe: Denza
Encores
Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes
The Rosary

These were rendered beautifully. The applause which followed the program was a tribute to each one who took part.

The Neighborhood Day program on Mar. 21 is one to which the Fortnightly is looking forward with real anticipation and pleasure.

The Arlington Woman's Club will present "The Selfish Giant" by Oscar Wilde with incidental music by Liza Lehman.

A series of dramatic tableaux composed and coached by Mary Griffin Donovan will be shown by the Medford Woman's Club.

The last presentation will be a one act play, "The Acid Test" with a cast of two persons, to be given by the Stoneham Woman's Club.

Interest in the summer camp is keener than ever this year. A large enrollment from Winchester is expected.

SECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH ROLL CALL

The Second Congregational Church held its 26th Annual Roll Call on Friday evening, March 11. The evening began very auspiciously with a delicious turkey supper, served by a committee of women of the Bethany Society. The assembly hall was artistically decorated in the colors of the church, yellow and white, and the tables were brightened by lighted tall yellow candles and fresh jonquils. After the supper, the roll was called by the clerk of the church, Mr. Arthur A. Belville, and each of the large number of members present responded to his name with a scripture verse or other appropriate words.

The Rev. Mr. Whitley then spoke briefly of the work of the church, past and present, expressing gratification at the loyalty and faithfulness of its members, mentioning appreciatively the Bethany Society (whose 50 years of faithful service are to be celebrated by a festive evening on Thursday, April 7), and referring particularly to his happiness in the growth of the Sunday School this year. He then introduced the teacher of the older boys' class, Mr. George Pinney, who is a student at Harvard Theological School, and requested him to tell something about his work. Mr. Pinney told of his plan of teaching, i. e., to give the boys a general knowledge of the different forms of religion, beginning in ancient times, and bringing them down to the present day, with a final application of Christianity to our own immediate surroundings and the church which we attend. In addition to this attractive course of teaching, Mr. Pinney has assisted the boys to form a club, with officers and rules, and every Friday evening the boys have a get-together in the church assembly room for games and a social time. The group has been steadily increasing in numbers, growing from six or seven to about 13 or 14 at present.

Mrs. George Henry was a guest of the evening, and very graciously extended the greetings of the First Congregational church. She then referred to some of her neighbors, when she first came to Winchester 38 years ago, who were members of the Bethany Society, and were then busy piecing quilt tops and sewing, even as the present members are still busily working in any needed sphere. The sound of the names she mentioned struck very pleasant chords of memory in the older residents present.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Miller of the Stoneham Congregational Church, were among those present at the guest table. Mr. Miller, speaker of the evening, gave a splendidly impressive address. He spoke of how big the work of the church has got to be in these times to combat the forces of pessimism, discouragement, evil, and newspaper propaganda, so wide-spread today. Those privileged to hear this interesting and enthusiastic young minister were most favorably impressed with his very evident strength of character and with the force and value of his words.

The entertainment was in charge of the Church Music Committee, and was furnished by Mrs. Lillian R. Whitman, who appeared in a rarely beautiful shimmering, white costume of Colonial days, with wig of high-piled white hair. This charming picture was emphasized by reflectors and foot-lights, and a dark background of curtains. Beside her on a small stand burned a candle in an old brass candlestick. Mrs. Whitman gave a reading, "Miss Penelope's Christmas Dance," which describes in verse how Miss Penelope entertained and diverted the minds of the British officers on that cold, stormy Christmas eve, while Washington and his men made the dangerous crossing of the river, and launched their surprise attack on the merry-makers. Mrs. Whitman also sang two groups of songs which were in keeping with the period of her costume. These included, "Buy My Strawberries," "I Will Give You the Keys to Heaven," "The Lass With the Delicate Air," and "He Stole My Tender Heart Away," after which for encore, she sang the old "Oh Dear, What Can the Matter Be." The enthusiastic applause and after comments of delighted appreciation leave no doubt of the pleasure Mrs. Whitman's charming entertainment gave her listeners.

After a few appropriate remarks by Mr. Whitley, in which he thanked those whose efforts had made the occasion so wholly delightful and beneficial, the traditional "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" was heartily sung by all, and thus this most enjoyable evening was brought to a close.

NOTED JESUIT LECTURER WINCHESTER GUEST

Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S. J. of Weston College and director of the Catholic hour over WNAC every Sunday was the guest at luncheon of Mrs. Mary A. Lyons of 5 Everett avenue on Wednesday. Her two sons, Rev. Henry Lyons, pastor of St. Catherine's Church, Charlestown, and Rev. Wm. F. Lyons, pastor of St. Theresa's Church, West Roxbury, Rev. John R. McCool, pastor of the Star of the Sea Church, East Boston, and Mr. George Sweeney of Brookline were also luncheon guests.

FRED H. SCHOLL A GOOD MAN

With the vacancy on the Town Welfare Board about to be filled, considerable has been heard in favor of the appointment of Fred H. Scholl, past exalted ruler of Winchester Lodge of Elks and a prominent member of many committees on welfare connected with the distribution of Christmas and Thanksgiving donations. The vacancy will be filled by the two remaining members on the Board, meeting with the Selectmen. The Star is glad to add its endorsement to the appointment of Mr. Scholl, and would be pleased to see him in this office which he is eminently qualified to fill.

Never Satisfied
Work is much like love. You think you can't live without it and then you get it and want a vacation.—San Francisco Chronicle.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF NEWS

Since the beginning of the Unemployment Relief program the Clothing Service Section has issued 617 pairs of children's shoes. There now remains in stock but six pairs of shoes for boys and 10 pairs for girls, within the range of school age. Children's shoes are therefore badly needed. Any further additions to this supply will be greatly appreciated by the Clothing Committee. They may be delivered to the old library section of the Town Hall, or if donors do not find it convenient to deliver them, a telephone to 0793-M giving name and address will result in a call from some member of the committee to secure the shoes. The energy of children provides rapid wear for shoes. Those given out are for the most part considerably worn before distribution, therefore, their wearing life is necessarily shortened.

Two hundred and twenty men are on the pay roll this week. The majority of them are on less than full time. It is the plan of the U. R. C. to carry the crew without diminution of numbers or wage rate until Mar. 28. To conserve the funds contributed by the citizens and to maintain the largest number of men at work, the daily wage rate will be changed at that time from $3.50 per day to $3.00 per day. A printed slip in preparation which will be attached to pay roll checks notifying the men of the Mar. 28 change in the unemployment relief wage scale and urging upon them the necessity of securing work elsewhere as quickly as possible. The normal development of spring work should be well launched with the warm days of April, at which time it may be assumed that the moderate amount of frost remaining in the ground will have disappeared.

The water in both the Mill Pond and in Horn Pond Brook has fallen sufficiently so that full crews are back at work at those points. It will be observed that the Committee is placing riprap on the shores of the Mill Pond and around the island. More riprap work is going in at Horn Pond Brook where it is highly necessary. The contribution of the Winchester plant of the General Crushed Stone Company of crushed rock for surfacing over two miles of sidewalk and the soft rock which is being supplied for riprap constitutes a very real contribution to the unemployment relief work and is highly appreciated by the committee and will be by the townspeople who are made aware of this particularly useful substitute for cash contributions. The laying of the material itself creates hand labor and remains as a permanent asset to the town.

The usual crew is steadily at work on Leonard Field, enlarging its area and transferring gravel to the banks of the Aberjona, reducing the mosquito-breeding area in the process.

The painters have finished work in the basement of the Town Hall, where the fresh white surface provides a most agreeable atmosphere of cleanliness. The painting crew is now working in the police station and on the house belonging to the town, located on Linden street.

Three carpenters are at work repairing the check room in the Town Hall, which will be greatly improved as the result of their efforts.

Another crew is at work clearing the land owned by the town near High street. Five men are working about the shores of the North Reservoir.

The survey crew of eight men is still at work under the direction of the Town Engineering department.

A new job has been entered upon at Wedge Pond Park. The shore line had so sunken that water came over the walk. Filling is now being done and the grade raised to overcome this difficulty.

Clothing units have now advanced to the large total of 4570. The comfort and protection afforded by this clothing distribution cannot be readily appraised.

The First National Stores have sent a second installment of food orders amounting to $50 and advised us that we may expect two additional orders of about the same amount. If these are realized it will afford a practical contribution from this source of $200. Direct and most practical use will be made of these food orders.

This contribution, taken with the fair value of the crushed and non-crushed stone supplied by the Winchester plant of the General Crushed Stone Company, carries our contributions well above the $48,000 which was the original goal of the committee.

ROTARY OBSERVES

St. Patrick's Day, falling on the meeting date of the Rotary Club of Winchester yesterday, was fittingly observed and furnished the background for a most enjoyable luncheon. A full meeting attended, with a number of visiting Rotarians and guests.

Through the courtesy of George Welsch, Pat Walsh, George Davidson and Fred Scholl, decorations and edibles were in keeping with the spirit of the day. Handsome green buttonnieres, Irish hats and favors, fitted perfectly with corned beef and cabbage and generous ices of harps and shamrocks.

Doc. Hinds presided, with "Jim" McGrath at the piano, and the program was decidedly augmented by a special quartet and a chorus. "Pat" Walsh was presented with a handsome pot of genuine shamrocks, and he responded with an outline of the life and history of St. Patrick and his success as an Irishman.

The guest of the luncheon was R. E. Dockham of Salem, who lectured on "Two Cent Grins and Lifted Chins" to the edification and amusement of all.

One hundred per cent meetings are asked for by Rotary officers for the next four weeks, and the feat gives good promise of accomplishment.

We have always maintained that STAR advertisements are worth while and now along comes Frank McLean, proprietor of "The Tavern" in Kennebunk, Me. to back us up. Frank inserted an ad in the STAR recently and Walter I. P. Badger, up in Meredith, N. H., read it and motored over to Kennebunk and had dinner at the McLean hotel. Along with the business Frank was glad to see an old Winchester face, and is convinced that STAR advertising pays. There are not a few successful business men and women who agree with him.

The STAR has been asked to call attention to the risk which dog owners permit their pets to run at Wedgemere Station. The animals, we are told, follow people to the station and run back and forth across the track, often avoiding death from thundering trains by mere chance. We have no remedy to offer and can only hope that some fine dog will not have the life knocked out of him while playing around the railroad.

A glance at the Fire Department's records for the past week-end and last few days make it apparent that it is time for our annual Editorial on the evils of promiscuous fire lighting. It would seem that the average person has too much intelligence to start a fire out-of-doors in a high wind, but unfortunately the facts do not substantiate such a belief. The use of an incinerator is not proof against fire spreading, nor does it exempt one from the necessity of getting a permit to burn from Fire Headquarters. As a matter of fact many of the grass and brush fires which have originated from fires in incinerators. Last week-end there were some 15 grass and brush fires to which the firemen were called. We are informed that it costs approximately from $5 to $25 to answer an alarm, according to the apparatus required. It is therefore costing us money to be stubborn about lighting fires without permits, and in so doing we are often endangering our own and the property of others. It seems to us a practice we may well dispense with, and it might help to this end if the authorities would prosecute those who endanger a community by disregarding a law which is designed to promote that community's welfare!

M. C. W. G. NOTES

On last Tuesday evening the local branch conducted a shamrock whist at the home of Sister Mary Chamberlain. The efforts of hostess Chamberlain resulted in a most successful party.

At the last regular meeting officers for the coming year were elected, and plans are now underway for a joint installation of Arlington, Cambridge, and Winchester Branches at the Hotel Commander, Harvard Square, Cambridge on April 21. All members desiring to attend should be present at the April business meeting on April 14 to make their reservation or notify the Regent before that meeting so that proper catering plans may be made.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

The March Council meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Truman Godfrey, Deputy Commissioner. The fiscal year of the National Girl Scouts Inc. being from January to December the Winchester Council will change from May to May and hold its next annual meeting in January, 1933 to agree with the national organization. The "Dream of a Clown" is being sponsored by the Council and will be given on the evenings of April 1 and 2 in the Town Hall. Reserve these dates and watch the Star and the store windows for further particulars.

The Captains' meeting was held at the home of Mrs. William Davis, Central green. Mrs. Davis and Miss Constance Lane entertained at luncheon. Fourteen officers were present. Every Troop has joined the Needlework Guild of America through the Girl Scout representative of that Guild. Mrs. Otis Clapp, Mrs. Theodore Dissell and Mrs. Reginald Bradley with their committee have cut and prepared the material for eight layettes, and the Scouts are busily engaged in making up these attractive little garments ready for call.

Troops 2 and 8, Captains Symmes and Newman held a joint meeting at the Cabin Thursday. The two Captains met early and warmed the Cabin with fires in the kitchen stove and big fireplace, so when the girls arrived, they found a warm welcome. All joined in opening ceremony around the flag out of doors. A short meeting was held, games played and suppers cooked. A back to nature meeting with a real feeling of true comradeship was the result of the afternoon. The flag lowering and taps left a happy feeling of contentment. From now on the Troops will be gathering at "Their spot they call their own,

They'll find a perfect peace
Where joys will never cease,
Up there upon a high high hill."

ST. MARY'S ACTORS PRESENTED "CASEY TURNS THE TRICK"

Despite the unfavorable weather conditions a large and most enthusiastic audience was present last evening when St. Mary's High School Alumnae presented "Casey Turns the Trick," a comedy in three acts, in the Town Hall.

A carefully selected cast gave a sparkling performance and the play itself abounded in witty lines and unexpected situations which kept the big audience alternately in suspense and in gales of laughter from the opening to the closing curtain.

The plot had to do with the trials of one Patrick Casey who becomes disgusted with the ultra modern life which the remainder of his family are living and asserts his independence. With the assistance of Detective Jim and George Drake, he succeeds in straightening matters out to his liking, but not until he has been obliged to rescue his son from the machinations of a gang of diamond smugglers with whom he has become identified.

Leading parts were played by M. Roy McGrath, an old favorite, and apparently better than ever, Thomas Travers, Helen A. Carroll, Florence N. Fisher, John A. Sullivan and Wil-

BASEBALL TONIGHT AND TOMORROW

Tonight in the basketball games at the Town Hall, commencing at 7:30 the Winchester Rams will play the Woburn Yankees, the Winchester Sons of Italy will play the Hyde Park Sons of Italy for the championship of Eastern Massachusetts and the Winchester Collegians will play the Woburn Y Maroons.

Saturday evening's games will bring together the Pals and the Crusaders, the Panthers and the Tigers, and the Rovers and the Andover Colored Giants, a club that has won 10 out of 14 games with two ties.

STRAND ATTRACTIONS

Starting Sunday the Strand Theatre at Malden will offer for four days only that riotous comedy "Manhattan Parade" with four big comedy stars in the leading roles. Smith and Dale of the Avon Comedy Four, Winnie Lightner and Charles Butterworth supply a laugh a minute. Winnie plays the role of manager of a Theatrical Costuming Company, has troubles galore with an eloping husband, failing business, balking customers—a mad man who poses as a genius—and with Charles Butterworth, who, though free with his solemn and evasive advice, is none too dependable.

The second attraction with "Manhattan Parade" will be "The Phantom of Paris." The dashing lover of the screen plays the leading role of a French magician who treats handcuffs, leg irons, straitjackets as toys. This is by far John Gilbert's greatest talking picture role. The picture is filled with surprises. Leila Hyams is the lady in the case and she plays first the daughter of a wealthy nobleman and then the mother of a sizeable son. Lewis Stone gives a portrayal totally new to him, that of a relentless detective. The swift melodrama is filled with intrigue, involved murder, undying love, moonlight courtship, prison escapes, misplaced justice, and they all converge to make a melodrama of the highest action.

Sunday, Mar. 20: Subject, "Matter."
Sunday School at 12 o'clock.
"Matter" is the subject of the lesson-lesson which will be read in all churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Mar. 20.

The Golden Text is: "Be still, and know that I am God; I will be exalted among the heathen; I will be exalted in the earth" (Psalms 92:10).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-lesson is the following from the Bible: "Lift up your eyes to the heavens, and look upon the earth beneath: for the heavens shall vanish away like smoke, and the earth shall wax old like a garment, and they that dwell therein shall die in like manner: but my salvation shall be for ever, and my righteousness shall not be abolished" (Isaiah 51:6).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Moral and spiritual might belong to Spirit, who holds the 'wind in His fists'; and this teaching accords with Science and harmony. In Science, you can have no power opposed to God, and the physical senses must give up their false testimony" (p. 192).

HOLD FIRST SESSION OF TOWN MEETING

Mr. Stone, speaking for the School Building Committee, outlined the need for additional funds, and the meeting, without debate, voted to appropriate $97,000 to complete the work being done at the schools. Forty-seven thousand dollars is to be borrowed outside the debt limit, under provision of Chapter 279 of the Acts of 1928; $26,000 to be borrowed within the debt limit by a bond issue under provision of Chapter 47 of the General Laws, and $24,000 is to be raised by revenue. The appropriation vote was passed 160 aye; no. 1.

Article 15 was indefinitely postponed and the subject matter of Article 16 referred to the committee on town activities.
It was voted under Article 17 to appropriate $350 to acquire land adjacent to the Aberjona River between Swanton street and land of the town southerly, and to improve same in accordance with recommendations of the Waterways Improvement Committee.

Articles 18 and 19 were considered together and it was voted to appropriate $10,000 substantially to deepen, widen and improve the Aberjona River between Washington and Cross streets. In reply to what opposition there was to this appropriation Mr. Maguire stated that in view of what had been accomplished in waterways improvement by Mr. Lewis Parkhurst it surely was "up to the town" to do its part.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED IN MEMORY OF GEORGE S. F. BARTLETT BY THE TOWN MEETING, MARCH 16, 1932

The Town of Winchester has suffered a great loss in the death of one of its beloved citizens, George S. F. Bartlett.

Mr. Bartlett was first appointed Clerk of the Board of Selectmen on Sept. 27, 1916. He was reappointed every year and held that office until the time of his death, Feb. 17, 1932, more than 15 years of service.

His service was unique in that his work met with the universal and genuine approval of every Board of Selectmen with whom he worked.

His character was outstanding. He was honest, reliable, efficient, capable, painstaking, thoughtful of the feelings of others, always friendly, courteous, and agreeable. He truly merited the very highest and sincere respect and admiration of the citizens of the town.

We truly appreciate the outstanding service that he rendered to the town, the example that he set as a public servant, and we feel that the town is better for having had the privilege of the service of George S. F. Bartlett.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

All of us know church members in and out of Winchester who are afflicted with certain defects of character. These defects may be pride, or envy, or self-confidence, or animosity, and all the time one may have no knowledge of these short comings. In the even flow of the churchman's life there may be no conflicts with cussedness and because of this no revelation is made to a man of what he is and what he can accomplish by his experience. Too many Christian men and women are profoundly ignorant of themselves.

The point is just this: How is a man who is unable to estimate the force of the real incitements to evil that attack him in the moment of temptation to become a better and a wiser man, without some new discovery of himself, and how can he make this discovery except by being left to himself amid the assaults of temptation?

It is absolutely out of the question for us to make progress in any kind of excellence when we are self-ignorant, and our ignorance can be broken through only by a disclosure of our weakness to our own eyes—a disclosure so vivid as to make a permanent impression. Temptation is necessary for self-knowledge and yielding to some form of cussedness is in order, because our state of mind involves it. The discovery we make is worth the sin because we shall thus be in a position to triumph over future temptation and to avoid future mistakes.

No lessons are so impressive as those which our mistakes teach us. In the province of mere knowledge what recollections are so lasting as those which our displays of ignorance before others, fasten upon our memories. Many a man has developed gentlemanly traits because he became aware of his lack of good breeding. Can the same principle fail of acting in the spiritual sphere, if the hope of forgiveness be not cut off? Will not the error or sin, the attendant self-knowledge, the fear of future lapses and future shame be thus so many blessings? May not the stalwart Winchester churchman who is leading the best life humanity possible become even more stalwart, better versed in spirituality and, in the final analysis, so far as his own character is concerned, a greater force for good among the people of Winchester?

WINNERS OF ESSAY CONTEST
ANNOUNCED

The committee in charge of the essay contest for which the subject was "Why Winchester Needs a Recreation Center" have announced the winners as follows:

First prize of $5, offered by Winchester Post, A. L. for best essay submitted by a man over 21 years of age, to Gnazio F. Amico of 85 Oak street.

Second prize of $5, offered by the Community Service Committee of the Fortnightly, for best essay submitted by a girl under 21 years of age, to Miss Philomena Marrone of 5 Marion street.

Third prize of $5, offered by "A Friend," for best essay submitted by a boy under 21 years of age, to George F. Rushworth of 24 Garfield avenue.

Judges for the contest were Miss Amy Bridgman, Principal Wade L. Grindle of the Winchester High School and Rev. William S. Packer, editorial writer of the Boston Globe.

Following are the three essays:

Why We Should Have a Recreation Center in Winchester

Gnazio F. Amico

A recreation center should be a place centrally located, where any person may go during their spare time and see or take part in some particular thing in which they may be interested. Some people like to read good books, play games, see pictures, dance and tell stories.

There are two types of recreation: the clean and wholesome type and the unclean and unwholesome type. The latter is very easy to find. All we have to do is take a trip around town and what would we see. Groups of young men and boys on street corners shouting at people going by, cursing, swearing and getting into mischief. They may not mean anything by doing that, but it is the spirit of a crowd that rules in him at that time. Go in some of our pool rooms which offer a wonderful place for a "hang out" and "shin heat" and what do we see. Young men and boys in smoke filled rooms, sitting all over walls and floors, cursing, drinking and breathing impure air. These young men mix in with regular bums and gradually acquire their habits. What will become of our young people of today. Some will not be affected by such bad examples, but there are others who are not as strong and cannot fight bad habits and what happens? Naturally they fall right in with the bums. They will be our gangsters and criminals of tomorrow.

If we had a recreation center, these young people would not only be taught good clean habits and sportsmanship, but they would set good example for the younger people.

Compare Winchester with some of its neighboring towns as to what is being done for its young people. I will admit that we have fine playing areas in Manchester and Leonard Field and Loring avenue and Palmer street playgrounds. What is there on these playgrounds to encourage the use of them?

While attending a football game one autumn afternoon I noticed that the visiting team carried their uniforms under their arms. One of them came up to me and asked where the dressing room was and with a disgusted grin I pointed over to the bushes across the railroad tracks and said "that it was over there." After the game was over the players from both teams were black with dirt and sweat. They had to carry their clothes under their arms and wait until they got home to wash up.

The following year they were asked to play here again and they mentioned the conditions under which they played the previous year and said if they had a place to dress and wash they would come over and play but naturally they did not come because we have no such place.

Our town team played most of their football games away from home on account of the Sunday sport law. In most places such as Charlestown, Cambridge, Somerville, Hull, Dedham, and Billerica they were shown to dressing rooms. We should not be satisfied with just playgrounds, we should encourage the use of them by providing the proper facilities and supervision.

In winter when our playgrounds are not available who can our young people do in their spare time?

In Woburn they have a Y. M. C. A. They have three basketball leagues and play about 20 games a week. That means they have about 150 boys taking part in a clean and wholesome sport. In Lexington, they allow the young people of that town to use the high school gymnasium week nights. The same is true with the towns of Arlington, Stoneham and Reading. In Cambridge the Park Department has gymnasiums throughout the city which are used exclusively by the working boys. In Boston all school gymnasiums are thrown open to the working young men. All that the above cities and towns are doing is done through careful supervision.

So far here in Winchester some people have taken an active interest and we were allowed to use, on a trial basis, Waterfield Hall as a gymnasium. Rent was paid and equipment was bought. Everything went fine until the stores underneath the hall, plaster began to drop and fall to the floor. This put an end to one of our dreams for Waterfield Hall made a wonderful gym.

Then through the courtesy of the Selectmen, we were given the use of the Town Hall. There our equipment was installed and once more the expense was paid by interested parties. We appreciate what the Selectmen have done and they deserve to be congratulated on their efforts in trying to secure a proper place for the young men to play basketball. We have to remove all chairs everytime we want to use the floor, install baskets and take them out of the hall altogether when they are not in use. This work is done by the boys that play basketball. The interest these boys have shown is wonderful.

I have seen as many as 80 boys go out of the hall nights after the games sweating and dirty, without taking showers. There are no showers in the Town Hall. These boys go out into the cold night and chances are that most of those boys say a prayer before going to bed so that nothing may come of it. What a chance they are taking, gambling with old man pneumonia and death itself. But these boys don't look at it that way. They like the game and they will play it under any conditions.

It seems to me that the townspeople ought to be able to provide a place centrally located where these people can spend their spare time. Such a place should contain a gym, playrooms, reading rooms, dressing and shower rooms. I think that such a place could be provided at a very small cost. Let's not put it off for another year. Now is the time to get busy.

Why We Need a Recreation Center in Winchester

Philomena Marrone

Interest in all forms of games and recreation is increasing rapidly in America. Physical education in our schools and colleges is placing more emphasis upon all forms of recreational sports. When in school the young people have the school gymnasium in which to enjoy them, but when they are out of school, where are they to go for recreation? Some towns and cities through their parks and playgrounds provide facilities for many different kinds of recreation and people are urged to participate.

Winchester is very much in need of a recreation center. At present the Town Hall is used for basketball, but since it is used for other purposes it can only be had at certain times. There are some playgrounds in this town where some outdoor sports can be enjoyed but in unfavorable weather there is no place for them. Even in good weather after a strenuous game of football or tennis, a shower is essential. If a shower is not taken a cold or serious sickness may follow. A house at the playground would be able to provide for the shower.

Leonard Field seems an appropriate place for the recreation center. The field is there but some of the fixtures have been abused. This has resulted in only two tennis courts being placed there which were properly cared for. Sometimes it was necessary to wait a full hour in order to use a court. Other times one could not play at all. There are more young people in this section of the town than in any other section where seven courts are provided. Even the drinking water has been done away with here. Is this proper for a place of recreation? By establishing a recreation center here the young people would be taught to respect the property.

Again and again the movies have been voted against in this town which is a very good plan, but where are the young folks to go in their leisure time? Enjoyment of sports and recreation is a most healthful and beneficial way to spend leisure time. There are many games and sports which can be taken by the individual or a small group. When there is no place to go the young boys gather at street corners and disturb the citizens, whereas if they had a hall this could be avoided. A place for some sort of this recreation should be considered.

Since this house should provide for both the boys and girls certain nights could be arranged for each. Arrangements could be made for an instructor and dances and plays could be enacted to defray expenses. If the young people out of school are to be taken into consideration a recreation center should be established.

Why Winchester Needs a Recreation Center

George F. Rushworth

What a thoughtful and interesting subject on which to discourse. Summed up in a few words a recreation center would make better citizens, which means a better government, promote friendship and through organized sport insure better co-operation.

In many communities, social, religious or civic groups provide a recreation center where young men gather and play organized sport under wholesome conditions. It develops their mind and body. It gives them greater opportunities to grasp the vital need of co-operation. It keeps them from street corners, pool rooms and other places where crime gets its start.

The huge crime wave sweeping its devastating hand across the country, should convince every citizen that measures must be taken to call a halt to crime or the country will suffer the inevitable results.

Boys congregating at street corners, in pool rooms or any other favorite meeting place never think, say, or do anything constructive. Here higher taxes commence. Why? Because with more criminals defying the law more police are needed to cope with the situation. Additions are made to prisons, or new prisons are built to accommodate the "guests" of the taxpayers.

A prominent Senator stated recently that the cost of crime, in the United States, is equal to the war debts. Think of it! Equal to the war debts! Yet right here in Winchester, citizens are going to oppose construction of a recreation center, basing their argument that it will mean an increase in taxes. But if they would only stop and think? Where does a large portion of their tax money go now? How safe is their business. Their lives?

It would be far better to spend $50,000 for a recreation center than to have one boy become a criminal. Perhaps the thought of criminals in Winchester is remote but the opportunity is here or elsewhere.

If Winchester built a recreation center now, while labor is cheap and plentiful, its completion by fall cannot be doubted. That is just the time of year when nights are getting shorter and colder and at a time when boys are beginning to seek "shin heat." Here in a delightful meeting place, basketball, volley ball, gymnasiums or pool may be played under supervision and under right conditions. Grantland Rice, well known sports commentator says: "Pool is one of the best games I know when played under the proper conditions."

Just think! No more street corner gangs, regardless how innocent they start are bound to get in some trouble sooner or later, no hangout, no opportunities to plan something evil.

Possibly educational talks or movies, could be given to help attain a higher degree in citizenship and character, the goal of every parent and the thought of every loyal citizen.

Rome wasn't built in a day. Neither can a citizen be made a good one in a day. It takes training. Training in youth preferably. Good citizens—that's the foundation of any government.

Now a word to those timid souls who think it is going to sky rocket taxes. First of all it is not going to cost much money. And this means that it amounts to but a few cents on your tax bill. Who would hesitate to pay a few cents more when such a great advancement is being made to further the cause of good citizenship.

Since the need of a recreation center is apparent, the cost so small, the benefits so large, what person with any degree of intelligence can openly oppose the construction of such a center.

This is the time to start—right now. Let all citizens of Winchester unite for the single cause and take necessary steps for the construction of a much needed recreation center. It will be looked upon in future years as another great step in the advancement of Winchester. So let's go. A recreation center for Winchester!

TWO ACCIDENTS TUESDAY

Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock a Ford sedan, owned and driven by Frank B. Quincy of 210 Richardson road, Stoneham, was in collision at the junction of Washington and Forest streets with an Overland coupe, driven by Paul K. Bean of 181 Forest street. Both cars were damaged but no one was injured.

At 10 o'clock Tuesday night a Buick sedan, driven by Thomas J. Daley of 115 Penn avenue, Somerville, was in collision in the square, while crossing from Church street into Mt. Vernon street, with a Hupmobile sedan, driven by Nicholas E. Miller of 39 Cherry street, Danvers, who was going south on Main street. Both cars were damaged.

COLLEGE CLUB STUDY GROUP

The evening group studying China and Japan met Wednesday evening, Mar. 9, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Murray. The subject, "Social Conditions in the Far East," was presented by Mrs. Carlisle Burton, Mrs. James Allen, Mrs. Ben Schneider and Mr. William E. Spaulding.

The morning group studying "Personal Finance" met Friday morning, Mar. 11 at Mrs. Howard Morrisons. Mr. Charles Roberts, of Brown Brothers, spoke on "Investments."

Edward P. "Mack" McKenzie, local newspaper correspondent, was the envy of his Celtic friends when he appeared on St. Patrick's Day with a real sprig of Shamrock in his hat. The shamrock came from Ireland and was given to "Mack" by "Jim" Aylward of Charlestown, well known gate tender in the square.

AVERY LECTURES

Miss Avery opened her lecture on Mar. 9 with a summary of the situation at the Geneva Conference, what it stands for and what it is likely to accomplish.

The depression of today Miss Avery said was largely psychological. It is little straws that show the way the wind is blowing and in little ways we already see a change for the better.

The Geneva Conference is largely composed of two groups, the sentimentalists and the cynics. But it is the group composed of those who are neither entirely the one nor the other that will accomplish results. The Conference has 232 delegates and more people are represented by these delegates than ever before.

Of course, the work of the conference has received a great set-back in the situation at Shanghai and had our attitude toward Shanghai been stabilized, so to speak, it would have cleared up much quicker and more satisfactorily.

The major work of the conference has to be done by committees and done slowly. Geneva has the most universal press representation any conference has had for not only all the big newspapers are represented but all the small ones of the South and West as well. The most we can hope for at present is that the conference will be able to reduce little things in the little ways and in so doing pave the way for bigger things in the future.

Speaking on the railroad situation in the United States Miss Avery said that the railroads had had their troubles to three eras, the first when they started, the second when they were the only means of transportation and the third when great power and the third when great power and anyone with any influence could get a pass. And at this time the Interstate Commerce Commission was formed to regulate matters.

Now the railroads are in trouble from the depression and from unregulated competition. After the war when they were returned from government to private ownership they were in poor condition with worn-out equipment and with no expansion. Now by law the railroads are entitled to 5 1/2 per cent on their money. But the surplus earnings must go into a pool to help all the railroad lines. Then recently came the question of wage cuts and Daniel Willard, a man who came up from the ranks was appointed to act as arbitrator and out of this arbitration came a voluntary 10 per cent reduction of wages for one year, which goes to show that a better feeling is growing between the employers and employees.

In the last decade the railroads have spent $8,000,000,000 on equipment and they are safer now than ever before.

And today the railroads are beginning to appreciate the fact that in order to get the people's patronage, they must study their interests and cater to their needs.

In Miss Avery's last lecture of the season on Mar. 23 she will speak on "Results of the German Election" and "New and Permanent Phases of Asia."

GRANADA THEATRE

"The Reckless Age" with Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Peggy Shannon and Frances Dee, will divide the headline honors with "The Cuban Love Song" starring Lupe Velez and Lawrence Tibbett on the program that opens at the big Granada Theater in Malden on Saturday.

"The Reckless Age" portrays the problems of indulgent parents who forego personal comforts so that their children can have everything, while their carefree and extravagant off-springs pay scant attention to their parents' financial situation. Richard Bennett and Frances Starr, veteran troupers, play the indulgent parents. The picture has many a heart throb but also a goodly number of laughs provided by Charles Ruggles, a friend of the family.

"The Cuban Love Song" presents Lawrence Tibbett as a swashbuckling marine who, stationed in Cuba, meets and falls in love with a little Cuban peanut seller. A war, duty and fate all conspire to part the two lovers. Tibbett as the dare-devil hero, proves that in modern roles he is as powerful a figure as in costume and uniform. His singing of "The Cuban Love Song," "The Halls of Montezuma" and other hits stamp him the finest voice on the screen. Jimmy Durante and Ernest Torrence afford the comedy sequences of the production.

Ruth Chatterton's new picture "Tomorrow and Tomorrow" heads the bill that ends its run at the Granada on Friday. Paul Lukas and Robert Ames head the supporting company. "Tomorrow and Tomorrow" is an adaptation of Philip Barry's stage hit which had a long run on Broadway last season.

"Union Denot" with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. and Joan Blondell featured, is the second attraction on the current bill. "Union Depot" is something new in screen entertainment. The action takes place in one of the largest railroad stations in the country with over 3000 extras appearing in some scenes.

LET'S BE PREPARED FOR LIFE'S BATTLE

(Written for The Winchester Star)

The future will bestow upon us both glory and gloom. Plenty of dark days faintly touched with pure light. And the idol hopes worshipped in secret may fall. As meteors descend to earth in the night; But life's stark battle never was fought at the best. But with steely hearts well prepared for the fight.

Let us not fear the future! We face the unknown. Whatever its secret may be. As summer birds face, when the Summer has flown. A thousand strange longings of the soul. In cheerful trust all through the fear it may bring. We look, blessed Lord, still upward to Thee. Eugene Bertram Willard.

Miss Aria Glidden and Miss Priscilla Chamberlain left last Saturday for the Deerfield Academy in Deerfield to attend a tea dance and an evening dance at the Academy. They returned Sunday afternoon.

STOLEN CAR RECOVERED

Police Headquarters was notified at 12:35 last Saturday morning that a Ford sedan, registered to Mrs. Emma H. Allen, had been stolen from in front of the Allen residence on Wildwood street. The police broadcast the alarm and learned that the machine had been seen in front of a lunch room in Wakefield. It was recovered later Saturday by the Woburn police.

MRS. MAUDE L. FORBES

Mrs. Maude L. Forbes, who died Sunday evening at 76 Marlboro street, Back Bay was a former resident of Winchester and the wife of William Stuart Forbes, head of the Forbes Lithograph Company of Chelsea and a member of the Advisory Council of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. She and her husband had been spending the winter in Boston, their regular home being at Hamilton, "Lone Tree Farm," on Miles River road. In Winchester the Forbes home was for about 15 years on Oxford street and later on Swan road.

Mrs. Forbes was a native of Bangor and the daughter of Charles and Ella (Gould) Hayward. She was married to William S. Forbes some 35 years ago.

She was a devoted member of Christ Church, Hamilton, and active in its various interests. She was a member of a reading club on Beacon Hill and at her place in Hamilton she devoted a great deal of time to the cultivation of her garden, which was one of the show places of the North Shore, and in which she specialized in certain flowers such as Iris, in particular. She also was a member of the Farm and Garden Club.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Forbes is survived by a son, William S. Forbes, Jr., living at 15 Charles street; and a daughter, Mrs. Arthur H. Hall, Jr., residing in Baltimore.

Biblical Insect Plague

The first record of a plague of insects is that recorded in the book of Exodus: "The locusts went up over all the land of Egypt . . . and they did eat every herb . . . and all the fruit of the trees, and there remained not any green thing through all the land."

SPARKS FROM FIRE THREATENED DWELLING

The home of Mrs. Lillian Cole Smith on Myopia road was menaced shortly before 1 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon when sparks from nearby burning rubbish set fire to the roof of the dwelling.

Box 573 summoned the local apparatus to the scene in time to prevent serious damage to the structure, though the roof was burned in several places.

DOES DEATH END ALL?

(Written for The Winchester Star)

Why do we mourn our dead? Doth not you seeing eye
That searches beneath the outer rim,
Perchance, where human sight grows dim,
Behold some latent virtue lie
That when the encumbering weeds of Time
Have been disordered from the roof,
Shall send, perforce, a heavenly shout
To blossom in the field sublime.
What patience infinite has God
While souls scoffed at His sovereign claim:
Who, having in mind their mortal frame,
In love delays the dire decree!
Then, good friends, how tenderly should man
A brother for his actions weigh.
The worth, or weakness, who shall say
Of humans soul that complex plan?

BABY'S SAFE WITH THE ANGELS

(Written for The Winchester Star)

A mother lingers where her Babe lies
His wee hands o'er his bosom laid—
The light gone from his deep blue eyes
A treasure wisp of dark brown hair
Is all that mother has of Baby here,
But in God's far-off glorious sphere
Her darling's angel waits her there.

THE GARDENER'S CORNER

Trees, shrubs and flowers will soon be bursting forth and in only a few weeks our gardens will again be a mass of bloom.

This is to be a garden-making year. Such years always come when times are quiet. Not, of course, that interest in gardens exists only in lean seasons. Garden-making has a perennial fascination. It is true, though, that men and women turn most readily to the soil in periods of stress, finding a peace of mind and a steady influence such as they get from no other source.

Probably more food products will be grown at home than at any time since the war, when, to tell the truth, many persons gardened neither wisely nor well.

You are missing something tremendously worthwhile in life if you do not know the joyous experience of gardening. No other hobby offers such rich rewards in personal satisfaction, healthful recreation and practical achievement. But there is far more to gardening than simply planting a few shrubs and flowers. For when you know the art of planting your garden properly, you can convert a modest yard into a veritable show-place.

To own an attractive home is the ambition of every man. But you have not realized that ambition in the highest degree until you have begun, with your own hands and heart, to surround it with the beauty and charm that only a garden can give.

Have you ever noticed that people who live contented lives, at peace with the world, are always the owners of well-ordered homes? Forget your troubles in a friendly, fragrant garden. Even a little potted plant placed in the window of a dark room performs a miracle. A few fleeting hours spent on your garden will add an almost unbelievable amount of actual value to your home.

What do you see when look at your home and the grounds surrounding it? Do beautiful flowers, trees, vines and shrubs combine to make it a dream house that everyone stops to admire? Or is your home just an ordinary house in the suburbs?

Forcing Shrubs in the House

There are various shrubs which force easily indoors and which produce large numbers of flowers over a long season. Probably the forsythias are the best known. These can be taken from the bushes at this time with long, slanting cuts. They should be stood in wide vases holding a large quantity of water. They come into bloom quickly, but they do not last as well as the flowers of the cornelian cherry, an old time kind which seems to have been neglected, but which is nevertheless very valuable for decorating home grounds.

Then there are the Japanese quinces and the flowering almonds, both of which force readily and are highly decorative, and it is also possible to force the branches of cherry, peach and plum trees.

The forcing is done in much the same manner in all cases. The branches should be immersed rather deeply, and particularly good results are obtained if the entire branch is first soaked in warm water for a few minutes. They open best if they are placed in a sunny window in a fairly warm room.

MANY FIRES OVER WEEK-END

The Fire Department was kept busy over the past week-end putting out grass fires, many of which were started from burning rubbish in incinerators.

Friday afternoon at 1:55 there was a grass fire near the home of J. L. Powers at 149 Swanton street. Saturday's first run came at 10:10 o'clock for a grass fire in the rear of the residence of Mrs. B. L. Bradford at 103 Cambridge street. At 10:24 Box 573 sounded for a grass fire in the rear of the residence of W. E. Robinson at 35 Cambridge street, and at 1:32 p. m. there was a grass fire near the home of John L. McMinamin at 58 Hemingway street. A grass fire threatened the barn on the F. J. O'Hara estate at 34 Mystic avenue at 1:46 p. m., and one minute later additional apparatus was called to put out a grass fire in the rear of the home of Walter H. Carter at 19 Kenwin road. Additional grass fires at 2:16 on Sargent road, and at 3:45 p. m. on Salisbury road, concluded Saturday's activities.

Sunday afternoon at 12:49 a grass fire called the Department to the rear of the Martin residence on Pickering street, and at 1:40 p. m. the same afternoon there was a grass fire at the home of former Selectman Harry W. Stevens on Mystic Valley Parkway.

Monday morning at 9:55 a. m. State men burning brush near the barn of Samuel S. Symmes resulted in an alarm being sounded from Box 262, but no damage was reported. At 1:37 p. m. there was a grass fire near the home of Elmer D. Ripley at 14 Wedge Pond road, and at 1:44 Monday afternoon there was a second grass fire at the home of Mrs. B. C. Putnam, 2 Salisbury street.

MISSING NUMBER PLATES CAUSED TROUBLE

Shortly before 10:30 last Saturday night Charles E. Hiltz of 241 Main street, Reading reported at the Station House that the number plates had been stolen from his car which had been parked on Eaton street. The machine was owned by the Bailey Chevrolet Company of Reading.

All officers were notified and at midnight Patrolman John Dolan picked up a motorist driving a car to which the missing plates were attached. At the station the man stated that the plates in question had been on his car all evening, and rightfully so, since he had been given permission to use them by the Bailey Chevrolet Company of Reading. Hiltz had evidently taken his machine from the garage, thinking that the plates were on another car. No arrests were made.

DOG RAN WILD ON WEST SIDE

Finally Shot by Officers After Chase

Two men and several dogs were attacked by a brown and white collie that ran wild about the west side of town last Saturday morning.

Police Headquarters was notified at 8:25 that the dog had attacked a man in front of the Chambers. Sergeant John H. Noonan with Patrolman James P. Donaghey and Dog Officer Michael Foley went to investigate and found that the animal had jumped on Lawrence D. Nichols of 11 Eaton street, tearing his coat and trousers and inflicting a small wound. Nichols sought medical attention, and the officers set out to round up the dog.

After attacking Nichols the animal bit a dog on Church street and running through Pine street, bit two more. The officers came upon him at the corner of Fletcher and Wildwood streets, and chased him through Fletcher and Copley streets. It was impossible to shoot the dog because of the danger of striking some one of the many children playing in the vicinity.

On Copley street the dog bit two dogs and running in the rear of houses on Wildwood street, attacked and bit two more. As he crossed the Country Day School playground the animal bit a dog, owned by Thomas Dreier of Curtis circle, and then ran through Palmer street into Middlesex street where the officers succeeded in cornering and shooting him.

The animal had a leather strap around his neck but no name or license number. The carcass was taken to Headquarters and both Dr. William Buckley and the Board of Health notified. The head was taken in the afternoon to the State House, and Monday afternoon the police were notified that the dog had rabies.

As a result of this finding a 30-day quarantine of dogs in town was ordered by the Selectmen.

For some time after the dog had been shot Saturday the police received reports that dogs and cats on the West Side had been bitten. It was also learned that Letter Carrier Joseph Connors had been bitten by the animal.

GENERAL ELECTRIC GAVE PALS FIRST SET-BACK

The Winchester Pals soccer team suffered its first home defeat last Saturday afternoon at Loring avenue playground when the General Electric E. A. A. of Lynn scored a 4-0 victory in a Bay State Juvenile League tilt.

The work of the Lynn team was high class all the way. It started off in earnest to worry the Pals defense. However, J. Kelley, Morrow and C. Benson at last found an opening, but score they could not. Spavin of the Lynn team worked his way to within scoring distance and let fly with a corker that beat "Casey" Rogers all the way for the opening tally. McAuley tested Davis, who saved, and another attack on the Pals goal saw C. Benson beat Rogers for the second goal just before half-time.

In the second period the visiting team made the most of it. One drive from P. Rybeck looked good for a goal, but the ball rebounded off the upright. Winchester was in the game purely on the defense and it was no surprise when C. Benson notched the third goal.

During a scrimmage in front of the Pals goal they changed their goalkeeper and forgot to notify the referee, and when McAuley, the referee, caught a hard shot from one of the Lynn forwards, a penalty was called on him and from the free kick Hogan notched the fourth and last goal of the game.

The Pals strove hard to get a goal and Morrow was presented an open shot, but muffed it and the game was over.

COMPLAINTS KEPT POLICE BUSY OVER WEEK-END

Complaints from residents in many parts of the town kept the police busy over the past week-end.

Among the seven received at Headquarters Friday was that of 12-year-old Louis Errico of 398 Washington street who reported that while he was selling magazines on Bacon street he was stopped by three young men in an automobile. As the latter commenced to ask him questions he ran away through Central street and the Ginn estate to the center where he gave a description of the men to the police. He said that one of the three chased him. Patrolmen Archie O'Connell and John Dolan were unable to find the trio.

At 10 o'clock Friday evening Headquarters was notified that a man was sawing up a pole on Main street near the Russell Farm. As there had been complaints of old poles being stolen in that location Sergeants Thomas F. Cassidy and Edward W. O'Connell made a hurried trip to the spot indicated, but the man had gone. They secured the registration of his car, and later visited his residence where the man stated that he had sawed and removed a pole which had been given to him by workmen who were taking them down.

A second call received at 10 o'clock Friday took the police to Fletcher street where a parked automobile had been ransacked. No one had been seen near the car, and nothing was missing.

MYSTIC THEATRE, MALDEN

"Honor of the Family" starring Bebe Daniels, Allan Mowbray and Warren Williams, will head the double bill that opens at the Mystic Theatre in Malden on Saturday. "Honor of the Family" is taken from one of Balzac's droll stories and modernized right up to the minute. Miss Daniels is cast as the companion to an elderly German baron, played by Frederic Kerr. The old chap is fond of the girl and is wordy enough to realize that she wants nothing but this money. However, he enjoys having the girl around and despite assurances that she has a lover he continues to lavish gifts on the girl. Then his nephew, lieutenant in the guards comes to visit him. He quickly finds out that Miss Daniels is meeting Allan Mowbray on the sly. He challenges Mowbray to a duel with swords much to the disgust of the baron who believes that if the nephew wins the girl will turn to him instead of the vanquished. It is a thrilling affair with many delicious comedy moments.

"The Silent Witness" with Lionel

Atwill and Greta Nissen as the stars, is the second attraction for Saturday. Lionel Atwill is one of the best known stage stars and he makes his screen debut in a role he made famous on Broadway.

"I Like Your Nerve," starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. and Loretta Young tops the bill that ends its run at the Mystic on Friday. This is a comedy drama with young Fairbanks cast as a youth with an inferiority complex who goes to a fortune teller in hope of winning self-confidence. He goes to Central America and soon proves that he has what it takes to win the ladies.

"The Menace," a mystery tale from the gifted pen of the late Edgar Wallace, with H. B. Warner, Bette Davis and Walter Byron as the stars, is the second attraction on the current bill.

CHILDHOOD'S GOLDEN IGNORANCE

(Written for The Winchester Star)

Childhood is the silvered side of fate. Before the darkness is unveiled. Before the soul has grown to hate. The golden altar of the world. Whose carved motto reads "Relief Is but a passport on to grief." It comes to all the world's home thrust. That our "I will" is her "Thou must." Blessed childhood! Learners from a code Whose memory lessons are the worst. Not yet their kindest of the land. A human soul may eave and not burst. Childhood is a golden ignorance. Life's richest earth inheritance. For knowledge is a fruit, many. Most luscious hanging on the tree. A glory fills with light childhood's brow. And stays in light among its hair. A saint is within precious childhood now. That may not be there after these! Eugene Bertram Willard

TOWN MEETING ENDS Special and Regular Meeting Finished Without Much Discussion

The annual town meeting, together with the special meeting called for Monday night, completed all articles in the warrants in a comparatively short session and with little or no discussion. The attendance was fair. Out of the 228 town meeting delegates 182 were present, and by 10:15 p. m. the company, including delegates and interested citizens, was on its way home.

The meeting opened with the special meeting, called primarily to raise the appropriation necessary to fill the Town's apportionment for the Middlesex County Tuberculosis Hospital and amounting to $60,552.72. The sum was voted, $552.72 being out of revenue. The balance of $60,000 will be funded by the County and will be assessed the Town over a period of 15 years.

Another article on the special warrant called for action at the corner of Highland avenue and Forest street, the intent being to improve conditions at this curve. The vote to do so was passed, together with an appropriation of $500.

In considering the remaining articles in the regular warrant, the meeting first considered the appropriation for street lights, the sum of $20,759 being voted. This settled the question of all-night lighting in favor of its continuance.

The appropriation for compensation was reconsidered and was raised from $2500 to $4000. This was done in view of the settlement of a case pending.

Continuing at the point wherein the meeting adjourned last week, the town voted, with no discussion, to refer to the next annual meeting the matter of removing the water tower at Symmes Park, the Selectmen being instructed to bring the matter before the voters at that time. This was Article 20.

The next article—21, had promised considerable discussion, but it was disposed of by reference to a committee of five, to be appointed by the Moderator. The article as inserted in the warrant called for a vote to see if the Town would construct a recreation house on Leonard Field and make an appropriation therefor. There was another motion offered calling for a committee composed of various town officials, and Mrs. A. F. Woodside, the sponsor of the article, who was absent owing to illness, delegated Mr. W. L. Parsons to offer the motion which was carried for her. This proposition, therefore, will be heard from later.

Article 22, calling for traffic lights at Main, Water and Swanton streets, was indefinitely postponed.

Article 23 referred to the appointment and removal of firemen by the Selectmen instead of the fire chief. This was also indefinitely postponed.

Articles 24 and 25, referring to previous building lines on Sheridan circle and Watson place, resulted in a vote to discontinue such lines.

MATHEWS' BARBER SHOP COMPLETELY RENOVATED

Mathews' Barber Shop at 20 Thompson street, one of the town's old line establishments with a record of 33 years of continuous business in Winchester, has been completely renovated and modernized to keep pace with the latest trend in barbering equipment and sanitation.

Reappointed throughout in a soft shade of white, with new simulated marble linoleum and substantially comfortable chairs for patrons, the shop presents a most attractive appearance which is greatly enhanced by the fine new case with its plate mirrors and new lighting fixtures. The operating chairs have been re-done and the very latest sterilizers and sanitary equipment added. In fact everything has been changed except the service which will continue to be as efficient and courteous as in the past. Experienced operators are always ready to satisfy any or all barbering needs. Children's haircutting is sure of special attention.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB NEW JUNIOR MEMBERSHIP PLAN

Announcement is made of the new membership classification of the Winchester Boat Club which this year only will admit high school students as junior members with full club privileges for only $5.

The reason for this exceptional membership offer lies in the fact that the club directors believe that the many advantages of the Mystic Lakes for recreational purposes should be utilized more by the young people of the town.

The Boat Club is ideally situated for full enjoyment of the lakes and has as well, the physical equipment for the many sports such as canoeing, wherrying, motorboating, sailing and aqua-planing. In addition to this the club facilities offer tennis. Plans are also underway to include handball and volleyball among the activities.

Any high school student interested in further details of this new junior membership plan should get in touch with any club member or communicate directly with the membership committee which consists of Daniel F. Barnard, Kenneth Pratt and Oscar Crowders.

FRANCIS B. SAYRE, OF HARVARD LAW SCHOOL, TO SPEAK HERE

Prof. Francis B. Sayre, of the Institute of Criminal Law of Harvard University, will speak before the Parent-Teacher Association of the local high school, Monday evening, March 28, at 8 o'clock. The subject of Professor Sayre's lecture will be "How Can an Education Help to Combat Crime?" The recent kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby and the continued activities of American gangland have focused public attention, as never before, upon the subject of crime and the possible solutions of the problem. Because of the intense interest in the subject, President Little of the high school association announces that Monday evening's program will be open to the general public.

All citizens of Winchester are cordially invited to visit their daughter, Dorothy, who is a student at Duke University, Durham, N. C.

PROMINENT MEN OF TOWN TO STAR IN ALL MALE EX-TRAVAGANZA

"Dream of a Clown" at Town Hall, April 1 and 2

Much interest has been awakened in the all male extravaganza "Dream of a Clown" which is to be presented next Friday and Saturday night, April 1 and 2, in Town Hall. This unique production is being sponsored by the Girl Scout Council for the benefit of the Girl Scouts.

Seventy prominent local business and professional men have been invited to become "actors" and "actresses" for this most unusual performance. Great fun is promised when the men who keep the wheels of progress turning in Winchester, cast aside their formal garb for make-up and costume. It will be really mirth provoking when they trail about the stage impersonating charming debutantes, stately matrons, as well as coy little flappers. It is predicted that nothing funnier has ever been staged here and probably never will be. It is a hilarious comedy from beginning to finish and the entertainers taking part are among the most talented artists in Winchester. Dr. Clarence Ordway has been chosen for the "Leading Lady." Rumor has it that this dignified and impressive "lady" will appear in white satin with head dress and tulle veil, carrying a shower bouquet of orange blossoms.

Joseph Worthen will portray the broken-hearted mother of the bride and Frank Kelley will be her distracted but comforting father.

Imagine, if you can, anything funnier than Raymond Bancroft, Vincent Farnsworth, Sr., Frank Harwood, Arthur Butters and George Willey, costumed in little red ballet dresses, singing and dancing to the tune of "I'm a Little Prairie Flower." Just think of Alden Symmes impersonating Miss Tartar, a little flapper with blonde curls and an affectionate disposition. This promises to be a big hit of the show. When you see him vamping Vincent Clarke as a lone-some young dandy, you will be forced to admit that our young men can do almost anything.

Wait until you see and hear Dwight Cabot as Aunt Mabel Henderson singing the "Last Rose of Summer" in a high falsetto voice.

The flirtatious flappers Kingman Cass, Bradford Harwood, Dr. Roger Burgoyne and Raymond F. Dickman will cause many a heart to flutter.

Jack Eaton and Rastus Badger as twin cousins from New York will make a vivacious pair of little girls all decked out in "middies," their long curls waving in the breezes, created by their own antics. Richard Fenno has the role of Abraham Goldberg and in this characterization he is expected to keep the audience in an uproar.

Try to picture Clinton Farnham in a low cut evening gown singing the part of Madam Schumann-Heink, the great opera star. Can he sing? Yes he can, and yes he does. He will give you the surprise of your life.

Dr. Allen Cunningham singing the baby, Dr. Harold A. Gale, to sleep is also quite a meadow lark.

These are only a few of the many handsome actors and charming "actresses" to take part in the most screamingly funny affair ever produced here in Winchester. Tickets are now on sale and may be exchanged for a reserved seat Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock in Parker & Lane's Coal Office.

MRS. MARY JANE STEVENS

Mrs. Mary Jane Stevens, wife of Sidney Stevens and a resident of Winchester for more than 35 years, died at noon yesterday at her home on Westley street. She had been ill for about two weeks, but had been for some months in failing health.

Mrs. Stevens was 55 years old and was born in County Armagh, Ireland, the daughter of John and Elizabeth (Latimer) Scanlon. At an early age she came to this country and following her marriage made her home in Winchester, winning for herself during her long residence the esteem of all with whom she came in contact.

She leaves her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Ernest W. Clark of Lexington; a son, George Stevens of Winchester; a sister, Mrs. Richard Upton of Oakland, Calif.; and six brothers, Robert Scanlon, a member of the Winchester Fire Department, and William Scanlon, also of Winchester; John Scanlon of Beverly, James Scanlon of San Diego, Calif., David Scanlon of Seattle, Wash., and George Scanlon, living in Ireland.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Church of the Epiphany, with the rector, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, officiating. Interment will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

INJURED WHEN CAR OVERTURNED

Samuel Ginsberg of Euclid avenue, proprietor of the B. & G. Brassiere Company of Woburn, was painfully injured shortly before 9:30 Wednesday morning when his Ford sedan tipped over on Cross street near Brophy's store.

Patrolmen John E. Hanlon and Henry P. Dempsey were sent to investigate and found that Ginsberg had been taken to the hospital in a truck owned by the Parker & Lane Company. He was treated by Dr. Richard W. Sheehy for cuts and bruises. Police said that the accident occurred when Ginsberg was obliged to swerve his car sharply to avoid a collision with a machine which had cut him off without warning.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Linscott left this week to visit their daughter, Dorothy, who is a student at Duke University, Durham, N. C.

To the President and the Board of Directors of the Home for the Aged:

It is with sorrowful hearts that the members of the family give up our dear Mrs. Moore.

We love her. She loves us. Her faithfulness and devotion to us, her unselfishness, her gracious spirit, her understanding heart, have brought us very near to her.

We shall miss her greatly,—this woman of such rare qualities of efficiency and ability, which mean so much to us who spend our daily lives in her presence.

ADVICE FOR USE DURING BETTER HOMES WEEK GIVEN BY "CHILD WELFARE"

"Child Welfare," the National Parent-Teacher Magazine, is co-operating with Better Homes in America and with the President's Conference on Home Building and Home Ownership by presenting in the April issue an article by Ruth Lindquist on "Better Homes—Better Children" and one by Blanche Halbert, "Have You a Model Kitchen." These articles are especially timely since April 24 to May 1 is designated as Better Homes Week. Miss Lindquist, who is on the faculty of the School of Home Economics at Ohio State University, gives 13 principles to be followed in building a house or in making one over. Through such principles she points the way whereby child development is aided by better homes. Miss Halbert, Research Director of Better Homes in America, gives valuable rules for establishing efficient work space in the home.

WINCHESTER UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF NEWS

The funds are now being disbursed more rapidly than pledges are being paid. The pledge period was for six months. It will probably become necessary to borrow money in anticipation of the payment of pledges. The change in the base rate of pay from $3.50 to $3.00 per day takes effect on Monday next. There is insufficient money in the treasury for two full pay rolls. So far as subscribers can conveniently do so, it will be very helpful to the committee if they are able to anticipate their April and May pledges. To whatever extent this is done the necessity for borrowing will be reduced. The receipt of payments will determine whether funds will be sufficient to maintain the force during the month of April.

A crew of 224 men are on the pay roll this week. The heavy rain of Tuesday stopped the out-of-doors crews for the day. The work at the Mill Pond is approaching completion. The silt has been quite largely removed and more than half the riprap work is completed.

The important work at Horn Pond Brook is being continued. Some 300 additional square feet of riprap has been placed this week. Crews are still working at Leonard Field and Wedge Pond Park. A combination crew of nine, including six painters and three carpenters, are most usefully employed. The result of their labors at the Water Works' house, the Town house at Linden street, and the Town Hall basement is most gratifying. Three additional crews are not merely busy but are improving Town property or serving Town purposes in the land clearing at High street, the work about the North Reservoir and the survey crew of eight men working under the Town Engineer's direction.

An entirely new job was started this week, upon which 14 men are employed. They are digging a ditch on Manchester Field in which a six-inch water pipe is to be laid.

The distribution of clothing units continues to go forward. The total to date has reached the high figure of 4764 units.

Safeguard NATURAL CHARM

WATCH YOUR if

if means Intestinal Flora, tiny plant organisms which live in the digestive tract. The friendly acidophilus type helps normal elimination. The pathogenic types hinder it. Restore a proper balance of looks and health will suffer.

A lively spirit and the glow of health—what better formula for a charming personality could anyone devise? And yet, how easily these are destroyed by the poisons of faulty elimination!

Here's a way to guard against the effects of intestinal sluggishness. Many doctors endorse it—

Drink Walker-Gordon Acidophilus Milk—a preparation of pure, fresh Walker-Gordon milk cultured with a hardy strain of acidophilus bacilli. This will build up in your intestinal tract a sufficient supply of these friendly bacilli to counteract the poisons of decay bred by modern diet. As you replace the flora of decay with the flora of health, your intestinal condition is "sweetened" and regular, natural elimination is encouraged.

Try this pleasant method of encouraging healthy intestinal habits for one month and see the difference it makes!

RICHARDSON ROW

Visualize, if you will, our Washington street (near Leonard Field) as a path with deep forests stretching away on either side, broken only here and there by rude farmhouses, and fields cleared of stumps for the cultivation of crops. In the forests lurked the much feared Redskin, lightly but effectively armed with his deadly bow and arrow, and ever alert for sight of the unguarded white man.

It is hard to realize that the Middlesex Indian probably built his campfire and pitched his wigwam on the site of our new George Washington School, and that our cherished reservoir was probably sometimes flecked with birch bark canoes paddled by the Indian in search of fish or the flying bird. Further north, where Bear Hill Observatory now stands, the Indian tribe might have gathered for its pow-wow; might have danced its fantastic war dance, causing weird shadows to flit about behind the flickering light of the campfire. Might have sent out the blood curdling war-whoop, echoing through the silent black of the woods, as the tom tom beat out its everlasting, monotonous pulsation, and the look-out climbed the loftiest pine to watch for possible danger.

Tranquil, uneventful Washington street hardly seems the spot for a thrilling though horrible massacre, but our own Washington street once witnessed such a scene, 'way back 254 years ago next month.

About 15 years ago the Star printed an account of this massacre written by Mr. A. E. Whitney, but to any newcomers there might be some new value in a narrative of this event.

It seems that three Richardson brothers settled in our Winchester Highlands in 1640 and this settlement received the name of "Richardson Row." The old homestead located opposite Lebanon street, adjoining Leonard Field, having been built by an old Richardson family.

On the afternoon of April 10, 1678, Samuel Richardson was, in the course of working about his place as usual, hauling farm dressing to a rather remote field of his farm. His six-year-old son Samuel rode with him, while back in the farmhouse his wife, baby daughter Hannah, a twin brother of Samuel named Thomas, and a nurse, busied themselves with homely duties.

Richardson jogged peacefully along, occasionally admonishing his bony horse, and again twitting his son who manfully clung to the dangling ends of the "reins." Though outwardly calm, Richardson was uneasy of mind, for no husband and father cared to leave his home unprotected, even for short stretches of time. King Philip's War was in session, you see, and the dreaded Indian was ever skulking around bent on treachery.

Keeping an eye in the direction of the house, and both ears strained for any unusual sound, Richardson went about his work as settlers do, for Indians or no, the work had to be done, and woe to the man who skirted for danger's sake. A wife wouldn't allow that anyway!

Suddenly Mr. Richardson caught sight of flying feathers, and realizing that mischief was abroad, he hurried back to his home; arriving too late, however, to prevent the horrible deed. His wife and son were found murdered in the house where a few short hours before they had been left in complete comfort and peace. The nurse was found in the neighboring block house where she had fled when the Indians had started their attack. She had caught up the sleeping baby as she left, but in event of saving her own life had been forced to abandon the infant who was found massacred near the house.

The Indians had departed into the present Middlesex Fells after finding no others around the farm.

Mr. Richardson immediately gathered his neighbors, who, horrified and greatly incensed by the crime, departed in pursuit of the enemy. They tracked them northward deeper into the woods and suddenly came upon three of the tribe seated on a large rock. The pursuers took the three by surprise and managed to get several shots at them before they escaped into the density of the woods.

Darkness was falling and not knowing the number of Indians, and fearing an attack upon their unprotected families, the party retraced its steps to the settlement leaving the further routing of the murderers for the morning.

The night passed with no further sign from the Redskins. When daylight broke the townsmen turned out once again to attempt pursuit. Arriving at the big rock they were able to find the trail by the spattered blood marks which led shortly to a hastily gathered pile of twigs and leaves, under which lay a dead Indian, which proved that the volley of shots the previous evening had been to some advantage.

Indian-like the attackers had fled at the first defensive advantage displayed by their white brethren.

Of course it is a question we shall never be able to answer knowingly, but many believed then that if those few white men had not set out immediately to avenge the massacre, a greater catastrophe would have befallen the whole settlement. The disappearance of the tribe, then, was just reward for the courageousness of the white men. The big rock where the Indians were spotted and fired upon is still pointed out in our Middlesex Fells as one of our "that's where . . . spots."

So, next time you of Winchester leave your palatial home, pass along Washington street in your luxurious car, smoking your expensive cigar, stop a moment and reflect back upon "Ye Olde Richardson Row," flanked with massive trees, and dotted with occasional farmhouses. Imagine Samuel Richardson as he left his house, jerked along in his rattle cart and chewed vigorously on a blade of grass.

"All is well" now, but time was when Winchester was just another settlement in constant danger and terror of the common foe . . . the Indian; and it behooves us well to remember those who underwent unspeakable hardships to settle our territory and take the first steps towards our establishment.

A PORTABLE SCHOOL GRAVE-YARD

To the Editor of the Star:

As it was impossible for me to attend the first session of the annual town meeting I was unable to participate in the discussion in regard to the portable school on the floor of the town hall.

With your kind permission Mr. Editor, I shall repeat through the columns of the Star what I intended to assert if I was present at the first session of the town meeting. The words are as follows:

I believe the town of Winchester Finance Committee is composed of an intelligent group of men who have rendered valuable service to the town and have received no compensation for the services rendered, and I desire to grasp this opportunity to thank the men most heartily. I believe, however, that the men did not give sober, serious, consideration in regard to the portable school that they recommended to be utilized (when it is abandoned for school purposes) for a bathroom on the Palmer street playground.

I wonder if the town meeting members are aware of the fact that the portable school that was adjacent to the ancient Wyman School on Church street is at the present time located on the Palmer street playground and at certain periods of the year is utilized as a bathroom? Is it necessary that we require two bathrooms in order that the children and others may dress like Mahatma Gandhi?

Now listen attentively! Very recently thousands of dollars worth of beautiful homes were erected in the immediate vicinity of the Palmer street playground, namely on Lanten lane, Wedge Pond road, Grassmere avenue and Curtis street. If we decorate the playground with portable schools, shall it have a tendency to be detrimental to the beautiful homes that are erected? I shall let the assessors, real estate operators and others who develop the property decide.

Now then, we have expended thousands of dollars developing the property at the corner of Lake and Main streets. I for one believe it is a progressive movement that shall eventually prove to be a valuable asset to the town. I trust the town meeting members and others shall halt at the corner of Lake and Main street and visualize the marvelous surroundings that nature has presented to us. To my mind they are simply gorgeous.

There is an interrupted view of beautiful homes, mighty oaks, red cedars, white birches and weeping willows that harmonize so beautifully with the homes that if we transfer the school from its present location and erect the school adjacent to the 20-inch surface drainage pipe that was recently constructed minus a settling basin, we shall most likely shut off the marvelous view that presents itself at the present time. The scenic beauty is certainly wonderful; and remember, all the filthy water that enters the pipe empties into the water that our children bathe in.

At the north end of the town we have the unsightly gas tank; on the east side the conspicuous water tower. Shall we have two abandoned portable schools on the west side?

As I understand the situation there was no objection whatsoever when the gas tank and the water tower were erected, and apparently there is no objection if we convert the Palmer street playground into a so-to-speak portable school grave yard. Let us be careful.

I venture to assert without the slightest fear of contradiction that if we utilize the two schools for bath-houses, that in the near future there will be an article inserted in the warrant suggesting the removal of the abandoned portable schools.

In conclusion please remember that I did not write the above few words for the purpose of argument, hence it cannot be truthfully asserted that I desired to criticize any man or men. I simply presented facts as I observed them after careful observation.

Very truly yours,

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Hike Saturday

Scouts of Winchester District had such a good time on their hike to Camp Gleason a week ago that they now plan to go on another similar hike tomorrow. Scouts who are interested should report at the Headquarters of Troop 3 at 9:45 a. m. Francis Butler will be in charge. Should the weather be bad, the boys will go to the Charlestown Y for a swim.

Visit Troop

Monday evening a delegation of 12 Scouts of Troop 8, West Medford, under the leadership of their Scoutmaster, Leslie P. Hinds, paid a visit to Troop 3. At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Hinds invited the boys of Troop 3, Winchester to visit his Troop, and accordingly it was arranged to visit Troop 8 on Wednesday, April 6. This interchange of Scouts and visits to other Troops is of great value to the Scouts and is heartily encouraged by the Scout office.

Troop 7 Reports

This Troop, organized in December 1931, is making real progress. The attendance is increasing and new members will soon be enrolled.

Clifford MacDonald of the Rattlesnake Patrol has made a Patrol flag. This Patrol has a "Den" in the meeting room, and from all accounts the Patrol is making real progress.

Halford Ambler has been elected by the Beavers to serve as patrol leader of this patrol. Richard McNeilly and Jack Finger are new recruits in this patrol, and will be registered this month.

The patrol leaders of the Troop have started training in leadership so that they will be prepared for the advancement of the Troop in the fall.

To Go On Trip

The Eagle Patrol of Troop 3, winners in the Council name contest have been selected as the prize a trip to Norfolk, Va., and return on one of the Mystic Steamship Colliers. Frederick Craven, an official in the Mystic Steamship Co., and an ardent Scout, is making the arrangements. Scout Executive Harry T. French met with the Patrol Monday evening to discuss with them the details of the trip. It is expected that the boys will go on this trip during the coming school vacation, leaving Boston on Friday or Saturday, April 15 or 16. An adult Scout official will be in charge and every precaution will be taken to insure a safe and enjoyable trip. Further details will be announced as soon as arranged.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL RECIPIENT OF TWO GENEROUS GIFTS

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of Winchester Visiting Nurse Association two generous gifts to the Winchester Hospital were announced.

The first was a gift of $15,000 made by Mr. Charles B. Barnes and Mr. Frederick E. Jennings, trustees, from a trust fund created under the will of Albert N. Parlin, late of Croyden, N. H. This money is given for the purchase of free beds, each to be known as the "Albert N. Parlin Free Bed" and to be solely for the use of those too poor to pay.

The good fortune of the hospital in receiving this gift is especially significant when it is realized that neither Mr. Parlin nor the trustees were ever residents of this town. We are always glad to know that the good work of the hospital and its deserving character are appreciated even beyond the limits of our town.

The second gift announced at this meeting was $1200 from the proceeds of the Winton Club Cabaret. The generosity of the Winton Club in its frequent contributions to the hospital is already known to all our readers.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

At the monthly meeting of the local organization held at the home of Mrs. Daniel Kelley, Dix street, a very interesting program was presented: Miss Margaret Winn and Miss Gladys Folts gave an instructive dialogue, stressing the importance of a larger subscription list for the Union Signal the national organ of the organization.

A humorous sketch, "Youth talks it over," was presented by the president, Mrs. Friend and several ladies. This showed the importance of electing a "dry" President in 1932, as he appoints to office 50,000 men during his term of office. This being more than all the kings of Europe put together appoint to office in ten years.

Mrs. George H. Hamilton dressed to represent the women of 1874 spoke of the courage and devotion of the early Crusade Mothers and stated that the 60th anniversary of the Crusade would be celebrated in 1934; and many goals must be won in the next two years if we would live up to the name and fame of Mrs. Zerelda Wallace, a pioneer worker in the cause, whose name the State of Massachusetts bears in this competition.

The following letter written by the state committee against repeal of the 18th amendment of which Mrs. Hamilton is a member was read:

To the Members of the National Republican Committee:

It is reported that a movement is on foot to put a resubmission plank in the Republican platform as a means of "taking prohibition out of politics." This plank to be mis-called a referendum. We say mis-called advisedly, for the Constitution provides no means of taking a referendum, nor did the framers ever intend that Congress should use a constitutional amendment as a means of evasion or of "passing the buck" to the people. As for this repeal amendment (alias resubmission, alias referendum) actually getting the liquor question out of politics, we beg you to recall that the liquor question has been in politics for 100 years. This ever-present political sentiment cannot be taken out of politics by a gesture in a party platform. A hundred years of thinking on the subject has been able to discover no plan so good as prohibition.

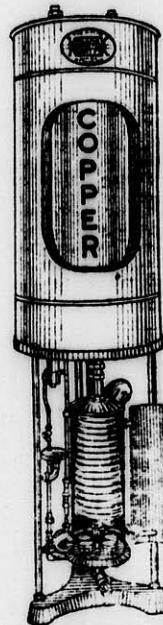

Truly, it is idle to talk of "taking it out of politics." A vote on repeal if unsuccessful, as beyond a doubt it would be, would simply intensify the issue, make wet states more lawless, and dry states more determined. As for the substitute of the "wets" state option but no saloon, could there be a greater inconsistency? If each state decides for itself, who can guarantee that none will decide for the saloon? Wet states would undoubtedly line their streets and highways with the equivalent of the saloon, gangsters and bootleggers, as of old, would bootleg into dry states, instituting a border warfare that, far from taking the question out of politics nationally would put it in with a new intensity, for Congress must deal with boundary questions. The fact is, liquor bids fair to remain in politics until the people accept abstinence and prohibition as 20th century safety measures. As to the political wisdom of this resubmission repeal plank, would it not loose to the Republican party the dry West and the bolting South? We believe that if the Republican party should turn even partially wet, the loyalty of the West to that party might well be strained to the breaking point.

Certainly the bolting South would be lost to President Hoover. In short, a resubmission-repeal plank in the Republican party; 1, would not get prohibition out of politics; 2, would not be a referendum; 3rd, would not help the Republican party to win. Indeed it is our opinion that a repeal plank advocating one of the greatest moral reactions in history, risking a return to the saloon age, can never give genuine survival to any party.

At the close of the meeting the hostess served delicious refreshments in true "St. Patrick Day" style.

The police received a report Monday that Janet Eaton of 11 Bacon street had been bitten by a dog owned by Kenneth Hall of 12 Symmes road.

We were glad to see the article in this year's warrant dealing with the proposed recreation center in Winchester referred to a committee for further study. In this year of financial stress we were afraid the entire matter might be put aside as unimportant. Those acquainted with local conditions will agree that there is a need in Winchester for a recreation center, and it should be easy to learn of the value of such centers from communities who now have them. The appointment of a committee to study the local situation is reassuring.

The Star wishes to call attention to the letter printed elsewhere in this issue, commenting upon the poor condition of the running track on Manchester Field. The writer, Mr. Goddu, was one of Winchester High's best track men in his day, and has followed the game closely since graduation. His letter is well worth reading by all who share the growing national interest in track and field events, and those who know tracks will agree with him that the oval on the playground is not in particularly good shape. While high school boys are seldom down fine enough to risk pulling a tendon on a soft track, that danger is by no means entirely out of the picture, and it is true that their natural development is considerably retarded by any lack of good practice facilities. The Park Board knows the situation, but thus far has been unsuccessful in its efforts to obtain sufficient funds to remedy conditions. Perhaps, as Mr. Goddu suggests, the thing could be handled through the unemployment committee. Something really should be done.

MR. WILSON HAS EXHIBIT OF PAINTINGS

Following the rehearsal on last Friday evening the Chancel Choir of the First Congregational Church was invited to view an exhibit of paintings by its director, J. Albert Wilson.

Mr. Wilson has his paintings on exhibition in his studio in the church. Both subjects in water colors and oils are included in the group, though apparently Mr. Wilson has something of a preference for the first medium.

Especially well done is a water color of a group of dories, done against a background of Cape Cod sand dunes and with a weather-beaten house and a patch of sky in the distance. The boats are finely drawn and painted and the picture is one which lovers of the Cape will find hard to pass by.

Of local interest is a finely painted water color of the home of former Senator Thomas Vinson, done after a fall of snow. There is also a splendid view of the Berkshires, done in oils. Notable among several depicting still life is a water color of a carafe, grouped with an egg plant, some apples and a small buff and blue pitcher. Several paintings of old houses are done with a nice appreciation of perspective and attention to detail. In all Mr. Wilson has succeeded in attaining that depth which literally makes it possible to look into the picture, a quality not so often found in the work of those who paint as a hobby.

AMOS AND ANDY'S "DIXIE"

Mrs. Ethel Dixon Knights of 45 Calumet road, a member of the Paint and Powder Club (The Junior League) of Lowell was wildly applauded on Thursday and Friday nights of last week when the club presented its 11th annual show "The Paint and Powder Revue" at the Opera House.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The Neighborhood Day program, given at the Town Hall on Mar. 21, provided one of the most delightful afternoons of the club year. The usual business meeting opened at 2:30 p. m. and the following chairmen of standing committees gave notices.

Mrs. Lillian R. Whitman, Chairman of the Dramatic Committee, announced that two plays will be given at Fortnightly Hall on April 1 and cordially invited all members to attend.

Mrs. Clara Snyder, Chairman of the Club House fund committee, announced a progressive luncheon bridge on Monday, Mar. 28, for the benefit of the Scholarship Loan fund. Hostesses for the luncheon are Mrs. Albert K. Comins, 407 Highland avenue and Mrs. Walter E. Chamberlain, 34 Wildwood street. Following the luncheon, bridge will be played at Fortnightly Hall.

Mrs. May C. Kennedy, Chairman of the Literature Committee, announced the final meeting of the Literature Group at the Wyman School Hall on Monday afternoon, April 4, at 2:30. This program is in charge of Miss Amy S. Bridgman, Mrs. Florence I. Cross and Mrs. Arzilia Higgins and will be a summary of the year's work, which has been devoted to the study of the life and writings of Lafcadio Hearn.

Mrs. Beatrice Thompson, Chairman of the Legislation Committee, announced a bridge which is to be held on April 14 at 2131 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, and is sponsored by her committee.

Mrs. Irene Clarke, recording secretary gave notice of the regular Club Institute, which will be held April 7 at the Boston Y. W. C. A. "Club Programs" will be the subject for discussion and Mrs. Isabelle Winship, president of the Fortnightly, will be one of the speakers. All club members were urged to attend.

After the business meeting Mrs. Winship introduced Mrs. Harold P. Johnson, director of the Eighth District, who gave a very interesting talk on club activities and the good which may be derived from the work, if done in the right spirit.

The Fortnightly was then entertained by three neighborhood clubs; the Stoneham Woman's Club, the Arlington Woman's Club and the Medford Woman's Club. Mrs. Winship very graciously presented the presidents of these visiting clubs, before the number which that club gave on the program.

The Stoneham Woman's Club was well represented by the president, Mrs. Merrifield, and a most amusing one-act play, "The Acid Test" was given by two of the members, Mrs. Chambers and Mrs. Barwood. It depicted the lives of two women friends most devoted, who stood the test of criticism of each others faults but when it came to criticism of each others children it was too much and a bitter quarrel ensued, which is so often the case in real life. It was a cleverly portrayed sketch and one which delighted the audience.

Mrs. Hawks, president of the Arlington Woman's Club, made a very gracious speech and introduced two of their members-sisters, Miss Lena Lent and Miss Alice Lent. Miss Lena Lent gave a reading, "The Selfish Giant" by Oscar Wilde with incidental music by Liza Lehman, which Miss Alice Lent rendered at the piano. It was a most enjoyable and greatly appreciated selection. As an encore Miss Lena gave three short readings, "The Royal Heart," "Mighty Like a Rose" and "Rastus' Philosophy" each with incidental music.

Mrs. Wells, chairman of the Medford Woman's Club, also made a short address. Their number was series of Dramatic Tableaux. Ten members took part and made a striking picture in their white Grecian robes. Their coach, Mary Griffin Donovan, who composed these tableaux, deserved great credit as well as the members of the cast. The tableaux were beautiful and splendidly executed.

Following the program refreshments were served by the Social Committee, Mrs. Grace Aseltine chairman. The tables were gay with the lovely spring flowers and Mrs. Carolyn Gilpatrick, Mrs. Winifrede Meyer, Mrs. Marguerite Jones and Mrs. Anna Richardson acted as hostesses.

The Fortnightly was delighted to meet their neighbors and guests and truly appreciated their efforts and good will in making the entertainment so delightful. The pleasant memory of this afternoon will linger in the minds of the Fortnightly members, who so greatly enjoyed it.

ELECTRIC APPLIANCES IN WINCHESTER

Right in your own home town you may today see all of the modern electrical home appliances—latest models and finishes, and including every gadget trending towards lightening household labor. The new firm of Peter J. Weers, successors to the S. S. McNeilly Co., is showing all of these attractive utility appliances at its attractive store at 547 Main street. With stores in Melrose and Melrose Highlands, this firm has a supply particularly complete and ready for instant delivery. Just at present the Weers Company is featuring the "Silent Hostess" electric refrigerator, which has already taken the country by storm.

Miss Dorothy Day of Ridgefield road is taking part in "Interference" which the Magnolia Players of the Magnolia School of Theatre Art, will present on April 20 at the Elizabeth Peabody Playhouse.

SHOULD FIX TRACK

To the Editor of the Star:

I am told that this morning year the Winchester High School track team has scheduled a number of track meets for Manchester Field. They are also starting the season with a new coach, and the outlook seems rather bright for a successful year.

There is one condition, however, that is not up to the standard that Winchester has always set, and that is the condition of the track built for the running events on our local field.

The writer had the good fortune to be the official starter of the track games held on this field July 4, 1930 and since that time to witness several of the meets held there, and it is indeed a shame to ask our boys to give their best on a track so soft that the foot sinks into the embers and clinkers, at every step.

I have not been satisfied with merely hearing the talk about this track and the unfavorable appearance it gives to the eye, so I took the liberty late one evening last summer, shortly after the close of our schools, to dig out the old spikes and try out this surface myself. I am now satisfied that a little time and money should be spent in making this part of our boys' equipment more attractive and serviceable.

In these times of unemployment it is too much to suggest that some one be given the necessary work on this much needed repair?

I very much hope that those in our town who are serving on committees interested in Manchester Field will hear the call of our boys who are soon to put forth their every ounce of strength and energy in active competition for the high school and give them a track that they can do well on. This is the small part in which we can help them and the rest is up to the boys and their coach. Surely we want to do our part.

WINCHESTER JUNIORS WIN OVER CONGOS

The Winchester Juniors won their third straight game of the best three out of five games with the Winchester Congos Tuesday night at the Congregational Church gymnasium. It was a very exciting and fast game, and both teams played clean basketball.

At half-time the Congos were ahead 19-5, but the next periods the Juniors showed real form and kept gaining until the final whistle, the Juniors winning 34-27. The work of Dolan and McKee was exceptionally well, being the high scorers of that team. Seaver and Hamilton played well for the Congos both getting most of their teams' points.

In a preliminary game, Hollands' Yanks won from the Congos seconds, 21-14.

SURPRISE ON 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. William Gillett of 25 Rangleway road were very pleasantly surprised by about 35 of their friends at their home Saturday evening. The occasion was their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillett had been invited out for the evening and while waiting, as they supposed, for a friend to call for them, many friends arrived. They were the recipients of a "pot of beans" which, when examined, proved to be a "pot of silver."

After games which were enjoyed by all, an elaborate buffet supper was served.

Guests included friends from Lexington, Arlington, Medford, Worcester, Somerville and Winchester.
